The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

PREFACE.

IT IS hoped that the present edition will fulfil the dual object of the editors, namely: first, to assist the pupil to study with intelligence and appreciation the text prescribed for examination, and secondly, to arouse an interest in, and a taste for, classical literature. While it is the duty of an examiner to ascertain whether the student understands the text prescribed, it ought to be the duty of the intelligent teacher to see that the student appreciates the work he is reading.

The editors have sought to aid the teacher in his work by furnishing the materials in an attractive form.

LIFE OF VERGIL.

Publius Vergilius Maro¹ was born on the fifteenth of Birth.
October, B.C. 70, in the first consulate of M. Licinius Crassus and Cn. Pompeius, at Andes (now Pietola), a small village near Mantua. Since the full franchise was not given to this part of Gaul (Gallia Transpadana) till some years afterwards², the poet, like many of his predecessors and contemporaries in literature, was not a Roman, but an Italian provincial.

The parents of Vergil, like those of Horace, were of His Parents obscure birth. Some authorities say that the poet's father was a potter, others, that he was a brickmaker, while others again assert that he was the servant of a travelling merchant, Magius, whose daughter, Magia Polla, he afterwards married.
Whatever may have been his occupation, certain it is, that he was at the time of the poet's birth, the steward, factor, or possessor of an estate near Mantua. The childhood of Vergil was passed amid the hills and woods that fringed the verdant banks of the Mincius, and the early association of the poet with the lovely scenery of the neighbourhood of his native town may account for the exquisite touches of pastoral life which appear in the Elogues and the Georgics.

¹ The English equivalent of Vergilius is often spelt Virgil. Indeed the poet is best known by the name thus spelt. However, it is better to adopt the spelling that harmonizes with what is undoubtedly the correct Latin form. The form Virgilius was not common till the middle ages. Every Roman citizen had regularly three names—denoting the individual, the gens or clan, and the familia. Thus in Publius Vergilius Maro, Publius is the praenomen, marking the individual; Vergilius is the nomen, denoting the gens or clan; while Maro is the cognomen, or family name. Sometimes an agnomen was added for military distinction, as Africanus to Scipio, Numidicus to Metellus.

² B.C. 49.

Studies and Early Life.

*His studies begin:
B.C. 55.*

Vergil began his studies at Cremona, where, we are told, he assumed the toga virilis on the same day on which Lucretius died. The town itself had already been noted, having been the birthplace of Furius Bibaculus, and of the critic, Quinctilius Varro.

*Vergil goes to Rome,
B.C. 53.*

After a brief stay at Cremona, and subsequently at Mediolanum (Milan), the poet went to Rome. In the capital, Vergil, after the fashion of the day, attended the lectures of rhetoricians and philosophers. Under Epidius, the rhetorician, the teacher of Marc Antony and afterwards of Octavius, and under the Epicurean philosopher, Siron, the poet became acquainted with the outlines of rhetoric and philosophy. It is quite probable that his father intended him for the bar, but a weak voice and a diffident manner were insuperable barriers in the way of obtaining distinction in public speaking. Vergil soon gave up rhetoric, and, in fact, renounced poetry for the more congenial study of philosophy. Under Siron, he seems to have made considerable progress in Epicurean philosophy, and the love he retained for this branch of learning is plainly observable in many of his extant writings.⁴ In a minor poem, generally supposed to be genuine, he welcomes the exchange of poetry and rhetoric for more useful studies :

“Away with you, empty coloured flagons of the rhetoricians, words swollen, but not with the dews of Greece ; and, away with you, Stilo, Tagitius, and Varro, you, nation of pedants, soaking with fat ; you, empty cymbals of the classroom. Farewell, too, Sabinus, friend of all my friends : now, farewell, all my beautiful companions, we are setting our sails for a haven of bliss, going to hear the learned words of the great Siron, and we mean to redeem our life from all distraction. Farewell, too, sweet Muses ; for, to tell the truth, I have found how sweet you were : and yet, I pray you, look on my pages again, but with modesty and at rare intervals.”⁵

After a short stay at Rome Vergil probably went to Naples, where, we are told, Parthenius, another Epicurean, was his instructor. The great Epic⁶ of Lucretius, added to the teachings of his instructors, gave, no doubt, his mind a strong bent towards the doctrines of Epicurus. It is probable that the poet returned to his father's farm before the outbreak of the war between Pompey and Caesar, B.C. 49. It is also likely that he remained there till after the battle of Philippi (B.C. 42), and that he employed his time in gaining by observation materials which he afterwards employed in his great didactic poem, the Georgics. Returns home.

Acquaintance with Augustus and Maecenas.

Unlike Horace, Vergil sympathized with the party of Caesar. The formation of the Second Triumvirate threw the Roman world into the broils of a civil war. In the division of the provinces, the Gauls (except Gallia Narbonensis) fell to Antony. The lands of eighteen cities were given up to reward the legions of the unscrupulous Antony, and among the lands were those of Cremona. The district around this city failing to satisfy the greedy rapacity of the legionaries of the Triumvir, the farms of the neighbouring Mantua were seized, and among the lands confiscated were those of the poet's father. C. Asinius Pollio, the prefect of Gallia Transpadana, unable to restrain the lawlessness of the soldiers of Antony, sent Vergil to Rome with a recommendation to Augustus to allow the poet to retain his paternal estate. It is quite probable that congenial tastes and a recognition of the genius of Vergil may have influenced Pollio to take this course. At the close of the same year (41 B.C.), however, war broke out anew between Octavius and L. Antonius. Pollio was deposed from office, and Alfenus Varus appointed in his stead. Another division of lands followed, and the poet is said to have been deprived of his estate the second time.⁷ His friends, Gallus, Pollio, and Varus, however, interposed and saved his farm. Loss of his farm.

By them he was introduced to Maecenas, the patron of literary men—afterwards the prime minister of Augustus. This year marks the beginning of the rising fortunes of the poet. With his friend and patron, Pollio, as Consul, Vergil became the honoured member of a literary coterie which graced the table of Maecenas. The intimacy that Vergil enjoyed at court, is shewn by his being one of those who Regains his farm.

went to Brundisium along with Maecenas, when the latter was negotiating a treaty between Augustus and Antony.⁸

His residences.

Through the munificent kindness of his patrons he was raised to luxury and affluence. He had a magnificent house in Rome on the Esquiline, near the residences of Horace and Maecenas, estates in Sicily, and in Campania, near Naples. The mild climate and clear skies of Southern Italy suited his delicate constitution, and till his death, his Campanian residence was his favourite abode.⁹ From the date of his early Eclogues till his death, little need be said of his life except that he devoted himself to study and to the completion of his immortal works.

Death and Character.

Death.

In the year B.C. 19, he went to Greece, possibly with a view to restore his health, and to give a finish to his great work, the Aeneid. At Athens he met Augustus, who had just returned from Samos. Vergil returned to Italy in company with the emperor, but died at Brundisium three days after he landed, 22nd September, 19 B.C. He was buried near Naples on the road leading to Puteoli (Puzzuoli). His epitaph, said to have been dictated by himself in his last moments, was as follows :—

Epitaph.

*Mantua me genuit ; Calabri rapuere ; tenet nunc Parthenope. Cecini pascua, rura, duces.*¹⁰

It is said that shortly before his death Vergil wished to destroy the Aeneid rather than leave it in its unfinished state. His friends however dissuaded him, and the poem was afterwards edited and published by Varius and Tucca under the sanction of Augustus and Maecenas.

Vergil is generally described as of tall stature, delicate frame, homely features, and dark complexion, abstinent in the use of food, shy, and fond of retirement. Horace is said to have had Vergil in his mind's eye when he wrote¹¹ the lines thus rendered by Conington :

⁸ Horace Satires 1, 5 and 10.

⁹ Geo. iv, 563. Illo Vergilium me tempore dulcis alebat Parthenope, studiis florentem ignobilis oti.

¹⁰ Some have taken the last line to refer to the Eclogues, the Georgics, and the Aeneid.

¹¹ Hor. Sat. 1, 3, 29-34.

"The man is passionate, perhaps misplaced
In social circles of fastidious taste ;
His ill-trimmed beard, his dress of uncouth style,
His shoes ill-fitting, may provoke a smile ;
But he's the soul of virtue ; but he's kind
But that coarse body hides a mighty mind."

He was so pure and chaste that the Neapolitans gave him the name of Parthenias, or the maiden.¹² He is said to have been shy and even awkward in society, and these traits even the polished society of the Capital never succeeded in eradicating. He was distrustful of his own powers, which his high ideas of literary excellence led him to underrate.

In the midst of an irreligious age, he had the strongest religious sentiment ; in the midst of vice he remained virtuous ; and while licentiousness disfigures the writings of many of his brother poets, the pages of Vergil everywhere inculcate the highest truths of morality and virtue.

Works.

Vergil is said to have attempted in his youth an epic poem¹³ Early works on the wars of Rome, but the difficulty of the task soon led him to abandon his design. His earlier poems, Culex, Morietum, Ciris, Copa, and those that pass under the name Catalepta, though they give little proof of great ability, still show the careful attention the poet bestowed on metre and diction.

1. The writings that first established the reputation of Vergil were the Eclogues,¹⁴ pastoral poems, ten in number, written between 43 B.C.-37 B.C. This class of poetry was Eclogues. as yet unknown in Italy, though it had already reached its perfection in the hands of the Sicilian Theocritus, whose influence may be traced in many writers from the days of Theocritus as a pastoral poet. Vergil to those of Tennyson. The *Idyll*¹⁵ of Theocritus exhibits a true picture of the shepherd's life, the joys and sorrows, character, sentiment and habits of the rural swains, the piny woods, the upland lawns and feeding flocks, the sea and sky of Sicily. Vergil's Eclogues, on the other hand, can hardly be said to be true pictures of pastoral life. His shepherds and shepherdesses belong to the island of Sicily rather than to the district of Mantua. His characters are too conventional, his representation of life too artificial. Still the earlier poems of Vergil have beauties. Their melodious diction, their soft and easy flowing style,¹⁶ were admired by Horace, no mean judge of the poet's art.

¹² πάρθενος, a maiden.

¹⁴ These were called by the generic term Bucolica (βουκολικά, scil. ποιήματα, from βουκολέω, to attend cattle). The term Eclogue is from the Greek ἐκλογή, a choice collection, and may mean that the poems under that name were a collection from a large number. Spenser wrote the word Æglogue and followed the derivation of Petrarch, αἰγῶν λόγος, "tales of goats" or "tales of goatherds."

Georgics.*

2. The Georgics,¹⁷ in four books, was written (between B.C. 37-B.C. 30¹⁸) at the request of Maecenas,¹⁹ to whom the poem was dedicated. In this didactic Epic, Vergil copies largely from Hesiod, Nicander, and Aratus.²⁰ While the Eclogues have justly been regarded as inferior to the Idylls of his Greek original, Theocritus, the Georgics, on the other hand, have been accounted superior to any other poem on the same subject that has ever appeared. The harmonious and graceful language, the pleasing descriptions of rural scenes, the apt and charming episodes, all combine to lend an interest to a subject, which in any other hands would have been intolerably dull. The time was ripe for such a poem. Agriculture had been the chief employment and the honored occupation of the Romans from the early days of the City. The long-continued wars had, however, desolated Italy.²¹ Even after war had ceased, the soldier, too long accustomed to camps and the excitement of a military life, cared little about the prosaic life of a farmer. To recall the peaceful habits of rural industry, the poem, which Addison pronounces "the most complete, elaborate and finished piece of all antiquity," was written. The first book treats of tilling the fields, the second of orchards, the third of the care of horses and cattle, and the fourth of bees. The two most successful imitations in English of this poem are Philips's Pastorals, and Thompson's Seasons.

(B. i, 490); the wars waged (34 B.C.) in Parthia under Antony, and those on the Rhine under Agrippa (B. i, 509); the battle of Actium and the submission of the East, B.C. 30 (B. ii, 172; iii, 27-32; iv, 562); the irruptions of the Daci on the Danube, B.C. 30 (B. ii, 497).

3. The Aeneid,²² in twelve books, written between 29 B.C.—19 B.C., recounts the story of the escape of Aeneas from burning Troy, his wanderings over the deep in search of a home which the fates had promised, his final settlement in Italy as the founder of the Roman Empire destined in after ages to rule the world. No doubt, Vergil borrowed largely from the Greek and Roman writers who preceded him. The Romans were original in no department of literature, except perhaps in the departments of History and Jurisprudence. Vergil can hardly be called a borrower any more than the rest of his countrymen in other spheres of letters. The object of Vergil was to produce a national epic, by showing the various steps of the growth of the Empire, and in doing this, he had to give prominence to the influence of Greek literature as an important element in moulding Roman thought.

Style of the Aeneid.

Defects.—Vergil has been severely censured²³ for (1) deficiency in the power of invention, (2) intermixture of Greek and Latin traditions, (3) anachronisms, (4) his mode of representing the character of Aeneas, (5) the sameness of the individual characters. These are the main charges brought by his detractors, and granting the full indictment brought against the poem, Vergil still has the proud claim of being one of the greatest of epic poets. No doubt his power of invention is less than Homer's, no doubt he did intermingle the traditions of Greece and those of Rome (for this, as we have remarked, could hardly be otherwise in his age), no doubt he did commit the heinous crime of anachronism, but he sins in this along with Shakespeare and Milton, and there is no doubt that his hero Aeneas is cold-blooded and uninteresting.

Excellenci s.—These defects, however, are far more than counterbalanced by his many excellencies. “There is in Vergil a great tenderness of feeling, something better and more charming than mere Roman virtue or morality. That he excels in pathos, as Homer in sublimity, is an old opinion, and it is surely the right one. This pathos is given at times by a single epithet, by a slight touch, with graceful art by an indirect allusion; this tenderness is more striking as contrasted with the stern Roman character and with the stately majesty of the versè. The poet never becomes affected or sentimental; he hardly ever offends against good taste; he knows where to stop; he is excellent in his silence as well as in his speech; Vergil, as Wordsworth says, is a master of language, but no one can really be a master of language unless he be also a master of thought, of which language is the expression. To the above-named qualities may be added picturesqueness in description; variety and artistic taste in grouping incidents; also dramatic power, particularly in Books I and IV.

Crutwell thus defends Vergil in regard to the main charge: “The Aeneid was meant to be, above all things, a national poem, carrying on the lines of thought, the style of speech, which national progress had chosen; and it was not meant to eclipse, so much as to do honour to, early literature. Thus those bards who, like Ennius and Naevius, had done good service to Rome by singing, however rudely, her history, find their imagines ranged in the gallery of the Aeneid. Thus they met with the flamens and pontiffs, who drew up the ritual formularies; with the antiquarians and pious scholars, who had sought to find a meaning in the immemorial names, whether of place or custom or person; with the magistrates, novelists and philosophers, who had striven to ennoble and enlighten Roman virtue, with the Greek singers and sages, for they, too, had helped to rear the towering fabric of Roman greatness. All these meet together in the Aeneid, as in solemn conclave, to review their joint work, to acknowledge the final completion, and to predict its impending downfall. This is beyond question the explanation of the wholesale appropriation of others' thoughts and language, which would otherwise be sheer plagiarism."

The object that Vergil had in writing the Aeneid is variously stated by writers. Spence, Holdsworth and Warton Object of Aeneid. say that the poem was written with a political object to reconcile the Romans to the new order of things. This view is also held by Pope, who says that the poem had as much a political object as Dryden's Absalom and Achitophel; that its primary object was to praise Augustus, and the secondary one was to flatter the Romans by dwelling on the splendour of their origin. "Augustus is evidently typified under the character of Aeneas, both are cautious and wise in counsel; both are free from the perturbations of passion; they were cold, unfeeling, and uninteresting; their wisdom and policy were worldly-minded and calculating. Augustus was conscious that he was acting a part, as his last words show; and the contrast between the sentiment and conduct of Aeneas, whenever the warm impulses of affection might be supposed to have sway, likewise created an impression of insincerity. The characteristic virtue which adorns the hero of the Aeneid as the epithet pious, so constantly applied to him shows, was filial piety, and there was no virtue which Augustus more ostentatiously put forward than dutiful affection to Julius Caesar who adopted him."—BROWNE.

METRE.

The Aeneid is written in the heroic metre of the Romans; viz.: the dactylic hexameter. This was the most ancient The dactylic hexameter. as well as the most dignified form of verse among the Greeks and Romans. It was cultivated at an early period, far beyond the beginnings of authentic history, as we find it in its most perfect shape in the poems of Homer and Hesiod, and the responses of the Delphic oracle. Ennius is said to have discarded the rude Saturnian metre of his predecessors, and to have introduced the hexameter among the Romans. Vergil is generally considered as the model of this kind of verse among the Latins.

So in B. I, 150:

lāmqūē fūc|ēs ēt| sāxā vō|lānt fūrōr|ārmā mīn|istrāt:

where the quick succession of brands and stones follows.

On the other hand a succession of spondees may be employed to describe a laboured effort: cp. B. I, 118.

Ād|pār|ēnt rā|rē nānt|ēs īn| gūrgūtē| vāstō.

Here the slow spondees mark the struggling motions of the crew amid the waves.

So also a dignified gait may be imitated by successive spondees: B. I, 46.

Āst ēgō| quāē dī|v(um) incē|dō rē|gīnā Iōv|īsquē.

2. Rarely the fifth foot is a spondee, in which case the line is called a spondaic²⁵ line: e.g., B. I, 617.

Tān(e) ill(e)| Aēnē|ās quēm| Dārdlūnī|ō Ān|chīsaē.

(Note the absence of elision in Dardanio.)

3. When the last syllable of a word remains over, after the completion of a foot, that syllable is called a caesural syllable, in consequence of its being separated, or cut off, as it were, from the rest of the word in scanning the verse. The term caesura²⁶ is also applied to a pause or stress of the voice, which naturally rests on the caesural syllable. The melody of the verse depends in a great measure on the position of the caesura. The chief verse caesuras in the dactylic hexameter are:

(a) Penthemímera²⁷ Caesura at the end of the first syllable of the third foot: B. I, 621.

²⁵In Vergil we have 28 spondaic lines: 17 of these end in a quadrisyllable, 9 in a trisyllable, 2 in a monosyllable.

²⁶Called by the Greeks τομή, a cutting.

²⁷From πέντε, five; ἡμι, half; μέρος, a part, or foot: hence the fifth-half-foot caesura. This is also called the strong or masculine caesura.

²⁸From ἑπτα, seven; ἡμι, half; μέρος, a part or foot: hence the seventh-half-foot caesura.

It may be observed, generally, that a verse may have one, two, or three caesuras; that verse, however, is best divided in which the sense pause and the caesural pause coincide as in each case given above.

Last word in the line.4. The last word in a dactylic hexameter line is for the most part a dissyllable,³¹ or a trisyllable. A quadrisyllable is rarely allowed, except in the case of a proper name. Sometimes, but rarely, a monosyllable is employed at the end of a line, and generally in the case of est, and then usually with an elision: B. Elision.

5. Metrical figures:

(a) Elision occurs when a word ending in a vowel or diphthong, or with the letter, -m preceded by a vowel and the following word begins with a vowel, diphthong, or the letter h. When such is the case, the last syllable of the word so ending with a vowel, diphthong, or the letter -m preceded by a vowel is elided, i.e., struck out together, and in scansion is not regarded as a part of the verse, e.g.,

(1) B. I, 95:

(2) B. I, 210:

(3) B. I, 180:

*Āenē|ās scōpū|l(um) intērē|ā cōn|scēndit, ēt| ōmnēm.*²⁹ Also called the weak or feminine caesura.³⁰ So called because often employed by Vergil in his pastoral or Bucolic poetry. This caesura is common in the poems of Theocritus.³¹ Leaving out the three unfinished lines in the first book of the Aeneid we have 420 dissyllabic; 323 trisyllabic; 8 monosyllabic; 2 quadrisyllabic endings.

(4) B. I, 213 :

(5) B. I, 245 :

In (1) the vowel -e in ante is elided, i. e., left out in scansion before the vowel o- in the next word ora.

In (2) the diphthong -ae in praeclae is elided before accingunt.

In (3) the -um is elided before the interca.

In (4) et is not affected in scansion by the h in haec.

In (5) -um in proruptum is elided before e- in et.

(b) The non-elision of a final vowel or diphthong before an initial vowel, h or diphthong is called a hiatus, e. g.,

B. I, 16 :

Pōsthābi|tā 'cōllū|issē Sū|mō, hīc| illtus |ārmā.

B. I, 617 :

Tūne ille | Āenē|ās quēm | Dārdānū|ō Ān|chisāē .|

The first hiatus may be explained by the rule that in the case of a proper noun, and a sense pause, the hiatus is admissible. In the second example considerable license is admitted in the case of a proper noun.

(c) Synaeresis is defined as the union of two vowels in sound which should be properly pronounced separately : as -ei in Oiēi ; -eu in Ilioneus ; -ei in dēinde. This figure is also called Synizesis ; e. g.,

B. I, 120 :

B. I, 195 :

Vind |bōn|ās quāē | dēindē |cād|is dñēr|ūrāt |Āc|ēstēs.

(d) Synapheia is the principle of continuous scansion. It sometimes happens that a final vowel, diphthong, or -m preceded by a vowel at the end of a line is elided before the initial vowel, diphthong, or h at the beginning of the next line ; e. g.,

B. I, 332 :

Iactē|mār dōcē|ās ig|nūr(i) | hōmī|nāmquē |lō|cōrūm|qu(e)
Ērrāmus.

So also in B. I, 448 :

*Āerĕā|cū grādī|būs sūr|gēbānt |liminā,| nēxāē|que
Āerĕ trābēs.*

In these lines the final vowel in -que is struck out before the initial vowel in the first word of the succeeding line.

Hypermet-rical lines.

There are altogether twenty-one hypermetrical lines in Vergil.

(e) Ictus is the beat of the foot which corresponds with the elevation of the voice (ἄρσις). This naturally falls on the first syllable of the foot, and we, therefore, find cases occurring in which a syllable naturally short is lengthened, simply from its occupying the natural position of a long syllable.

(1) B. I, 308 :

(2) B. I, 478 :

(3) B. I, 651 :

THE TROJAN WAR.

Like Homer's Iliad and Odyssey, the Aeneid is based upon events supposed to have happened in that legendary and romantic episode known as the Trojan War. These events, as depicted in literature, are almost entirely poetic and not in the strict sense historical. The legend is that once there was a wealthy and powerful city named Ilium or Troja on the coast of Asia Minor. In a contest between the three goddesses, Venus, Juno and Minerva, for the Apple of Discord, Venus was awarded the prize by the young Trojan prince Paris (or Alexander), son of King Priam. Paris, who at the time was being brought up as a shepherd boy on Mt. Ida and had been chosen judge for the contest, was bribed by Venus with the promise that she would give him the most beautiful woman in the world for wife. This woman proved to be Helen, wife of Menelaus, king of Sparta.

Paris, on a visit to the court of Menelaus during the absence of the latter, enticed Helen to elope with him to Troy. Menelaus, to recover his wife and punish the Trojans for harboring her, assembled a large army of Greeks, led by various petty Grecian kings and commanded by Menelaus' brother Agamemnon, king of Argos and Mycenae. This army laid siege to Troy. After the siege had lasted ten years, by the stratagem of a huge wooden horse filled with soldiery the city was captured and burnt, and all but a remnant of the inhabitants put to the sword. This remnant scattered to different localities around the coast of the Mediterranean. According to the Roman legend, Aeneas, led by the Fates, conducted a party of Trojans to the west coast of Italy and there founded the colony from which afterwards grew the "Eternal City," Rome.

STORY OF THE AENEID.

Aeneas was the son of Anchises and Venus, and thus connected with the royal family of Troy. In the earlier stages of the war he did not take any part, and not till his flocks were driven from Mount Ida by Achilles did he lead his followers against the Greeks. When the Greeks, after a siege of ten years, took the city, according to Vergil, Aeneas carries off on his shoulders the aged Anchises, takes young Ascanius by the hand while Creusa follows behind, and escapes to Mount Ida. His wife Creusa, in the confusion of the siege, is lost in the darkness. He appears to have left the burning city at the end of the war, when, with a fleet of twenty vessels and a number of followers, he set sail from Troy in quest of lands destined by the fates. He first lands in Thrace, and begins to build a city, but is deterred by the ghost of the murdered Polydorus. Next he sails to Delos, then to Crete, where the Penates appear to Aeneas, and declare his destined home to be in Italy, the native land of Dardanus. Again he sets sail and is driven by a storm to Strophades, Leucadia, and Chaonia where he finds Helenus, a seer, son of Priam, and king of that country, who tells Aeneas to sail round Sicily. The ships of Aeneas land in the country of the Cyclops Polyphemus, near Aetna, when Achaemenides, whom Ulysses had left behind in the cave of the Cyclops, advises them to flee from the land of Polyphemus.

Guided by Achaemenides, Aeneas passes Scylla and Charybdis and lands at Drepanum, where Anchises dies. He then starts out for Italy, but stress of weather drives him on the coast of Africa, near Karthage. Juno, aware that Rome one day would conquer her beloved Karthage, had an unrelenting hatred against Aeneas, and instigated Aeolus to let loose the winds and wreck the Trojan fleet. Neptune, however, interferes in time and calms the troubled waves. The Trojans find a sheltered harbour for the seven remaining ships and soon they land. They afterwards discover that they are on the coast of Africa. Jupiter had meanwhile despatched Mercury to prepare Dido to give a kind welcome to the shipwrecked followers of Aeneas. Surrounded by a cloud, and invisible to all, Aeneas and Achates go to explore the country. They see the towers and walls of the youthful city, and are surprised to find their missing comrades holding audience with the queen. Under the guise of Ascanius, Cupid is sent by Venus to kindle love in the breast of Dido. Dido is married to Aeneas. Other fortunes the fates had in store for him. Mercury is sent to remonstrate with Aeneas. In spite of the love and entreaties of Dido, the order is given to sail, and once more the Trojans steer for Italy. Dido, through grief for her fickle lover, mounts the funeral pile and stabs herself, and then her attendants burn her body. He arrives a second time at Drepanum, and then for nine days celebrates the funeral games in honour of his dead father, Anchises. While the games were in progress, some of the Trojan women, despairing of ever having a settled home, fire the ships. Jupiter sends rain and puts out the fire, but not till after four ships are destroyed. Aeneas leaves in Sicily all the elderly people and all weary of roaming, where they found Segesta. The rest sail for Italy and land at Cumae. Then he meets the Sibyl, under whose guidance he descends to the lower world and learns the full details of his future life. Latins, king of the land on which Aeneas landed, had a daughter Lavinia, whose hand is sought for by Turnus, king of the Rutuli. The Latins summon allies from all sides to repel the foreigners, while Aeneas obtains the aid of Evander, and seeks the assistance of the Etrurians. While he is absent, the Trojan camp is attacked without success by Turnus and the Latins. Aeneas returns and displays his prowess in battle. He slays Mezentius, the Etrusean, and Turnus, and afterwards marries Lavinia.

THE CONTENTS OF THE FIRST BOOK.

The poet invokes the Muse to sing of the wanderings of Aeneas o'er the deep, and his sufferings while attempting to lay the foundations of imperial Rome. The trials of the hero are ascribed to the unrelenting rage of cruel Juno.

Karthage, a city of Africa, was founded of yore by settlers from Tyre. This city, rich in wealth and proud in war, was cherished by Juno before all other places. She, however, was apprehensive of its destruction because she had heard that a remnant of the Trojans were sailing o'er the sea, whose descendants were destined in after days to overthrow her beloved Karthage. The slight offered to her beauty in the decision of Paris, son of Priam, the late king of Troy, and the honours lately heaped on Ganymede tended to foster her burning hate, and she accordingly determined to keep the Trojans away from Italy.

The Trojans had left the port of Drepanum in Sicily, where Anchises, the father of Aeneas, had died, and were dashing through the foaming brine with brazen keel. Juno comes to Aeolus, the god of winds, and instigates him to send a storm to overwhelm the Trojans in the deep. In case he carries out her purpose, she promises the fairest of all her nymphs, Deiopeia, as a wife.

Aeolus lets loose the winds, and in an instant the East, South, and South-West winds lash the waves into fury. Then follow the shrieks of the sailors, the creaking of cables, the darkening clouds which veil the sky and brood o'er the deep, the peals of thunder, the gleaming lightning. While all things threatened instant death, Aeneas wishes that he had died at Troy before his father's eyes. One ship—that commanded by the trusty Orontes—went down and the rest are disabled.

Meanwhile Neptune, the lord of the main, felt that a storm had been let loose, and great was his wrath, as he knew well the wiles of his sister Juno and her wrath against the Trojans. He summons to him the winds, and upbraids their king for his presumption in allowing them to have free scope. The sea is calmed by the soothing words of the lord of the sea.

*The weary Trojans land:
157-179.*

The toil-worn crew of Aeneas make for the nearest shores, and turn to the coasts of Africa. There is a bay, protected by an island, affording a safe shelter from every wind, and in this Aeneas takes refuge, with seven ships saved out of twenty. The weary Trojans land. Achates strikes a spark from the flint and tries to start a fire. The corn damaged by the waves is brought out of the vessels, and bruised to make a meal for the shipwrecked Trojans.

*Aeneas mounts a rock: espies deer: shoots

number among the surviving
222.*

Aeneas, in the meantime, mounted a cliff in hopes of seeing some of the tempest-tossed ships that he had missed. No vessel is in sight. He espies, however, three stags, each followed by a herd of deer, on the shore. Seizing a bow and arrows from his trusty henchman Achates, he lays low seven of the deer. He returns to the harbour and divides the number equally among the ships—one to each. He also distributes the wine which kind Aecetes had given to the Trojans as they were leaving Sicily. With words of cheer he bids his comrades bear up under their hardships. They then prepare the meal and enjoy their repast, after which they talk for a long time of the fate of their lost comrades.

*Venus complains to Jupiter of the promises unfulfilled and of the woes of the Trojans:
223-250.*

Jupiter, meanwhile, was gazing on the realms of Africa when Venus, with tearful eyes reminds "the father of gods and men" of the promises that he had uttered as to the destiny of the Trojans. Jupiter bids her spare her fears, assuring her that the decrees of the fates are immutable and that she shall yet behold the Trojan Aeneas wage a great war in Italy, subdue hostile tribes, build walls, reign in Latium, and subdue the Rutuli. Iulus (also called Ascanius), son of Aeneas, shall reign in Lanuvium and shall fortify Alba Longa. After a period of three hundred years, Ilia, a priestess, shall bear to Mars twin sons, Romulus and Remus, and these shall found an empire to which shall be set "no bounds of realm, no term of years." Even cruel Juno shall join in cherishing the Romans as "lords of the world". As years roll on Greece shall be subdued, and Honor and Vesta shall rule the world and the dread Gates of War shall be closed for ever.

Mercury is sent from heaven to inspire in Dido, the queen of Karthage, a friendly feeling towards the Trojans who are shipwrecked on her shore. Mercury is sent to earth: 297-304.

All night long after the meal Aeneas broods o'er his own woes and the lot of his comrades. As soon as day dawns he determines to go forth and explore the shores to which he had come in his wanderings. After safely mooring his fleet under the shelter of a rock, he sallies forth with trusty Aelates. In the midst of a wood he meets his mother, who was dressed like a Spartan huntress. Venus enquires whether Aeneas had seen any of her sisters wandering there. After telling Venus that he had seen no one, he hints that her look is more than human, and that she is evidently of divine race: he begs her to lighten their sorrows, and tell to what land they had come. Aeneas meets his mother: 305-334.

Venus tells him he is in Africa and then unfolds the story of Dido's wrongs: how the queen, who was from Tyre, had a husband Syehaeus, and a brother Pygmalion in wickedness far beyond other men; how the savage Pygmalion killed the unwary Syehaeus at the altar; how the young Dido collected some companions, sailed away to the west and came to the spot on which the rising city of Karthage was now being built. Venus tells the tales of Dido's wrongs: 335-371.

Aeneas tells his name and his race. Italy is the goal of his wanderings. With twenty ships he embarked on the sea, the mother-goddess guiding his course, but only seven battered ships remain. Aeneas tells his tale: 373-386.

She announces to him that his comrades, whom he thought lost, will be safe. She points out twelve swans, with joyous notes circling in the air; so the twelve ships with full sail are either entering or have entered the harbour. At the end of her prophecy he recognizes his mother, who shrouds them in a cloud, so that no one may see them, though they may see all. She takes Aeneas and Aelates veiled in this cloud to Karthage. Venus draws a happy omen and reveals herself: 387-417.

Aeneas, from the hill o'erlooking Karthage, admires the buildings, where lately stood rude Numidian huts. Eagerly the Carthaginians ply their work, some building walls, others a citadel; some choosing sites for houses, and marking out the boundaries with a furrow; others digging a harbour, Description of Karthage: 418-430.

and others still laying the foundations for a high theatre. Among the throng he mingles still unseen.

Aeneas examines the temple:
430-440.

Walls of a temple:
441-493.

The queen with her retinue enters the temple:
494-519.

Dido replies:

Dido welcomes him:
613-642.

Aeneas sends for Iulus:
643-656.

Venus substitutes Cupid for Ascanius:
657-696.

In the midst of the city is a sacred grove, where Dido was building a temple in honour of Juno. While Aeneas was waiting for the arrival of the queen, he examines with scrutinizing gaze each object in the great temple. Here he sees depicted the scenes of the Trojan war, the crested Achilles pursuing in flight the Trojans, the snow white tents of Rhesus, the flight of Troilus, the procession of Trojan women going to the temple of Minerva to propitiate the dread goddess, the dragging of Hector round the walls of Troy: all these scenes and many more were witnessed by Aeneas.

Meanwhile the queen, attended by her courtiers, enters the temple. With all the graceful dignity of Diana, when she leads the dance, Dido enters the temple and takes her seat as queen and judge of her subjects. Aeneas sees, also amid the throng attending the queen, Antheus, Sergestus, and the valiant Cloanthus, and other Trojans supposed to be lost.

Ilioneus tells Dido that they are a shipwrecked remnant of the Trojans on their way to Italy. He also hints at the probable loss of Aeneas. Dido assures them of her assistance and protection, and promises them that she will send them to Sicily, if they desire it, or allow them to settle at Karthage. As for Aeneas, she promised to send trusty men to see whether he had been cast on shore, or not.

The cloud which had enshrouded the forms of Aeneas and Achates now parts and immediately Aeneas shone forth in beauty amid the clear light, declaring himself. With grateful heart he prays for a blessing on Dido for her kindness to his comrades.

Dido welcomes Aeneas to her palace, which was furnished with princely splendour for the approaching banquet. She also proclaims a public festival.

Aeneas sends Achates to the fleet to bring Iulus (also called Ascanius) to the city. Gifts also were to be brought from the ships as presents for the queen.

The wily goddess Venus, meanwhile causes Cupid to be transformed in form and mien into Ascanius, and accompany the faithful Achates with presents to the queen.

The Trojans and Tyrians, amid the joyous halls, recline on the embroidered couches. The gifts of Aeneas are admired by all. Cupid embraces Aeneas and then Dido, and both the Trojan leader and the Karthaginian queen are inspired with mutual flame.

Amid the splendour of the feast Cupid inspires the queen with love: 697-722

After the first part of the banquet, the tables are withdrawn and golden goblets crowned with wine are set before the guests. The queen prays that this day may be long remembered by the Tyrians. A libation is then poured on the table and the cup is handed to the courtiers of the queen to drink. The long haired Iopas sings songs taught him of yore by great Atlas. At the request of the queen Aeneas is asked to tell the story of the Fall of Troy, which occupies Books II and III of the Aeneid.

The libation: invocation of the gods: song of Iopas: 723-756.

A LITERARY STUDY OF BOOK I.

The Aeneid as a work of art.

The Aeneid is a work of art and as such deserves to be read and admired, not merely translated, in our schools. It is Poetry. It is a thing of beauty. It appeals to the imagination as few works of art in the world's history have been able to do. It was written to please, to stir the finer and grander emotions, not to instruct. It was written to rouse a nation to enthusiasm over its own boasted ancestry. It is one of the few great Epics of literature. It has a hero and has a plot. It is tragic, grand and sublime, and at the same time it abounds in passages picturesque, beautiful and pathetic.

The Artistic grouping of the pictures in Book I.

Those students whose privilege it is to study Book I of the Aeneid have, like Aeneas in the temple of Queen Dido, an opportunity of viewing at the very threshold of this great work a panorama of beautiful and romantic pictures, artistically grouped by a master hand. Let us pause as we enter and take a rapid survey of the whole.

1. The weary hero near the end of his wanderings arouses the anger of the mighty Queen of Heaven.

2. She enlists the aid of the God of Winds.—The Storm and the Shipwreck.

3. Neptune rises from the sea, rebukes the winds and lulls the storm.

4. Aeneas consoles his comrades on the shore. (Note the exquisite beauty and harmony of the picture of the haven of refuge.)

5. Juppiter in fatherly contemplation of the world below.—Venus tearfully pleads with him on behalf of her beloved Trojans.—Jove's consoling kiss.—He depicts the future glories of Rome.—“Parce metu, Cytherea.”

6. Mercury, the winged messenger of the gods, descends to Karthage on his errand of peace.

7. Venus disguised as a huntress intercepts Aeneas. She tells of Dido and Karthage and reassures her son.—Revealing herself in all her god-like beauty, she departs.

8. Aeneas journeys on.—From a hill-top he views the newly building city. He enters, surrounded and hidden by a cloud.

9. The temple of Juno.—Pictares from the war of Troy.—Aeneas' astonishment and new gleam of hope. (Note the poetic irony. It is in the temple of the very goddess who drove him on this shore that Aeneas finds deliverance.)

10. Enter Dido in queenly splendour.—Sudden appearance of the shipwrecked comrades of Aeneas.—Their appeal for protection and their kindly welcome.—Aeneas revealed.

11. The Banquet.—Cupid substituted for the boy Iulus (note the tender appeal of Venus to her son).—Dido luxuriates in the presence of Aeneas and all unconsciously fondles the boy of the fatal dart.

Passages of Special Beauty.

V. V. 34-49 - Juno's Anger :

Note the fine contrast between the happy mariners swiftly ploughing through the deep and the sullen anger of the goddess gradually rising to passionate rage.

V. V. 51-63.—The Cave of the Winds :

The struggling pack howling to get free. —The King with his sceptre on high controls them.—(Note the elaborate Personification.)

V. V. 81-123—The Storm :

The winds rush forth as to battle—the billows rise—the men shout—the cordage creaks—“black night broods o'er the deep”—the lightnings flash—the sailors are terrified and Aeneas despairs. (Observe the Method in the details.)

V. V. 124-156.—Neptune lulling the Storm :

His fine rage at the usurpation of his authority.—His imperious dismissal of the winds.—His angry message to Aeolus—the elaborate Simile.—(How do the details of the Simile accord with the original? Is it the manner of quelling the storm or the effect that is illustrated? Is the attitude of the winds to Neptune one of reverence or one of fear? Does "pectora mulcet" really apply to Neptune?)

V. V. 159-169.—The Haven of Refuge :

Observe the Method : the approach—the quiet bay inside—vista of woods in the back-ground—the cave and abode of the Nymphs on the shore—the general air of peace and security that pervades the picture.

V. V. 198-209.—Aeneas consoling his Companions :

A fine example of that sweetness and tender melancholy that pervade the pathos of Vergil ; e.g., "o passi graviores,"—"foran et haec olim meminisse iuvabit,"—"spem vultu simulat, premit altum corde dolorem."

V. V. 419-436.—The newly building City :

Note the point of view—the variety of details impressing the busy nature of the scene—this further emphasized by the simile of the bee-hive.

A PAIR OF PORTRAITS :

V. V. 496-502—Dido.

V. V. 588-593—Aeneas.

V. V. 664-688—Venus' appeal to Cupid.

V. V. 697-711—The Banquet.

V. V. 712-722—Dido and Cupid.

HISTORY OF VERGIL'S TEXT.

Not the least of the advantages to be derived from the study of the Classics is the ability to project one's self into the spirit of the past. The effect of this in widening one's mental view, in increasing his sympathies for man as man, need not here be dwelt upon. That we may be able to carry our pupils back with us through the centuries to Vergil's own time, until they virtually live amid his surroundings, and breathe the atmosphere of his early influence, is a "consummation devoutly to be wished." A knowledge of the stages through which Vergil's text has passed before reaching us in the garb of a nineteenth century school edition, may be helpful to this end.

The young student of Vergil is very apt to forget that the neatly printed, carefully punctuated text he uses at school, is not at all like the text as it left the hands of Vergil, or as it was circulated amongst school-boys and Vergil's numerous other readers of the first twelve centuries. He may find it hard to realize that within fifty years after the poet's death the Aeneid was a school text-book, thumbed and conned by Roman boys and expounded by Roman schoolmasters.

A glance at the facsimile on page xxxi will give the pupil some idea of those early characters which were the only means of reproducing the writings of Vergil. When he hears of corrupt passages and disputed readings, let him bear in mind that the first copies were made by hand and with great labour, by persons who perhaps did not in all cases understand what they were copying; that there were countless chances of mistaking Vergil's own handwriting in the first place; and that as the centuries of copying went on these chances increased greatly. It is not strange that Vergil's own handwriting has not come down to us, when we remember that none of the many copies made during the first three or four centuries are extant. In having one as early as the 4th or 5th century we are fortunate, for in the case of many other Latin writers we have nothing earlier than the 8th or 9th century.

All this time, however, Vergil was being read, studied and annotated. We hear of one commentator who said that he had seen a man who had once seen a genuine piece of Vergil's own handwriting. Servius made profuse annotations in the third or fourth century. Other grammarians of that age quoted whole lines from Vergil to illustrate their expositions of syntax, so that even from these quotations an almost complete text could be built up.

But the ground-work of all modern text criticisms is to be found in four great MSS. of the 4th and 5th centuries. These, verified by the earlier grammarians, who must have quoted from independent sources, are in all disputes the ultimate court of appeal. But even these are not conclusive, for the grammarians supply readings that are to be found in none of them. It is altogether likely that the four great MSS. were all based on one common "Archetype" or original copy, and that whatever mistakes this copy contained have been perpetuated as the genuine text of Vergil. Hence editors can with impunity go on "conjecturing" and "emending" for all time.

The four great MSS. are :

1. 'Vatican,' usually designated by critics F.; at present to be seen in the Vatican Library at Rome; probably of the 4th century.
2. 'Medicean,' M.; in the Laurentian Library at Florence; probably of the 5th century.
3. 'Palatine,' P.; in the Vatican Library, brought thither from the Palatine Library at Heidelberg on its capture by the Bavarians in 1622; probably of the 4th century.

4. 'Roman, R.; in the Vatican Library. The character (large capitals: see facsimile, which is reduced one half from the original size) resembles that found on the walls of Pompeii, and inscriptions of the 1st and 2nd centuries; but it is probably of the 4th or 5th century. The great critic Ribbeck ranks R. as the least reliable of the four, and justly so, as may be judged from the palpable errors in the passage contained in the facsimile.

After these came the countless small letter MSS. of the 8th and 9th centuries, based upon the great four.

The period of scientific criticism, of printed editions and elaborate commentary, dates from the Revival of Learning in the 15th century. The most noted editors of modern times are Heyne, Wagner, Forbiger, Conington, Nettleship, Ribbeck and Dr. Henry. The last named was an indefatigable Irish physician, who spent several years on the continent consulting and comparing MSS., in which work he was ably assisted by his daughter. He has left two monumental works entitled 'Aeneidea' and 'Twelve Years' Voyage of Discovery in the First Six Books of the Aeneis.' The other commentators are frequently referred to.

The best English poetical translations of Vergil are those by Conington and by Bowen, and the best prose versions are by Mackail, and by Lonsdale and Lee.

Facsimile of Codex Romanus (4th or 5th Century) of Vergil, Geo. III., 145-149, illustrating the earliest approach extant to Vergilian handwriting. For purposes of printing reduced almost one half.

VERGIL, THE ROMAN POET.

P. VERGILI MARONIS AENEIDOS

LIBER PRIMUS.

Preface and Invocation.

ILLE ego, qui quondam gracili modulatus avena
carmen, et egressus silvis vicina coegi
ut quamvis avido parerent arva colono, gratum opus agricolis ; at nunc horrentia Martis
arma virumque cano, Troiae qui primus ab oris Italiam fato profugus Lavinaque venit litora, multum ille et terris iactatus et alto vi superum, saevae memorem Iunonis ob iram, multa quoque et bello passus, dum conderet urbem inferretque deos Latio, genus unde Latinum Albanique patres atque altae moenia Romae.

Musa, mihi causas memora, quo numine laeso, quidve dolens regina deum tot volvere casus insignem pietate virum, tot adire labores inpulerit. tantaene animis caelestibus irae ?

The story begins; origin of Juno's hatred of Troy.

urbs antiqua fuit—Tyrii tenuere coloni—Karthago, Italiam contra Tiberinaque longe ostia, dives opum studiisque asperrima belli ; quam Iuno fertur terris magis omnibus unam 15
 posthabita coluisse Samo : hic illius arma, hic currus fuit ; hoc regnum dea gentibus esse, si qua fata sinant, iam tum tenditque fovetque.
 progeniem sed enim Troiano a sanguine duci audierat, Tyrias olim quae verteret arces ; 20 hinc populum late regem belloque superbum venturum excidio Libyae : sic volvere Parcas.
 id metuens veterisque memor Saturnia belli, prima quod a Troiam pro caris gesserat Argis—necdum etiam causae irarum saevique dolores 25 exciderant animo ; manet alta mente repostum iudicium Paridis spretaeque iniuria formae, et genus invisum, et rapti Ganymedis honores—his accensa super, iactatos aequore toto Troas, reliquias Danaum atque inmitis Achilli, 30 arcebat longe Latio, multosque per annos errabar. . acti fatis maria omnia circum.
 tantæ molis erat Romanam condere gentem.

The Trojans, leaving Sicily, arouse the anger of Juno.

vix e conspectu Siculae telluris in altum vela dabant laeti et spumas salis aere ruebant, 35 cum Iuno aeternum servans sub pectore vulnus haec secum : ‘ mene incepto desistere victam, nec posse Italia Teucrorum avertere regem ?
 quippe vetor fatis. Pallasne exurere classem Argivom atque ipsos potuit submergere ponto 40 unius ob noxam et furias Aiakis Oili ?
 ipsa Iovis rapidum iaculata e nubibus ignem disiecitque rates evertitque aequora ventis, illum exspirantem transfixo pectore flammis turbine corripuit scopuloque infixit acuto ; 45

She visits the home of Aeolus, God of the Winds.

talia flammato secum dea corde volutans 50
nimborum in patriam, loca feta furentibus Austris, Aeoliam venit. hic vasto rex Aeolus antro luctantes ventos tempestatesque sonoras imperio premit, ac vinclis et carcere frenat.
illi ir lignantes magno cum murmure montis 55 circum claustra fremunt ; celsa sedet Aeolus arce sceptra tenens, mollitque animos et temperat iras :
ni faciat, maria ac terras caelumque profundum quippe ferant rapidi secum verrantque per auras :
sed Pater omnipotens speluncis abdidit atris 60

Her appeal for help and the god's reply.

ad quem tum Iuno supplex his vocibus usa est :
'Aecle, namque tibi divom Pater atque hominum rex 65 et mulcere dedit fluctus et tollere vento, gens inimica mihi Tyrrhenum navigat aequor, Ilium in Italiam portans victosque Penates :
incute vim ventis submersasque obrue puppes, aut age diversos et dissiice corpora ponto. 70
sunt mihi bis septem praestanti corpore Nymphae, quarum quae forma pulcherrima Deiopea, conubio iungam stabili propriamque dicabo, omnes ut tecum meritis pro talibus annos exigat et pulchra faciat te prole parentem.' 75

35

Aeolus haec contra : 'tuus, o regina, quid optes, explorare labor ; mihi iussa capessere fas est.
tu mihi quodcumque hoc regni, tu sceptram Iovemque concilias, tu das epulis accumbere divom, nimborumque facis tempestatumque potentem.' 80

The Storm.

haec ubi dicta, cavum conversa cuspage montem inpulit in latus : ac venti velut agmine facto, qua data porta, ruunt et terras turbine perflant.
incubuere mari, totumque a sedibus imis una Eurusque Notusque ruunt creberque procellis 85 Africus, et vastos volvunt ad litora fluctus.
insequitur clamorque virum stridorque rudentum.
eripiunt subito nubes caelumque diemque Teucrorum ex oculis ; ponto nox incubat atra.
intonuere poli et crebris micat ignibus aether, 90 praesentemque viris intentant omnia mortem.
extemplo Aeneae solvuntur frigore membra ;
ingemit, et duplices tendens ad sidera palmas taliam voce refert : ' o terque quaterque beati, quis ante ora patrum Troiae sub moenibus altis 95
contigit oppetere ! o Danaum fortissime gentis Tydide, mene Iliacis occumbere campis non potuisse tuaque animam hanc effundere dextra, saevus ubi Aeacidae telo iacet Hector, ubi ingens Sarpedon, ubi tot Simois correpta sub undis 100 scuta virum galeasque et fortia corpora volvit ?'

The wreck of the fleet.

taliam iactanti stridens Aquilone procella talibus incusat, gressumque ad moenia tendit. 410 at Venus obscuro gradientes aëre saepsit, et multo nebulae circum dea fudit amictu,

Aeneas, journeying onward, admires the newly building city.

corripuere viam interea, qua semita monstrat :
 iamque ascendebant collem, qui plurimus urbi imminet adversasque aspectat desuper arces. 420 miratur molem Aeneas, magalia quondam, miratur portas strepitumque et strata viarum.
 instant ardentem Tyrii, pars ducere muros inolirique arcem et manibus subvolvere saxa, pars optare locum tecto et concludere sulco ; 425 iura magistratusque legunt sanctumque senatum ;
 hic portus alii effodiunt ; hic lata theatris fundamenta petunt alii, inmanesque columnas rupibus excidunt, scaenis decora alta futuris.
qualis apes aestate nova per florea rura 430 exercet sub sole labor, cum gentis adultos educunt fetus, aut cum liquentia mella stipant, et dulci distendunt nectare cellas, aut onera accipiunt venientum, aut agmine facto ignavum fucos pecus a praesepebus arcent : 435 fervet opus, redolentque thymo fragrantia mella.
 'o fortunati, quorum iam moenia surgunt !'
 Aeneas ait, et fastigia suspicit urbis.
 infert se saeptus nebula—mirabile dictu—per medios miscetque viris, neque cernitur ulli. 440

The temple of Juno and its pictured walls bring hope.

lucus in urbe fuit media, laetissimus umbrae, quo primum iactati undis et turbine Poeni effodere locum, quod regia Iuno monstrarat, caput ^{urbis} acris equi : sic nam fore bello egregiam et facilem victu per saecula gentem. 445 hic templum Iunoni ingens Sidonia Dido condebat, donis opulentum et numine divae, aerea cui gradibus surgebant limina nexaeque aere trabes, foribus cardo stridebat aenis.
 hoc primum in luco nova res oblata timorem 450 leniit ; hic primum Aeneas sperare salutem ausus et adflictis melius confidere rebus.

 namque sub ingenti lustrat dum singula templo reginam opperiens, dum, quae fortuna sit urbi, artificumque manus inter se operumque laborem 420 miratur, videt Iliacas ex ordine pugnas . 455 bellaque iam fama totum vulgata per orbem, constitit, et lacrimans 'quis iam locus,' inquit, 'Achate, 425 quae regio in terris nostri non plena laboris? 460 en Priamus! sunt hic etiam sua praemia laudi; sunt lacrimae rerum et mentem mortalia tangunt.

 solve metus; feret haec aliquam tibi fama salutem.
 430 sic ait, atque animum pictura pascit inani 465

Scenes from Troy portrayed in the temple.

namque videbat, uti bellantes Pergama circum hac fugerent Graii, premeret Troiana iuventus; 435 hac Phryges, instaret curru cristatus Achilles.
 nec procul hinc Rhesi niveis tentoria velis adgnoscat lacrimans, primo quae prodita somno 440 Tydides multa vastabat caede cruentus, 470 ardentisque avertit equos in castra, priusquam pabula gustassent Troiae Xanthumque bibissent.
 parte alia fugiens amissis Troilus armis, infelix puer atque inpar congressus Achilli, 475 fertur equis curruque haeret resupinus inani, lora tenens tamen; huic cervixque comaeque trahuntur per terram, et versa pulvis inscribitur hasta.
 interea ad templum non aequae Palladis ibant 445 crinibus Iliades passis peplumque ferebant 480 suppliciter, tristes et tunsae pectora palmis:
 diva solo fixos oculos aversa tenebat.
 ter circum Iliacos raptaverat Hectora muros exanimumque auro corpus vendebat Achilles.
 450 tum vero ingentem gemitum dat pectore ab imo, 485 ut spolia, ut currus, utque ipsum corpus amici tendentemque manus Priamum conspexit inermes.

se quoque principibus permixtum adgnovit Achivis, Eoasque acies et nigri Memnonis arma.
 ducit Amazonidum lunatis agmina peltis 490

Dido appears in splendour.

haec dum Dardanio Aeneae miranda videntur, dum stupet obtutuque haeret defixus in uno, 495 regina ad templum, forma pulcherrima Dido, incessit magna iuvenum stipante caterva.
 qualis in Eurotae ripis aut per iuga Cynthi exeret Diana choros, quam mille secutae hinc atque hinc glomerantur Oreades ; illa pharetram 500 fert umero, gradiensque deas supereminet omnes ; Latonae tacitum pertemptant gaudia pectus :
 talis erat Dido, talem se laeta ferebat per medios, instans operi regnisque futuris.
 tum foribus divae, media testudine templi, 505 saepta armis, solioque alte subnixa resedit.
 iura dabat legesque viris, operumque laborem partibus aequabat iustis aut sorte trahebat ;

The shipwrecked companions of Aeneas suddenly appear on the scene and ask protection of Dido.

cum subito Aeneas concursu accedere magno Anthea Sergestumque videt fortemque Cloanthum, 510
 Teucrorumque alios, ater quos aequore turbo dispulerat penitusque alias avexerat oras.
 obstupuit simul ipse, simul percussus Achates laetitiaque metuque : avidi coniungere dextras ardebant, sed res animos incognita turbat. 515 dissimulant et nube cava speculantur amicti, quae fortuna viris, classem quo litore linquant, orantes veniam, et templum clamore petebant.

postquam introgressi et coram data copia fandi, maximus Ilioneus placido sic pectore coepit : 520
 'o regina, novam cui condere Iuppiter urbem iustitiaque dedit gentes frenare superbas, Troes te miseri, ventis maria omnia vecti, oramus : prohibe infandos a navibus ignes, 525
 parce pio generi, et propius res aspice nostras.

CONNECTION OF THE JULIAN FAMILY WITH THE TROJANS

EXCURSUS ON THE OPENING LINES OF THE AENEID.

Most modern editions follow MS. authority in rejecting these lines, but as the editors of the present edition have ventured to recognize them as authentic, a full discussion of the question is appropriate. In presenting the reasons for rejecting, Mr. Page remarks as follows:—

“The following lines are sometimes placed at the commencement of the Aeneid,

*Ille ego, qui quondam gracili modulatus avena
carmen, et egressus silvis vicina coegi
ut quamvis avido parerent arva colono,
gratum opus agricolis; at nunc horrentia Martis*

‘I am that (bard) who once tuncd his lay (i.e., the Eclogues) on a slender straw, and then quitting the woods compelled the neighbouring ploughlands to answer the demands of the tiller however grasping, a work dear to husbandmen (i.e., and who subsequently wrote the Georgics); but now of war’s bristling arms I sing....’

The lines however are to be rejected for many reasons :

- (1) They are not in any good MSS., but are first mentioned by Suetonius.
- (2) Arma virumque are quoted as the first words of the Aeneid by Ovid (Tr. 2. 533), Martial (8. 56. 19), and Persius (1. 96).
- (3) The commencement arma... is an imitation of the first line of the Iliad μῆνιν ἄειδε, θεά, ... and that of the Odyssey, ἄνδρα μοι, ἔννεπε, Μοῦσα...
- (4) That a summary of the poet’s history should be introduced in the same opening sentence with a summary of the hero’s history is extremely harsh. Moreover, the sentence becomes very long and ugly; the omission too of sum twice over in the first line is very objectionable.

Milton thought the lines genuine and has imitated them at the commencement of Paradise Regained, but his taste when he imitates classical models is not always sound, and the truer ring of Paradise Lost, l. 1 should rather be compared.”

The opposite contention is that the lines were written by Vergil, but were expunged after his death by his editors Varius and Tucca under orders from Augustus, and that thus the mutilated text became the current and officially authorized one, furnishing ample ground for the error of all the "good" MSS., the earliest of which belong to the 4th century and all of which are obviously based on one archetype; see p. xxix, Introduction.

Granted that the common source of all our best MSS. was tainted, then the MSS. themselves must have been tainted, and the argument based on these MSS., as well as on the subsequent tendency of a great number of editors to follow them, becomes valueless.

The following is a summary of Mr. Henry's admirable dissertation on the subject:—

"ILLE—MARTIS" INSERTED in 18 out of 50 second class MSS.; quoted by Servius, who says they were omitted, obviously "ut causa operis obtineret principium" ("that the subject of the poem might hold first place"); accepted by 20 important editors, including N. Heinsius (1670) and Wagner (1832).

OMITTED or STIGMATIZED by 2 first-class MSS. (Rom. and Med.), 32 out of 50 second class MSS. and 19 important editors, including N. Heinsius (1704), Peerlkamp, Ladewig, Ribbeck, Conington.

Arguments in Favour of Accepting "Ille—Martis."

1. Their intrinsic merit,—modesty, simplicity, purity ("vim et elegantiam," Wagner, 1832).
2. They do not contain a single word unworthy of Vergil (Wagner, 1832).
3. No other plausible origin than Vergil's own hand has been assigned to them.
4. The turn of thought, the studied comparison of his present subject with a former subject of his own, or even with other subjects of other writers, is quite in accord with Vergil's habit.
5. Striking parallels of diction: compare with Ecl. I., 2. Ecl. x., 50. Geo. I., 99. Geo. I., 47. Geo. I., 41. Aen. XII., 124.
6. It is a much easier and safer task to strike out a passage than to add or prefix one, especially one which would fit so well.

7. We are informed by Donatus and Servius that after Vergil's death, the order was given by Augustus to Tucca and Varius to strike out whatever they might think it advisable to strike out, but not to add anything.

8. Donatus tells us that Nisus, the grammarian, used to say that he had heard "a senioribus" that Varius had actually struck out these verses.

9. From all those MSS. from which these verses are absent, other verses undoubtedly written by Vergil (e.g., Aen. II., 567-588) are absent also.

10. In Aen. VII., 37-45, there is a distinct reference to a premeditated division of the Aeneid into two parts, as foreshadowed in the disputed lines, viz., an Iliad in nunc horrentia Martis Arma, and an Odyssey in virumque, Troiae qui primus ab oris, etc.

11. As early as the age of Domitian, we find Saleius Bassus figuring Vergil's ascent from bucolic to epic poetry under the identical trope under which it is figured in these verses, viz., that of a rural musician issuing forth out of the obscurity of the woods and presenting himself before the world as a performer of the most complicated and difficult pieces.

12. Priscian, though in his Formula Interrogandi he parses ARMA VIRUMQUE CANO as first verse of the Aeneid, nevertheless in his Grammar repeatedly recognizes these verses as Vergil's.

13. Two of our greatest English poets (Spenser and Milton) were unable to find nobler commencement for two of the greatest poems in the English language, than an imitation of the commencement afforded by these lines to the Aeneid :

"Lo ! I the man whose muse whylome did maske,
As time her taught, in lowly shepheard's weeds,
Am now enforst, a farre unfitter taske,
For trumpets sterne to chaunge mine oaten reeds,
And sing of knights', and ladies' gentle deeds."

SPENSER, Faerie Queene, I., 1.

"I who erewhile the happy garden sung
By one man's disobedience lost, now sing
Recovered paradise to all mankind
By one man's firm obedience fully tried
Through all temptation, and the tempter
Foiled in all his wiles, defeated and repulsed,
And Eden raised in the waste wilderness."

MILTON, Paradise Regained, I., 1.

13. (Henry's chief argument):

The beginning ARMA VIRUMQUE CANO would have been essentially and in itself a bad beginning; bad as being

- (1) brusque, abrupt, turgid, and devoid of the "molle atque facetum" so characteristic of Vergil's style,
- (2) ambiguous, a conflict arising between the interpretation "the warrior Aeneas," and "the wars (of Aeneas) and Aeneas (himself)."

In rejecting the argument based upon Homer, Henry says, "Very well, if the more ancient and ruder poem is to be, in all respects, the model of the more modern and highly finished; very well, if there are no excellencies in Vergil which we look in vain for in Homer; very well, if the argument is used in its full strength, and we begin the Aeneid, neither with ILLE EGO, nor with ARMA VIRUMQUE CANO, but with MUSA, MIHI CAUSAS MEMORA. Then indeed we shall have the Aeneid modelled on (not an improvement of) the Iliad and Odyssey, the whole three poems shall begin alike with the invocation of the Muse. . . ." If, however, my reader scruples, as no doubt he scruples, to go so far; if he insists, as no doubt he insists, on retaining ARMA VIRUMQUE CANO, though without parallel either in the Iliad or Odyssey, with what vis consequentiae does he insist on rejecting "ILLE—MARTIS," the explanation and complement of CANO, on the ground that there is no parallel for it either in the Iliad or the Odyssey?

Of the quotations from subsequent writers pointing to "ARMA VIRUMQUE CANO" as the beginning, Henry says, "the very utmost shown by those quotations or that can be shown by any number of such quotations, is the existence from the earliest times, perhaps even from the date of the author's death, of an Aeneid without the introductory verses, a fact undisputed, nay affirmed and maintained even by those who not less affirm and maintain that the Aeneid did not so come into the world from the creative hand of its author and parent, but only from the mutilating hands of its godfathers, and that co-existent with such mutilated Aeneid but—partly on account of imperial influence, partly on account of the invariable predominance of coarse taste over refined—far less in vogue, there was always the Aeneid as it came from the hand of Vergil."

The effect of a closer study of the question is undoubtedly in the direction of dispelling the idea that MSS. and learned editors are in all cases to be relied upon, and of creating the impression that the taste (questionable taste at the best) of Varius and Tucca, coupled with a desire to carry out the instructions of their lord and master Augustus, is to blame for the long chain of error, if error there has been, on the part of MSS., quoting authors and critical editors alike.

On the whole, therefore, it seems safer to prefix the disputed words than to omit them.

Summary.

The question may be summed up as follows:—

The words ILLE EGO—MARTIS are found in some old MSS., though not in the oldest extant; they are treated by Servius and Priscian, early commentators, as authentic; it is known that Varius and Tucca had instructions to omit but not to add; no explanation of their composition by a hand other than Vergil's has been offered: that is to say, "if Vergil did not write them, who did?"; the oldest MSS. extant (4th and 5th century) omit the lines, but these MSS. are no doubt based upon the current and official version published and circulated under imperial authority; the testimony of critical editors who base their textual decisions on a mechanical, not a literary, examination of MSS. is worthless if the MSS. themselves are worthless; likewise the evidence of quotations, based upon an inaccurate though current version; the fact that the majority follow the edited and expurgated version is natural; the very existence of the disputed preface is, in view of the circumstances, strong proof of its own authenticity, pointing as it does to an obscure though original version, frowned down by imperial disfavour; the argument based upon taste and imitation of Homer is weak at the best and, in fact, may be turned against the inventors of the argument: tastes differ, and Vergil did not always imitate Homer; he was more likely to imitate himself, vide references to parallelisms in the Eclogues and Georgics.

N.B.—The reading of the text in the present edition is placed first. The student would do well to look up the context in each case and carefully examine the difference in meaning depending upon the difference in the text. On this point see Introduction, p. xxix.

NOTES ON VERGIL'S AENEID.

BOOK I.

Note on the introductory lines, Ille ego—Martis.—For a discussion of the authenticity of these lines see Excursus, p. 25. Though the editors are of the opinion that it is safer to insert the disputed lines, as being in their judgment more likely to be the genuine product of Vergil's hand than not, still as most of the usually accepted editions begin with "arma virumque," this edition, so as to be uniform for purposes of reference, has been numbered from line 5.—Ille ego, sc. sum, making ille a predicate nominative, "I am that (poet)."—avena, lit. "an oat straw"; here "a reed-pipe," "shepherd's pipe;" the reference is to Vergil's composition of the pastoral poems called Eclogues, cf. Silvestrem tenui Musam meditaris avena, Ec. 1, 2.—egressus silvis means "turning from shepherd life,"—vicina arva refers to his didactic poem on agriculture, the Georgics; vicina, "neighbouring" suggests the close connection between the two kinds of poetry.—quamvis an adv., "however (greedy)."—gratum opus in apposition to the clause "coegi ut, etc."—at nunc horrentia Martis arma, the closing words of the fourth line are to be construed continuously with the fifth line or v. 1 of the text, horrentia qualifying arma the object of cano.—The usual text begins abruptly "Arms and the man I sing." The introductory lines form a preface tracing the poet's gradual progress from pastoral and didactic-agricultural poetry to the loftier and grander Epic.

- 1—Arma virumque cano: "I sing of arms and the man." Vergil observes the custom of epic poets by announcing his subject at the outset. Cp. the opening lines of the Iliad, Odyssey and Paradise Lost.—arma may be used here to show the contrast between the subject of the Aeneid and that of the Georgics (cp. the opening line of Georgic 1), in which the theme, viz., the occupations of rustic life, is announced.—virum, referring to the deeds of Aeneas. Distinguish cāno and cāno.—qui—litora: "who of old from the coasts of Troy came, an exile of fate, to Italy and the shore of Lavinium."—primus: Heyne and Wagner, finding a difficulty in reconciling the usual meaning of primus with the statement of Antenor's previous settlement, mentioned v. 242, make primus = olim, "of old." Gallia Cisalpina was not formally included in Italia Propria till 42 B.C., and possibly was not considered by Vergil as a part of Italy Proper. Distinguish ora = ἀκτή, the land or district on the sea; litus = ῥηγιμίν, the land covered by the breakers of the sea; ripa = ὄχθη, the bank of a river.
- 2—Italiam = ad Italiam: Vergil, with many other poets, sometimes omits prepositions after verbs of motion: cp. Aen. 1, 365, devenere locos; Shaks. Julius Caesar 1, 2: "But ere we could arrive the spot proposed."—fato may be taken (1) with profugus as above, abl. of instr.; or (2) with venit, abl. manner. In some compound words pro is short, though it is usually long.—Lavinaque: others read Lavini- aque. In scansion, if the latter reading is adopted, i is consonantal, i.e. pronounced y.
- 3-6—Ille—Latio: "hard driven on land and on the deep by the violence of heaven, for cruel Juno's unforgetful anger, and hard beset in war also, ere he might found a city and carry his gods into Latium."— ille: cp. Homeric ὃ γὰρ, not the subject of iactatus (est), but in apposition with qui.—terris—alto: local ablatives.—superam = superorum, scil. deorum.—multa—passus, like iactatus, a participle, lit. "much, too, having suffered in war also."—dum—conderet: "in his attempts to build." The idea of purpose is implied.—Latio, dat. = in Latium in prose.

6—Unde = a quo, scil., ortum est: "from whom (sprung)." Some think that the three stages of the growth of Rome are referred to, viz., the original settlement at Lavinium, the transference of power to Alba Longa, and the final selection of Rome as the seat of empire. The Latins dwelt in the broad plain between the Sabine mountains and the sea, and traced their descent to King Latinus. The word Latini means the dwellers of the plain: cp. latus, πλάτος, Eng. flat; for the loss of the initial mute, cp. lanx, πλάξ; lavo, πλύνειν. Vergil is incorrect in saying that the Latins were descended from Aeneas, as they existed before his advent: cp. Livy, I, 1. Their chief town was Lavinium (now Pratica).

7—Albani patres: Alba Longa was the head of a confederacy of thirty Latin towns. After its destruction by Tullus Hostilius, the leading citizens were transferred to Rome, and became incorporated in the common state. Many of the noble families of Rome, notably the Iulii, traced their descent to the Albans.—Alba Longa occupied a site probably near the convent of Palazzuolo.—moenia (rt. MUN, to defend; cp. ἀ-μύν-ειν), the walls for defensive purposes; murus (mun-rus, also rt. MUN), a wall of any kind; paries (rt. PAR, to separate), the partition walls of a house; maceria, a garden wall.—allae Romae, "of stately Rome." Rome at first occupied the Palatine. Afterwards the Capitoline, Aventine, Esquiline, Coelian, Viminal, and Quirinal hills were included. Also the Pincian, Vatican, and Janiculan hills, on the Etruscan side, were brought within the boundaries of the city under Aurelius.

8—Musa: Vergil, following the example of Homer, invokes the muse and refers the whole plot to the gods. Calliope was the muse of epic poetry.—quo numine laeso: there are several ways of taking these words; (1) some supply, impulsus fuerit, "by what offended deity was he (Aeneas) constrained;" (2) numine = voluntate, "what purpose (of Juno) being thwarted;" (3) quo = qua de causa, "for what reason, her (i.e. Juno's) will being thwarted;" (4) ob quam laesionem numinis, "on account of what affront to her purpose;" (5) "for what offence to the majesty of heaven." The last is probably correct. The first is objectionable because Juno has been mentioned as the offended deity.

- 9—Quidve dolens: "or in what vexation;" lit. "resenting what." For case of quid.—tot volvere casus: "to run the round of so many misfortunes." This poetic u. e. of infinitive with hortor, ero, suadeo is common for the prose construction of ut with subj.
- 10—Insignem pietate: the hero of the Aeneid is distinguished by the epithet pius, which means that he had filial affection as well as religious reverence. He rescues his father from burning Troy (Aen. 2, 723); also the gods (Aen. 2, 717).—atire, "to face."
- 11—Impulerit: indirect question.—animis, taken either a dative, or a local ablative.—irae, the plural, denotes the various manifestations of her passions.
- 12—Urbs antiqua: said with reference to Vergil's own time. Karthage was founded probably about 853 B. C.—Tyrrii coloni: "settlers from Tyre;" the Tyrians founded also Tunes and Utica, near Karthage.
- 13—Italiam—longe: longe may be taken either as modifying the whole phrase, "over against Italy and the Tiber's mouths afar;" or equivalent to longe distantia, "the far distant Tiber's mouths."—Italiam contra=contra Italiam. What direction is Karthage from Rome?
- 14—Dives opum: compare dives; decline opum. The genitive of respect is common with adjectives of plenty and want.—studiis: abl. of respect: "in its passion for;" see note on irae for plural, vs. 11. Vergil here, no doubt, alludes to the experience of the Romans in the Punic Wars.
- 15—Quam coluisse: the Romans identified the Syrian Astarte (the Ashtaroth of the Bible) with Juno.—unam, "especially;" unus gives to superlatives or to words implying a superlative force (magis quam omnes terras), an emphatic meaning: cp. eis; : εἷς ἀπῖστος: "by far the best."
- 16—Posthabita Samo: "in preference to Samos," lit., "Samos being held in less regard." Herodotus (3.50) mentions a famous temple of Here (Iuno) at Samos. In scanning this line, notice that the hiatus in Samo is relieved by the caesural pause. This especially occurs when a long vowel is in the arsis of the foot: see introduction, p. xviii.

- 17—Currus : Juno is rarely represented as a war goddess, though we have some instances : cp. Hom. II. 5, 720-3.—hoc—fovetque : “the goddess even now strives, and fondly hopes that this may be the seat of empire for the nations, if in any way the fates permit.”—hoc is attracted to the gender of the predicate.—sinant : subj. of intermediate clause in virtual oblique narration.—iam tum=etiam tum : “even then,” at that early period.
- 18—Sed enim : “yet indeed,” “however.” This is usually explained by an ellipsis (cp. ἀλλὰ γάρ) for sed (metuit Karthagini) enim, etc., “yet (she feared for Karthage) for she had heard a race was issuing from the blood of Troy.”—duci : present as now in the act of being accomplished.
- 20—Tyrias—arces : “which should hereafter overthrow her Tyrian towers.” The destruction of Karthage (146 B.C.) is referred to.—verteret=everteret : subj. of purpose.—olim may refer to either the past or future ; here it refers to the latter : properly (fr. ollus, ille), “at that time.”
- 21—Hinc=a qua progenie. —late regem=(by enallage) late regnantem : cp. the Homeric εἰρηνκτεῖων.—belloque superbum : “tyrannous in war.”
- 22—Excidio Libyae : “to destroy Libyae ;” for the two datives see F. 134, 1 ; P. II, 101. Some read excidio, but excidio is not for excidio, but for ex-scizio (ex, scindo) : cp. the forms exfero, exfari, exfodio, found in old writers.—volvere Parcas, scil. audierat : there is reference here to the thread of destiny. The Parcae (rt. PAR, “to allot :” cp. pars, partio, ἔ-πορ-ων) were the goddesses of birth and death : three in number, Nona, Decuma, Morta, and so the arbiters of human destiny. They were identified with the Greek Μοῖραι (μειρομαι, to allot), Clotho, Lachesis, and Atropos, whose duties are included in the foll. line :—Clotho colum retinet, Lachesis net, et Atropos occat : cp. Milton’s Lycidas— “Comes the blind Fury with the abhorred shears,
And slits the thin-spun life.”
- 23—Metuens : “fearful of that ;” metuere, to dread with anxiety some future evil ; timere, to fear an impending danger ; vereri, a respectful fear of some superior being ; formidare, to dread.—veteris belli : the war against Troy.—Saturnia, scil. filia, or dea, according to the Greek theogony. Here (Juno) was the daughter of Kronos who was identified by the Romans with Saturn. The Romans, however, represent no relationship between Juno and Saturn.

- 24—Ad Troiam: ad may be taken (1)=adversus, "against," or (2)=apud, "at."—Argis: here the town is put for the inhabitants=Argivis, and this for Graecis. Here, or Juno, was worshipped specially at Argos, one of the chief cities of Argolis.—prima, "before all others," or some say, "long ago:" cp. primus, v. 2.
- 25—Necdum animo: "nor had the springs of her anger nor the bitterness of her vexation yet gone out of her mind;" etiam=et iam.—causae irarum: the motives of wrath; the plural irae refer to the many manifestations of the passion; see note v. II.—exciderant; "had faded;" distinguish in meaning excido, excido.
- 26—Animo: in prose ex animo.—alta—repositum=alte (in) mente repositum: "laid away deep in her mind."
- 27—Iudicium Paridis: Paris was judge in the contest of Juno, Venus and Minerva for the golden apple; see Tennyson's Oenone.—spretaque—formae: "and the insult offered to her slighted beauty;" objective genitive.
- 28—Genus inuisum: referring to the birth of Dardanus, the son of Jupiter and Eleōtra and founder of the Trojan line. (See genealogical tree, p. 24.)—rapti, scil., ad caelum.
- 29—His—super: "fired with this, too," i.e., by what has been said in the foregoing lines.—super=insuper, "besides," i.e. in addition to her anxiety for Karthage.—aequore: the preposition in is omitted.
- 30—Reliquias Danaum: mention other words used in the plural only. Danaum=Danaorum: the subjective genitive. The following words have ūm for genitive plural: superum (v. 4), Argivum (v. 30), virum (v. 87). Vergil calls the Greeks Danai, Graii, Argivi, Pelasgi, Achivi.—Achilli: irregular form of the genitive: cp. Ulixi.
- 31—Multos: seven years: cp. v. 755.
- 32—Errabant: "(had wandered and) were still wandering."
- 33—Tantae—erat: "so vast a work it was;" the possessive predicate genitive.
- 34—Vergil, following the usual method of epic poets, plunges the reader in medias res (Horace A. P. 148), the earlier adventures being left for the hero to tell in Books II and III. The Trojans have now left the port of Drepanum in Sicily. The natural order for a connected narrative would have been Books II, III, then Book I.—in altum—laeti: "did they merrily set their sails seaward."
- 35—Vela dabant, scil., ventis.—laeti, because they expected soon to end their wanderings.—spumas salis: observe the alliteration, “the foam of the salt sea;” sal; cp. ἄλς ἦ.—aere, the bronze keels of the vessel=aereis carinis.—ruebant=ruebant.

36—Cum Iuno—secum, scil., loquitur: “when Juno, nursing the undying wound in her heart, thus communes with herself.”—sub pectore, “in her heart,” lit. “beneath her breast.” The heart was the seat of intellect according to the Romans; the lower organs were the seat of passions.—servans: cp. Burns’ Tam O’Shanter, “nursing her wrath to keep it warm.”

37—Mene—victam: “What! am I to desist from my purpose, as one baffled?” The accusative with inf. denotes indignation here.

38—Nec—regem: “and am I not able to turn the leader of the Trojans aside from Italy?”

39—Quiippe (= qui-pe): “because forsooth,” ironical; cp. δῆπov.—Pallas, epithet of Athene (Minerva), from (1) πάλλαιν, to brandish, or (2) πάλλαξ, a maiden.—Ne=noune.—Argivum: see note on Danaum, v. 30.

40—Ipsos=αὐτοῦς: “the crew themselves,” opposed to the ships.—ponto: abl. either of instrument or of place.

41—Ob noxam et furias: either “on account of the guilt and frenzy,” or (by enallage)=ob noxam furiosam: “on account of the guilty deeds committed in frenzy.”—With Oilei, scil., fili. Ajax is said to have offered violence to Cassandra, priestess of Minerva, daughter of Priam. For another account see Ajax (Proper Names). Scan this line.

42—Ipsa: “she with her own hand.” Pallas and Jupiter were the only deities who are represented as wielding the thunderbolt.

44—Pectore: abl. separation.—turbine: abl. of means.—scopulo: local abl. or dat.

46—Ast—gero: “but I who walk with stately tread, the queen of the gods, I, the sister and wife of Jove, with a single people so many years wage wars.”—ast: archaic form of at. The language of epic poetry affected archaisms. Note the majestic gait of Juno is imitated by the spondaic character of the verse: cp. vs. 405, 497.

47—Et soror et coniunx: κασιγνήτην ἄλοχόν τε: Hom. Il. 16, 432.

- 48—Gero: “have been (and still am) waging.”—quisquam: implying a negative. Distinguish quisquam, ullus and quivis, quilibet.—adorat: others read adoret: a rhetorical subjunctive.
- 49—Praeterea = posthac: “hereafter.”—imponet: fut. indic.: the readings here are very mixed. We have also imponat (subj.), and imponit (pres. indic.). The weight of MSS. evidence is in favour of adorat—imponet, although adoret—imponat would harmonize better.
- 51—We have in the following lines a lively personification of the winds. Loca—austris: “a place big with blustering blasts.” The winds mentioned in the Aeneid are: N., Boreas; N.E., Aquilo; E., Eurus; S., Notus or Auster; S.W., Africus; W., Zephyrus; N.W., Corus or Caurus; N.N.W., Iapyx. Distinguish in meaning loca, loci.
- 52—Distinguish in tense vēnit, vēnit.—antrum: a cave or grotto, as a beautiful object with reference to its romantic appearance and cooling temperature: specus, a gap with a longish opening; spelunca, a cavity in a merely physical relation, with reference to its darkness or dreadfulness.
- 53—We have here a fine example of imitative harmony (onomatopoeia), the hissing sounds of the winds being well represented by the successive s's: “the struggling winds and sounding storms.”
- 54—Imperio—frenat: “restrains beneath his sway and curbs them with fetters in his prison house.” The picture of the winds may have been suggested by the ludi Circenses, at which chariot racing was one of the chief features.—vinclis et carcere = vinclis in carcere, or some say = vinclis carceris: what figure?
- 55—Illi—fremunt: “they chaffing, while the great rock roars responsive, rage round the prison bars.” Note the alliteration.—magnū cum murmure, a substitute for the ablative absolute.
- 57—Sceptra tenens = σκηπτὸῦχος: “sceptre in hand.”—animos: “passions.”—iras: “rage:” cp. v. 25, note.
- 58—Ni archaic form of nisi: see ast, v. 48.—faciat—ferant—verrant: the pres. for impf. gives greater vividness. In prose we should have ni faceret—ferrent.—quippe, “doubtless,” ironical. Note, verrant is intransitive, “sweep.”
- 61—Molem et montes = molem montium (by hendiadys): “a mass of mountains.”—insuper: “on the top of them.”
- 62—Regemque—habeas: “and gave them such a king as knew, when bidden (by Jove), by a fixed law either to tighten or to loosen the reins."—qui—sciret, sub. of purpose.—premere, scil., habenas or ventos.—dare laxas=laxare.—iussus, scil., a Iove.

65—Namque: in prose usually etenim, introduces a self-evident reason, "seeing that." Here the particle assigns the reason of her coming to him: "I have come to you, for, as you know," etc.—divum—rex: Hom. Il. I, 544; πατήρ ἀνδρῶν τε θεῶν τε.

66—Mulcere—tollere=ut mulceas—tollas: see note on the infinitive, v. 9.—vento must be taken with both mulcere and tollere. The ancients seem to have thought that some winds calmed, while other winds raised the sea.

67—Aequor: a kind of cognate, or adverbial, accusative: cp. ἰέναι ὁδόν.

68—Ilium—Penates: the meaning seems to be that the conquered Trojans will in Italy perpetuate their race and establish their religion. The Penates, are said to be victos, as their old home Ilium was destroyed.—Penates, Roman household gods, of which each family had its own. These were worshipped with Vesta, the goddess of the hearth. Each city also had its Penates. Those of Lanuvium, the chief city of Latium, were brought by Aeneas from Troy. Afterwards they were transferred to Rome. The root of penates is from pa, or, pat, "to nourish:" cp. πατήρ, πάσις (= πότης), δεσ-πότη-ης: cp. pater, pasco, panis, penus: Eng. father. The word may therefore mean the images of "the original founders" of the clan or gens.

69—Incute—ventis: "rouse thy winds to fury;" lit. "strike strength into the winds," as if by a blow of his sceptre.—submersas: "so that they will be sunken," a proleptic use of the participle (cp. v. 29) = obruet et submerge puppes: cp. Shaks. King John, "Heat me those irons hot."

70—Diversos, scil., viros, "the crew far apart." Others read diversas, scil. naves.

71—Corpore: abl. specification.

72—Deiopea. If this be the correct reading, Deiopea is a case of inverted attraction, i.e., the antecedent is attracted into the case of the relative quae: cp. v. 573. Others read Deiopeam.

73—Iungam, scil., tibi.—conūbio: to get over the difficulty of scansion, some take this word as a trisyllable, making i consonant, i.e. = y. Menstr (on Lucr. III, 776) shows, however, that the quantity may be conūbio.—propriam=perpetuam: "and grant her to thee as thy wife for ever:" cp. Ecl. 7, 31.

- 75—Pulchra—prole: taken either (1) with parentem, abl. quality, or (2) with faciat, as abl. means.
- 76—Tuus—explorare: “thine is the task to determine what thou chooseth.”
—optes: subj. of dependent question
- 77—Tu—tu—tu: note the emphasis: “’tis thou who gavest me whatever realm this is which I have.”—sceptra Iovemque: “the sceptre and the favour of Jove,” or by hendiadys = sceptra Iovis, “the sceptre derived from Jove.” All kingly power came from Jove.
- 79—Epulis: decline this word.—accumbere: Vergil here ascribes to the gods a custom prevalent among the Romans of his own day. The Greeks sat at meals as we do.
- 80—Potentem: “lord,” see note on Penates, v. 68.
- 81—Dicta, scil. sunt.—cavum—latus: “with spear-point turned that way, the hollow hill he struck on the side.” Note the alliteration. Distinguish in meaning lātus and lātus.
- 82—Velut agmine facto: “as in banded array.” abl. manner.
- 83—Data (est).—terras perflant: “they blow a blast across the world.”
- 84—Incubere mari: “they swooped down upon the sea:” for momentary action of perfect, cp. ἐπέσκηψαν.
- 85—Ruunt: the change of tense is supposed to give vividness to the description.—crebræ procellis Africus: “the gusty south-west wind.”
—Africus: cp. λίψ, as blowing from Libya; called by the Italians still Africo, or Gherbino.
- 86—Et fluctus: the successive spondees well described the measured motion of the heavy surges.
- 87—Insequitur—rudentum: “then follow both the shrieks of the crew and the creaking of the cordage.”—virum = virorum: see note on Danaum, v. 30.—rudentes: were the light hanging gear of a ship (τορεία), while funes (σχοίνια), were the strong ropes to which the anchors were attached, and by which the ship was fastened to the land.
- 88—Eripiunt—oculis: “suddenly the clouds blot from the eyes of the Trojans both sky and light.”—dies, “light,” probably the original meaning of the word; cp. div, “bright:” cp. δῖφος, Διός (gen. of Ζεύς, god of the air), Iuppiter (= Divpiter), Diana (= Div-ana, the bright one), “the moon.”

89—Incubat: "broods over." Morris well translates:

"Night on the ocean lies,
Pole thunders unto pole, and still with wild fire glare the skies,
And all things hold the face of death before the seamen's eyes."

—atra: "sable." Distinguish ater, denoting black as a negative of all colour, opposed to albus, white: niger, black, as being itself a colour, and indeed the darkest, opposed to candidus.

90—Intonuere poli: "it thundered from pole to pole;" lit. "the poles thundered."—polus, (πόλος): the Latin term for πόλος is vertex, the end or axis on which, according to the ancient notions, the heavens turned (verto).—et--aether: "and the heaven gleams with frequent flashes."—aether, the bright upper sky above the clouds (αἰθήρ): aer, the lower air (ἀήρ). Here the distinction is, however, unobserved.

91—Praesentemque--mortem: "and all things threaten the crew with instant death."—intentant, note the force of the frequentative.

92—Extemplo (= ex tempulo, from tempulum, dim. of tempus), "at once."
—frigore, "with a chilling fear."

93—Duplices: not "clasped," as this was not the attribute of prayer among the Greeks and Romans, who extended the palms of their hands to the supposed dwelling place of the deity addressed, but "both": cp. the use of διπλοῦς for ἄμφω, δῶω: Aeschylus, Prom. Vincus, 971, μηδέ μοι διπλᾶς ὁδοῦς, Προμηθεῦ, προσβάλλης. So also duplex, said for ambo, uterque, of things in pairs: Aen. 7, 140: duplices parentes.—palma, "the open hand": cp. παλάμη, "the blade of an oar:" root PAL, "to spread;" palor, "I wander," and pando, "I spread:" for d passing into l: cp. odor, olere; lingua, lingua; δάκρυ, lacrima.

94—Refert=dicit. The meaning may be he brings back to light thoughts hidden in his heart: cp. Hom. Od. 5, 309, et sqq.

95—Quis contigit: "whose happy lot it was."—quis=quibus.—accidit, it happens unexpectedly, said of good or bad events: contigit, it happens, said of fortunate events: evenit, it happens, said of events expected, good or bad.—ante ora: considered a happy lot, because their fathers would see their noble deeds.

96—Oppetere, scil. mortem, to die, as a moral act, in so far as a man, if he does not seek death, at any rate awaits it with firmness: obire mortem, to die, as a physical act, by which one ends all suffering.

97—Tyāides=Diomedes, who met Aeneas in single combat: Il. 5, 297.—

mene—dextra : “alas! that I could not have fallen on the Trojan plains and gasped out this life beneath thy right hand!” For the case of me, see note, v. 37.—occumbere, scil., mortem, or morite, or obviam morti.—campis, local abl. = in campis.

- 99—Saevus : perhaps “terrible in battle” : cp. Homer’s δεινός μάχην. Aeneas himself is called saevus in Aen. 12, 107.—Aeacides : Achilles is meant, who was son of Peleus and grandson of Aeacus. Some render iacet by “fell,” a historic present, because we learn from Il. 16, 667, that the body of Sarpedon was conveyed to Lycia by Sleep and Death.
- 100—Simois : decline. Name the other rivers in the Troad.
- 102—Talia iactanti : “as he utters these words :” dat. of reference. —stridens—procella : either “a squall howling from the north (Aquilone=ab Aquilone),” or “a squall howling with the north wind,” abl. of accompaniment.
- 104—Avertit, scil., se=avertitur (middle force), “swings round.”
- 105—Dat, scil., prora : “the prow exposes the side (of the ship) to the waves.”—insequitur—mons : “close (on the ship) in a mass comes on a precipitous mountain billow.”—insequitur, scil., navem.—cumulo, abl. manner, with insequitur.
- 106—Hi, properly = viri, “the crew,” but by synecdoche=haec naves.—his—aperit : “to those the yawning billow discloses ground amid the waves.” Distinguish unda, a wave, arising from the ordinary motion of water ; fluctus, a wave, caused by some external force, as storms.
- 107—Furit—harenis : “the seething flood rages with sand.”—harenis : abl. of instrument. Conington translates : “sand and surf are raving together.”
- 108—Abreptas—torquet=abripuit et torquet : “has caught and whirls.”—latentia, “hidden” by the overflowing sea in stormy weather ; in a calm they were visible.
- 109—Saxa—aras. The order is saxa quae mediis in fluctibus (exstantia) Itali vocant Aras : “rocks which (standing out) in the midst of the billows the Italians call Altars.” The saxa referred to are probably the rocks just outside the bay of Karthage. Of these, the insula Aegimuri is the chief. Some say the Karthaginian priests used to offer sacrifices there to avert shipwrecks on the rocks, hence the term Ara. Others say the Skerki rocks are alluded to, situated in the shallow between Tunis and Sicily.

- 110—Dorsum—summo: “a vast reef rising to the surface of the main.”—dorsum, properly “a back” of an animal: cp. χοιράς: hence, a low, rugged rock rising like a hog’s back on the surface of the waves.—mari: local abl.—Ab alto: “from the high seas.”
- 111—In brevibus et Syrtis = in brevibus (locis) syrtium: “on the shoals of the Syrtes.” The Syrtes (so called from dragging in the ships; ἀπό τοῦ σίπειν τὰς νῆας, or from the Arabian word Sert, meaning a desert,) were two gulfs in Northern Africa, the Syrtis Maior (Gulf of Sidra), the Syrtis Minor (Gulf of Khabs).
- 114—Ipsius, scil., Aeneae. Ipsē like αὐτός is often used of a superior, as of a leader, master, etc.: cp. αὐτὸς ἔφη: ipse dixit, said of Pythagoras by his disciples.—a vertice = κατ’ ἄκρης, “vertically.” Scan this line.
- 115—Puppim. Many “i” stems have the accusative in im or em.—excutitur—caput: “the pilot washed away and headlong is rolled forward.”—excutio, often used “to throw out” of a ship, chariot, or from a horse.—pronus: cp. πρηνής opposed to supinus = ὑπτίως.—magister, i. e., navis gubernator.
- 116—Ast, old form of at, and like the Greek ἄρα, it joins a previous thought to a new and different one: “whilst on the spot thrice the billow whirls it (scil., illam, or navem), driving it round and round.”
- 117—Et—vortex: “and the swift eddy engulfs it (i. e., navem) in the deep.”—rapidus, root RAP: cp. ἄρπ-ἄζω (by metathesis).—aequore, local abl.
- 118—The spondees describe well the laboured movements of the struggling sailors.—rari: “scattered here and there.”
- 119—Arma—undas. The shields and spears may be referred to as floating for a while in the waves, or the picture may be merely momentary.—gaza = θησαυρός, a prince’s wealth.
- 120—Scan this line. Achati: see note on Achilli, v. 30.
- 121—Qua = in qua: local abl.
- 122—Hiemps. The ϕ is merely euphonic, because it is difficult to pronounce s after m: cp. sumpsi.—laxis—fatiscunt: “through the loosened fastenings of the sides, all (the ships) draw in the unwelcome water and gape with (many) seams.”—imber: properly rain water: here = mare: cp. Verg. Georg. 4, 115.—rimis, abl. manner.
- 124—Interea: refers to a matter of some duration: interim: to a thing

- merely momentary: interea, includes the time occupied from the winds swooping down on the sea (v. 84) up to the present. We may translate, "while this was going on, Neptune, greatly moved, felt that the deep was disturbed with dreadful din."
- 125—Et—vastis: "and that the still waters were forced up (to the surface) from their lowest depths." Servius takes stagna to mean the still waters at the bottom of the deep.—vadis, abl. of separation:—commotus: "moved" in heart, though of serene countenance (placidum caput).—alto prospiciens may mean (1) "looking forth from the deep sea," where his palace was; abl. sep.: (2) "looking forth o'er the deep," the abl. representing the space over which the view is taken: cp. v. 81: (more correctly prospicere takes an acc. in this construction, as in v. 155); (3), "in his regard for the main," the dat.
- 127—Unda: abl. of sep.: see note on incepto, v. 37.
- 128—Toto—aequore: see note, v. 29.
- 129—Caeli ruina: "by the wreck of heaven." The violent storm of rain is considered as the downfall of the sky itself.
- 130—Latuere—fratrem: "were unknown to her brother:" with lateo and acc., cp. use of λανθάνω.
- 131—In scanning this line note that d. inc is scanned in one syllable, deinc.
- 132—Tantane—vestri: "has such confidence in your origin possessed you?" The winds were the sons of Aurora and the Titan Astraeos, so that they were on the one side of divine origin and on the other they were descended from a rival of the gods.
- 133—Numine: "consent:" from nuo, "to nod."
- 134—Tantas moles: "such mighty billows." What is peculiar in the inflection of audeo? Name other verbs of the same class.
- 135—Quos ego, scil., ulciscar: aposiopesis.
- 136—Post = postea: "hereafter." — Non may be taken (1) either with simili, (2) or with luetis; the former is preferable: "you shall pay me a different penalty for a second sin," or "you shall afterwards atone for your crimes with a far different penalty," i.e., different from what is suggested in componere. — Commissa luere: cp. πεπραγμένα λύειν.
- 138—Non—datum: "not to him, but to me was allotted the stern trident

- of ocean empire," literally "the empire of the ocean and the stern trident."—sævum : "stern," as the sceptre is the badge of authority.
- 139—Sorte : Juppiter, Neptune, and Pluto are said to have received their realms by allotment, a notion probably suggested by the Roman mode of assigning the provinces at the beginning of the year.
- 140—Vestras : referring to the whole winds, though directly addressed to Eurus.—illa—Aeolus : "let Aeolus glory in his place," literally "give himself airs."
- 141—Et—regnet : "and let him reign when he has closed the prison of the winds," or "in the closed prison."—carcere : abl. abs. or local abl. with in omitted.
- 142—Dicto citius : "ere the words were spoken."—placat : distinguish in meaning plācare, plācere ; pendere, pendere ; albare, albēre ; fūgare, fūgēre ; iācere, iācere ; sēdare, sēdere.
- 144—Adnixus, scil., navibus : "pushing against the ships."
- 145—Scopulo : abl. of separation. Vergil does not seem to distinguish scopulus, a high pointed cliff, affording a wide lookout (rt. SCEP : cp. σκόπελος) ; saxum, a huge rock of whatever form : cp. πέτρα ; rupes, a jagged cliff ; cautes, a small rock down in the water and invisible to the sailors.—levat, scil. naves.
- 146—Aperit : "he makes his way through."—Syrtis : see note, v. 112.—temperat : distinguish the meaning of this verb with (1) dat., (2) acc.
- 147—Levibus : distinguish in meaning, lēvis, lēvis. The adj. is best taken = leviter, an adv., modifying perlabitur : "and gently in his car he glides o'er the top of the waves."—rotis : part for whole (synecdoche) = curru. The sound of the verse is suggestive of the calm of the sea.
- 148-150—Ac veluti : "even as when oft in a throng of people strife arises, and the fierce multitude rage in their minds, and now brands and stones are flying ; madness lends arms." One of the best known of Vergil's similes. This simile reverses the order observed by Homer. In Il. 2, 144, Homer compares the din of the assembly to that of the sea. Vergil here compares the sea pacified by Neptune to a violent mob swayed by some respected orator. "Man reminds the more pictorial poet of nature ; nature reminds the more philosophic poet of man."—magno in populo : lit. "in a vast throng."—coorta est : gnomic perfect, denoting habit.
- 149—Seditio : derived from se, itio, "a going apart," i.e. "a riot ;" for d epenthetic : cp. redeo, prodeo.—animis : probably a locative ; cp. animi discrucior, animi aeger.

- 150—iamque: “and at length:” iam implies the idea of a gradual progression up to a certain time; nunc, definitely the present.—faces et saxa were the arms of a Roman mob, as the carrying of arms was forbidden within the city.
- 151-152—Tum, correlative with cum; v. 148: “then if, perchance, they catch sight of one revered for goodness and service, they are silent and stand by with attentive ear.”—pietate gravem ac meritis: some say that Cicero is meant.—quem: note quis=aliquis after si, nisi, num, ne, quo, quanto.—forte, “perchance,” takes the indic., so also forsan; fortasse has once the indic. in Vergil, otherwise the subj.; forsitan has regularly the subj.
- 152—Conspexere: the individuals composing the throng (vulgus) are thought of; hence the plural. The perfect is used to express momentary action.—adstant: “they stand by.” Note force of ad.
- 154—Cunctus—fragor: “all the uproar of the sea is at once hushed.” Decline zēlagus. Distinguish in meaning cecīdit, cecidit.—aequora prospiciens: “looking o’er the calm deep.” See note v. 126.
- 155—Genitor=Neptunus: pater seems to have been a general epithet of a river or sea deity; cp. pater Tiberinus (Livy, 2, 10); pater Oceanus (Verg. Georg. 4, 382); pater Portunus (Verg. Aen., 5, 241). So also Homer calls Ocean θεῶν γέγονεω. It was one of the dogmas of the Ionic School of Philosophers that water was the primary element of all things—a doctrine evidently held by Vergil.—aperto: “cleared” of clouds, i.e., “serene.”
- 156—Currūque—secundo: “and he lets his gliding chariot fly with loosened rein,” literally “he flying gives reins to his gliding chariot.”—curru=curru.—secundo: i.e. “following” his steeds, hence “gliding.”
- 157—Aeneadae: “followers of Aeneas;” so the Athenians are called Cecropidae, Thesidae, from their original leaders.—quae litora: “the nearest shores;” the relative here supplies the place of our article.—cursu=rapide, abl. of manner; cp. ὀπίσσω.
- 158—Vertuntur=vertunt se: literally “turn themselves.” The passive endings in Latin arose out of the reflexive forms of the active by adding to the verbal stem with the connective vowel the acc. of the reflexive pronoun which was for all persons—se;—e final was afterwards dropped, and the remaining form sometimes changes s to r; vector=verto-se; vectoris=vertesi-se; vertitur=verteti-se.
- 159—Est locus: probably an imaginary place. Some refer the description to Nova Karthago (Cartagena) in Spain; others to Neapolis.—in secessu longo: "in a deep receding bay." Conington finely renders these lines:—

Deep in a bay an island makes
A haven by its jutting sides,
Wherein each wave from Ocean breaks,
And, parting, into hollows glides.
High o'er the cove vast rocks extend,
A beetling cliff at either end;
Beneath their summits far and wide,
In sheltered silence sleeps the tide,
While quivering forests crown the scene—
A theatre of glancing green.

- 160—Objectu laterum: "by the shelter of its sides."—quibus, "against which;" abl. instr.
- 161—Inque—reductos: "and wave parts into the deep hollows of the bay."—sinus, properly "a bosom," then "a gulf." Cp. the change of meaning of κόλπος, Romaic γόλφος, Eng. gulf.—scindit sese = scinditur.
- 162—Hinc—scopuli: "on this side and on that, huge rocks and twin cliffs tower threateningly towards heaven."—minantur: rt. MIN, "to jut:" cp. mons = minae, properly the gable end of a house.
- 163—Late: "far and wide."
- 164—Aequora—silent: "the calm sea lies safe and still," lit. "the calm sea, safe (from the winds), is still."—tuta may, however, mean "safe for ships."—tum—coruscis: "then a background of waving woods."—scaena: cp. σκήνη, the background of the Roman theatre, the circular form of the bay (sinus) having suggested the idea of the pit (cavea).—silvis: abl. quality. Distinguish silva, a wood in a general sense, with reference to the timber=ύλη: nemus, a pleasant place, a grove=νομός.
- 166—Fronte—antrum: "beneath the brow (of the cliff) facing (the entrance of the harbour) is a cavern (formed) of hanging rocks."—scopulis, abl. of description.—with antrum supply est.
- 167—Aquae dulces: "springs of fresh water:" opposed to aquae amarae, "salt water springs."—vivo saxo: "of natural (i.e. unhewn) rock," abl. of description.
- 168—Non—ulla = nulla. The calmness of the harbour is contrasted with the raging of the sea.—fessas: the ships are spoken of as if endowed with life: cp. Shaks. Romeo and Juliet: "thy sea-sick weary bark."

- 169—Unco-morsu: “with its crooked bite.” Vergil here is guilty of anachronism. Anchors were not in use in the Homeric ships, which had large stones (ebval, sleepers) to steady them.
- 170—Septem: the original number was 20 in all (v. 381). The seven were made up of three from the reef (v. 108), three from the sand bank (v. 110), and his own.—collectis: “mustered.”—navibus: abl. of accompaniment, or abl. abs.
- 171—Subit: “enters.”—amore=desiderio: “longing,” for something absent or wanting.
- 172—Egressi, scil. ex navibus: “having disembarked;” cp. ἐκβαίνω, often used with ἐκ νῆος omitted.—arena: what other deponent verbs govern the ablative?
- 173—Et-pouunt: “and they stretch on the shores their limbs drenched with brine:” tab-es, tab-esco same root as τήκω by labialism.
- 174—Silici: “from flint;” the dative with verbs of separation is confined chiefly to poetry.
- 175—Suscepitque-foliis: “and nursed the fire amid the leaves:” abl. of means.—atque-dedit: “and besides he placed around (the fire, i.e., ignem) dry chips;” or circum-dedit may be by tnesis=circum-dedit, scil., igni. The original meaning of dare (cf. with root DA, θε- in τι-θη-μι) is “to place.”
- 176—Rapuitque-flammam. Servius says rapuit=raptim fecit, “and quickly he started a blaze among the touchwood.” Heyne makes rapuit=raptim excepit, probably meaning that the fire started by rubbing together the dry pieces of wood and then quickly placing the fire around the tinder.
- 177—Cererem corruptam: “the corn damaged;” note the metonymy: so v. 215.—Cerealia arma: “the vessels of Ceres,” may refer to the handmill (saxa,) kneading trough, etc.
- 178—Expediunt: “they fetch,” out of the ships.—fessi rerum, either “weary with the world,” or rerum=rerum adversarum, “weary with their misfortunes:” the genitive of reference is common with adjectives in Vergil: cp. trepidæ rerum, 12, 589; ingratus salutis, 10, 666.—receptas: “recovered” from the sea.
- 180—Scopulum, properly, “a look-out”; cp. σκόπελος, Lat. specula, SPEC=σκεπ, by metathesis.
- 181—Pelago, see note on alto, v. 126; the abl. of the space moved over in vision: “o’er the deep.”—Anthea-videat: lit. “if he can see any

- Antheus," i.e., "if he can anywhere see Antheus." It may also be taken, "in the hope that he may see some tempest-tossed (bark of) Antheus." For Anthea quem = Anthei quam (navem): cp. Aen. 2, 311; iam proximus ardet Ucalegon = iam proxima ardet domus Ucalegontis. — biremes: Vergil is guilty of an anachronism here, as no such ships existed in the Homeric era.
- 183—Arma, shields arranged on the stern which would flash in the sunshine: cp. Aen. 8, 92.
- 184—Some have raised the question whether deer are found in Africa.
- 185—Armenta: properly, "ploughing cattle," i.e., "oxen," but often applied to other kinds of animals: to horses (A 3, 540); to apes (Pliny 7, 2); to sea monsters (Georg. 4, 395).—iumentum (= iugmentum): "draft cattle."
- 186—Hic: distinguish in meaning hic, hīc.
- 190—Sternit: "he lays low."—vulgus, said of beasts, cp. Georg. 3, 469: vulgus incautum.—et turbam: "and driving with his shafts the whole herd (of deer), he disperses them amid the leafy woods."
- 192—Prius quam, denotes purpose: hence the subj. in fundat.—prius aequet: "nor stays he till he stretches on the sod seven great victims and thus has a number equal to that of the ships."—humi: like belli, militiae, domi, ruri, a locative.
- 194—Partitur, scil., praedam.
- 195—Vina cadis onerarat, by hypallage = vino cados onerarat.—deinde dividit. Scan this line, and tell what metrical figure in it.—bonus, join with heros.
- 196—Trinacria. Sicily was called by the Greeks Θρινακρία, Τρινακρία, Τρινακρίς, from its three promontories (τρεις ἀκραί), and by the Romans Triquetra. The promontories are Pelorus (Faro), Pachynum (Passara), Lilybaeum (Bona, or Marsala).
- 198—Neque—malorum: either "for we are not ignorant of our former misfortunes," taking ante malorum = τῶν πρὶν κακῶν; or, "for we have not been formerly ignorant of misfortune," taking ante sumus = πάλα ἔομέν.
- 199—O—graviora: "O ye who have suffered heavier woes."
- 200—Scyllaeam rabiem (by enallage) = Scyllam rabidam: "the raging Scylla:" cp. Herculeus labor, βίη Ἡρακλεΐη.—penitus sonantes:

- "resounding through their caverns," or "deep sounding." The reference is to Charybdis. The onomatopoeia well imitates the hissing sound of the seething whirlpool.
- 201—Accestis=accessistis: "you drew near." For similar cases of syncope, in Vergil: cp. extinxem, extinxiti, trax, vixet.—Cyclopea saxa, referring to the cave of Polyphemus. The usual quantity is Cyclopæus, not Cyclopæus: cp. Aen. 3, 569.
- 203—Forsan—inuvabit: "this, too, sometime we shall haply remember with delight;" elliptical for fors sit an; lit., "the chance may be whether," i.e., "perhaps." See note on forte, v. 151.—olim, here = aliquando in prose: see note, v. 20.
- 204—Discrimina rerum=res periculosas.—discrimen; properly, the turning point; root KRI, "to decide" or "to separate;" cerno, κρίνω.
- 205—Tendimus, scil., iter: "we pursue our course."
- 206—Ostendunt: "promise."—fas est, "'tis heaven's will."—fas: root FA, "to declare": cp. fari, φημί; fatum, φημή.
- 207—Durate=τλήτε: "bear up."—rebus: dat.
- 208—Distinguish in meaning voces, vöces; refert, réfert. Morris renders this passage:
 So spake his voice, but his sick heart did mighty trouble rack,
 As, glad of countenance, he thrust the heavy anguish back.
- 209—Spem simulat vultu: "hope in his look he feigns."—vultu: abl. instr. Distinguish simulare, to feign what you are not: dissimulare, not to shew what you actually are.—premit—dolorem: "he holds hidden deep in his heart his grief."—corde: local abl.
- 210—Se accingunt: lit., "gird themselves," i.e., "busy themselves." The toga of the Romans, hanging loose, had to be tucked up for an active task. Hence, succinctus, accinctus, "active."
- 211—Vergil was well versed in the ceremonial rites of the Roman religion. The minuteness of the description is paralleled by Hom. Il., I, 458-473.—costis: abl. separation.—viscera, properly, the great internal organs, as the heart, liver, etc., but also applied to the flesh in general, or to anything beneath the skin.
- 212—Pars—secant—figunt: note the sense construction.—veribus: abl. instr.—tremantia, scil., viscera.—figunt=transfigunt.
- 213—Aena, scil., vasa: "the bronze pots." Vergil is here guilty of an anachronism, Homer's heroes knowing nothing of boiled meat. The hot water may have been for the bath taken before the meal began.

- 214—Victu—vires: “with food they repair their strength.”—fusi, “stretched.”
- 215—Bacchi=vini: see note v. 177.—implentur=se imp'ent: see note v. 158.—ferinae, scil., carnis: “venison:” cp. agnina, “lamb;” bovina, “beef;” vitulina, “veal.”—fera is etymologically the same as Gk. θήρ, German thier, Eng. deer, which was once a generic term, as is each of its Aryan equivalents.
- 216—Postquam—epulis: “after hunger had been appeased by the feast.” Decline fames and epulum. Vergil is thinking of the customs of his own day, when the tables were brought in and taken out. It is not likely that the shipwrecked Trojans had any tables at all.
- 217—Amisso—requirunt: “they talk with lingering regret of their lost comrades in many words.”—requiro, to ask about something needed.
- 218—Spem inter: anastrophe.—dubii, “wavering.”—seu—sive: in the pre-Augustan period we find sive—sive, seu—seu, but after that time we generally find seu—sive, sive—seu: poetically used for utrum or num—an.
- 219—Extrema pati: “to be suffering their final doom,” a euphemism for mori.—nec—vocos: “and that they no longer hear when called.” The reference is to the conclamatio, i.e. calling the dead by name, and also shouting vale, or ave.
- 220—Oronitei: from Orontes; see note on Achilli, v. 30.
- 221—Secum: “by himself,” not in sight of his comrades.
- 222—Aethere: abl. separation.
- 223—Finis: the end of the day, or of the feast.
- 224—Despiciens: “looking down upon.” Others read dispiciens, “looking abroad.”—velivoluum: “alive with flitting sails.”
- 225—Sic—constitit: “even so took he his stand on a peak of heaven;” cp. use of Homeric καὶ, καὶ δὴ, οὐτως δὴ, summing up a description.
- 226—Regnis: “on the realms:” probably a dative of recipient used for acc. with preposition = despexit in regna.
- 227—Tales curas: “such cares” as became the ruler of the world.
- 228—Tristior=subtristis: “sadder than was her wont:”—oculos suffusa = oculis suffusis: Vergil is fond of using an accusative with a passive participle used in a middle sense: cp. vs. 320, 481.
- 230—Fulmine: the lightning that strikes the earth = κεραυνός: fulgur, the gleam of the lightning = ἀστραπή.

- 231—Quid—orbis: “what sin so heinous could my Aeneas have committed against thee, what sin, the Trojans, to whom, after suffering so many hardships, the whole world is closed on account of Italy?” cunctus, for co-iunctus or co-vinctus.—ob Italiam: to prevent their coming to Italy.
- 234—Certe: distinguish certo, a particle of affirmation joined with scio, “surely,” “certainly,” and certe, which modifies a statement, “at least,” joined to any verb. Join with pollicitus, scil., es.—hinc-hinc is (1) either a repetition, (2) or, there are two clauses; hinc Romanos fore, hinc duces fore a sanguine Teucris.—volventibus annis: cp. Homer’s περιπλομένων ἐνιαυτῶν.
- 236—Qui—tenerent: “shall hold,” imperf. subj. of virtua’ oblique narration and also because qui is final.—omni: abl., “in universal sway,” i.e., with every form of sway, over life, death, property, etc. Some important MSS. read omnes, agreeing with terras, which is simpler.
- 237—Pollicitus, scil., es.
- 238—Hoc: “by this,” abl. of means; referring to the promise mentioned before.
- 239—Fatis—repensens: “balancing fates by opposing fates;” strictly contraria is an inverted epithet = contrariis.—fatis: the downfall of Troy is compensated by the hope of reaching Italy.
- 240—Tot—actos: “harassed by so many woes.”
- 242—Mediis—Achivis: “escaping from the midst of the Greeks.” Sophocles represents Antenor as having escaped by collusion from Troy, the Greeks having spared his life as he concocted a plan to deliver Troy into their hands. Some say he survived the fallen city, and founded there a new kingdom; others, that he settled in Libya.
- 243—Penetrare: “coasted along.”
- 245—Per ora nozem: the Timavus rises about a mile from its mouth at the head of the Adriatic sea. Between the fountain of the river and the outlet are several subterranean channels, through which the salt water of the sea is forced back by a storm, breaking out at the fountain through seven holes or crevices in the rock, and overflowing the channel of the river.
- 246—It—proruptum: (1) “the sea comes bursting up;” (2) “it (the Timavus) rolls as a dashing sea;” (3) “it rolls to break upon the sea;” proruptum, a supine in this last. The first is the most natural explanation.—pelago, “surge.”

- 247—Tamen : “in spite of all his dangers.”—urbem Patavi : the genitive of equivalence in description after such words as oppidum, urbs, flumen is not found in Terence and Plautus, occurs perhaps but once in Cicero and seems confined to a few cases of poetry and later prose. It is possible that Timavus here may be the god of the stream: cp. B. VIII, 72, tuque, O Tybri tuo genitor cum flumine sancto. In Vergil’s day Patavium (now Padua) was the fourth city of the empire in wealth, ranking next to Rome, Alexandria, and Gades (Cádiz). The Veneti, or Heneti, are said to have come from Paphlagonia to Italy; others say they were Kelts.
- 248—Fixit : i.e., hung them up in the temple as a token of his wars being over.
- 249—Nunc—quiescit : “now reposing, he rests in peaceful sleep.”—compostus : referring to his toils being over. Some say that compostus refers to Antenor’s death; cp. ἐκτίθειναι = componere, to stretch out a body for burial.
- 250—Nos, i.e., Venus and her son Aeneas.—adnuo : cp. κατανεύω, to nod the head down, to give assent; denuo = ἀνανεύω, to nod the head up, to dissent.—caeli arcem : Aeneas was worshipped as one of the Dei indigetes : Aen. 12, 794 : Livy, 1, 12.
- 251—Infandum : “Oh, horror unspeakable :” see note on me—victam, v. 41.—unius : i.e. of Juno.
- 252—Prodimur : “are forsaken” by Juppiter.
- 253—Hic, agreeing with the predicate honus : “is this the reward shown to piety.”
- 254—Olli=illi : Vergil, like many other epic poets is fond of archaisms : so metu=metui, v. 257; curvu, v. 156.—Subridens : with the force of sub- cp. that of ὑπο- in ὑπογελάω.
- 255—The majestic spondees give dignity to the look of Jove.
- 256—Scan this line and name the metrical figure in it : see note, v. 131.
- 257—Metu=metui.—Cythēra : adjective fem., from Cythēra; see note on Lavini, next line. Venus was so called because she was worshipped at the Island of Cythera (now Cerigo). Her worship was probably a remnant of the old Phoenician worship of Astarte, who was afterwards identified with Venus and Juno.
- 258—Tibi : ethical dative, “according to your wish.”—urbem et moenia = (by hendiaëys) urbis moenia.—Lāvini here; in v. 2 : Lāvina (adj.). Such variations in quantity are frequent in the case of proper names.

- 259—Sublimem : “on high.”
- 260—Magnanimum : cp. Homeric μεγάθυμος, μεγαλήτωρ.
- 261—Hic—subactis : “this one according to your wish—for I shall declare the fates, since this anxiety torments thee, and, unrolling the mysteries of destiny at greater length, I will bring them to light—this one, I say, shall carry on a great war in Italy, and shall crush the warlike tribes, and shall give laws to the people, and shall build towns, until the third summer sees him reigning in Latium and three winters are passed after the subjugation of the Rutuli.”—tibi : see note, v. 258.—quando=quandoquidem : this meaning occurs only in poetry and in post-Augustan prose: cp. ὅτε for ὅτι in Greek.—volvens : the metaphor is taken from the unrolling of a book: cf. volumen, properly an unrolling, hence a volume.—mores—moenia ponere : cp. νόμους—τείχεα θείναι. The two ideas were inseparable in the Roman mind, as the building of a city implied the establishment of laws. There is no real zeugma, as the difference in sense exists only in the English translation.—viderit : literally “shall have seen.”—Rutulis—subactis : either (1) an abl. absol., or (2) dat. of reference: as in Juv. 14, 12: cum septimus annus transierit puero.—terna—hiberna, scil., castra=tres hiemes : lit. “winter camps,” i.e. winters. Note the use of the distributive instead of the cardinal numeral with a noun having a pl. form only.
- 267—At : the idea is “though the reign of Aeneas shall be short, still,” etc.: see note, v. 116.
- 268—Stetit : literally “while the Ilian state stood firm in imperial sway.” Note that dum with perfect indicative is used when the emphasis is on the fact, not upon the duration.
- 269—Magnos—orbis : referring to the annual cycle in contradistinction to the monthly revolution.—volvendis=volventibus, from the deponent reflexive volvō : see note on vertitur, v. 158. The gerundive has here the force of the present participle.—mensibus : abl. absol., or abl. inst., or manner.
- 270—Imperio : either=imperando, abl. of manner; or dat. “for his reign.”
- 271—Longam Albam : cp. Livy 1, 2. For inversion of names: cp. Hor. Od. II, 2, 3.
- 272—Ilic : at Alba.—iam : “henceforth.”—ter centum : according to the received date of the fall of Troy, this would put the foundation of Rome about 850 B.C., instead of 753 B.C.—regnabitur, "the dynasty shall last:" a passive impersonal, the verb containing the subject: cp. pugnatur, curritur.

- 273—Hectorea: the race takes its name from its greatest hero: cp. Romulidae, Assaracidae, Cecropidae, or perhaps there is a reference to the warlike spirit of the Romans.—regina sacerdos: it is difficult to say which of these substantives is used adjectively. The reference is to Rhea Silvia, daughter of Numitor.
- 274—Ilia: i.e. of the family of Ilus, one of the founders of the Trojan line: Rhea Silvia is generally given as her name. The ordinary account is that she, a priestess and princess of the house of Aeneas, was by Mars the mother of the twins, Romulus and Remus.
- 275—Lupae-laetus: "gay in the tawny hide of the she-wolf that nursed him:" referring to the well-known story of the twins being exposed and stranded on the banks of the Tiber, where they were found by a wolf.
- 276—Excipiet: "shall receive by succession:" cp. ἐκδέχεσθαι.—Mavortia: Mars (old form Mavors, Mamers) was the patron deity of Rome, and universally worshipped by the Italian people. The word is from MAR, MAL, "to grind" or "crush." He is identified with Thor Miolnir, i.e., Thor, the Smasher, of Norse mythology.
- 278—Metas rerum, "limit of empire": the meaning is that Rome shall have a universal and an eternal empire. Note the dignified confidence in this sentiment.
- 279—Quin=qui ne: "nay even." Distinguish the meanings of quin when used with the indic., the subj., and the imperat.
- 281—Consilia=referet: "shall amend her plans." Distinguish in meaning rēfert, rēfert.
- 282—Togata: the Romans had the toga, or "gown," as their characteristic dress; as the Gauls had the braccae, or "trews;" the Greeks the pallium, or "cloak." Hence gens togata=Romani; gens braccata=Galli; gens palliata=Graeci. As the toga was the civil gown (in contradistinction to sagum, the military cloak) Vergil may refer here to the civil greatness of the Romans as he refers to their military prowess as lords of the world (rerum dominos).
- 283—Sic=placitum, scil., mihī est=sic mihī placet: "such is my pleasure." lustris labentibus: "as the years glide by," abl. abs.": cp. volvendis

- mensibus*.—lustrum, properly the period between two successive purifications (LU, "to wash"): cp. Greek λοῦω. After the ensor had completed his enumeration of the people (census) which was done every five years, an expiatory sacrifice (lustrum) was held.
- 284—Domus Assaraci: "the line of Troy." The family of Aeneas is meant, being descended from Assaracus (see table, p. 24).—Phthia: a district of Thessaly, in which was situated Larissa, a town, where Achilles and Neoptolemus were born.—Mycenas: the royal city of Agamemnon, near Argos. A reference is made here to the subjugation of Greece in 146 B.C.
- 285—Victis—Argis: "shall lord it over conquered Argos." Only in late writers dominor governs a dative or genitive. In the best writers it is construed in aliquem, or in aliqua re.—Argis: Argos is neuter indeclinable in sing. form plural Argi is masc.
- 286—Origine: abl. origin.—Caesar, i.e., Augustus. His proper name was C. Octavius Thurinus, but by the will of his uncle, C. Julius Caesar, he was made his heir, and consequently took the name, C. Julius Caesar, adding Octavianus, his own gentile name. Augustus (Revered) was bestowed on him by the Senate and the people, 27 B.C.
- 287—Qui—terminet: subj. of purpose: "destined to bound."—Oceano: abl. of means.
- 288—Caelo: poetic=ad caelum in prose. Augustus in his lifetime was worshipped as a deity: Hor. Od. 3, 5, 3.—Orientis onustum. The reference is probably to the restoration of the standards taken from Crassus at the battle of Carrhae, B.C. 53. These were restored, B.C. 20. Others think the poet refers to the return of Augustus after the battle of Actium, B.C. 31.
- 290—Hic quoque: i.e., Caesar, as well as Aeneas.
- 292—Cana: "untarnished." The Romans often exalted abstract qualities, as Pudor, Fortuna, etc., to the rank of deities. The return of the golden age is here prophesied.
- 293—Iura dabunt: "shall impose laws."—dirae portae: "the gates of war grim with closely welded iron bars shall be closed."—ferro et compagibus = ferratis compagibus, by hendiadys. The reference is to the closing of the temple of Janus, either in B.C. 29 or B.C. 25.
- 294—Inpius: "unholy," as the cause of the civil wars of the Romans.

These three lines are said to describe a picture by Apelles representing War fettered with chains, or a statue of Mars exhibiting the god bound with chains and seated on a pile of arms.

295—Centum—vinculus, scil., manus, implied in post tergum: "his hands bound behind his back with countless fetters of brass."—centum, often used for an indefinitely great number.

297—Masa geritum: Mercury was son of Jupiter and Maia, the daughter of Atlas.

299—Hospitio Teucris: dat. of purpose and of indirect object "to welcome the Trojans."

300—Arceret: the historic present may take in form a present subj. (pateant), or an imperfect in respect of sense (arceret).

301—Remigio alarum: "by the oarage of his wings:" cp. Aeschylus, Ag. 52; περυγῶν ἐρετμοῖσιν ἐρεσσομένοι. The wings of the cap (petasus) of Mercury and of his sandals (talaria) are aptly compared to a ship's banks of oars.—ac—oris: "and quickly he alighted on the coasts of Libya."—citus: predicate adj. with the force of an adverb.—oris: local abl.: cp. Milton, Par. Lost, 5, 266:—

"Down thith'rone in flight
He speeds, and through the vast ethereal sky, Sails between worlds and worlds," etc.

302—Facit—ponunt: note the simultaneous order and result.

303—Volente deo=θεοῦ θέλοντος: "since the god willed it."—in primis—benignam: "most of all does the queen entertain a peaceful disposition and friendly mind towards the Trojans." Dido is represented as receiving these feelings from Mercury. Distinguish animus=θυμός, the soul as seat of the feelings; mens=φρήν, the mind as the thinking faculty.

305—Volvens, scil., in animo: "revolving in his mind."

306—Lux alma: "the kindly light."—exire, governed by constituit.

307—Vento: "by stress of weather."—oras: explanatory of locos: "to what shores he has been borne by the wind:" governed by ad in accesserit. The subj. is used in indirect questions.

309—Exacta: either (1) "the result of his enquiries;" exigere, is sometimes used in the sense of, "to enquire:" so examen=exag-men, "the beam of a balance," or (2)=τὰ πεπραγμένα: "the report of what he did;" "and to bring back the results of his enquiries to his comrades."

- 310—in convexo nemorum: "within a vault of woods," i.e., "within the vaulted woods," the overhanging cliffs were formed into a cave by the action of the waves.
- 311—Classem—clausam—occulit=classem clausit et occulit: see note, v. 69.
- 312—Comitatus: deponents are sometimes used passively: adeptus, expertus, pactus, partitus, sortitus.—Achate: this ablative of agent is rare, except with the part.—comitatus: others explain it in the ablative of accompaniment with cum omitted: cp. B. IX, 48, viginti lectis comitatus.
- 313—Bina: "a pair:"—ferro: abl. of quality.
- 314—Cui mater sese tulit obviam: "to meet him his mother crossed his way."—obviam, poetic for obviam.—media—silva: local abl.
- 315—Os habitumque: "the look and dress."
- 316—Vel—Harpalyce: a condensed mode of saying, vel (talīs virginis) qualis Threissa Harpalyce (est quum) fatigat equos: "or (of such a maiden) as the Thracian Harpalyce (is when she) out-tires the steeds." Others take fatigat: "presses sore." The Spartans were noted for their scanty dress; the Thracians were famous hunters.
- 317—Praevertitur Hebrum: "outstrips the Hebrus:" the accusative is sometimes used after verbs that acquire a transitive meaning: cp. erumpere nubem, v. 580. MSS. all read Hebrum: but as (1) it is no proof of swiftness to outstrip a river in speed and (2) the river Hebrus is not a swift stream, some of the most critical editors, including Ribbeck and Peerlkamp, conjecture Eurum. There is no need, however, of the conjecture, for (1) MSS. are unanimous in reading Hebrum, (2) Sir Walter Scott, Lady of the Lake, 5, 18, says:
- "Along thy banks, swift Teith, they ride,
And in the race they mock thy tide."
- (3) Seneca and Plutarch both refer to the Hebrus as a swift river.
(4) It is natural to associate a Thracian maiden with a Thracian stream.
- 318—Umeris: dat. or abl.—de more, scil., venatricum: "after the manner of huntresses."—habilem—venatrix: "the huntress had slung a light bow." The bow and sometimes the arrows were carried in the bow case (γωρυθός) and slung over the shoulder.
- 319—Diffundere=ut diffunderent: the epexegetic (explanatory) infinitive is often used in Greek, expressing a purpose, ἔδωκε λαβεῖν.

- 320—Genu : acc. of specification.—nodoque—fluentes : “with her flowing folds collected in a knot.”
- 321—Mora : “point out where she is.”
- 322—Quis : see note on v. 181.—When is quis used for a.iquis ?
- 323—Maculosae—lynxis : cp. Eur. Alc. 579 : βαλῶν τε λύγκες.
- 324—Aut—prementem : “or with a shout closely following the track of the foaming boar,” opposed to errantem, scil., per silvas : “sauntering (through the woods).”
- 325—Sic Venus, scil., loquitur.—orsus, scil., est, from ordior.
- 326—Mihi. The dat. of agent is often used in poets of the Augustan age after a perf. pass. and is the regular construction after the gerundive.
- 327—Memorem : subjunctive of doubt.
- 328—Hominem = humanum sonat : a kind of cognate acc.
- 329—Phoebe soror, i.e., Diana.—sanguinis : partitive genitive.
- 330—Felix : “propitious.”—leves : distinguish in meaning lēvis, lēvis.—quaecumque, scil., es.
- 331—Tandem : cp. δῆτα : “pray.”
- 335—Venus, scil., loquitur.—equidem : “’tis true, I consider myself worthy of no such honour.” She refers to the honour of being addressed as a goddess or nymph.
- 337—Purpureo—colthurno : the purple buskin was worn high and generally by hunters, horsemen, and actors.
- 338—Punica : also Poenica : connected with Phoenix : cp. munire, moenia. For the dropping of the h, see Papillon’s Comparative Philology ; p. 82.
- 339—Libyci. The original Karthaginian settlers did not throw off the yoke of the Libyan tribes till about the age of Cambyses of Persia, i.e., 530 B.C.—genus : in apposition with the noun implied in Libyci.
- 340—Imperium—regit : “holds the sway,” not “rules over the domain.”
- 341—Longa—iniuria : “tedious would be the tale of wrong.”
- 342—Ambages : “details ;” lit., “round about ways :” “ins and outs.”—sed—rerum : “but I shall relate in order the main points of the story.”—sequar = persequar.—summa—fastigia = capita. Conington renders :

“long

And dark the story of her wrong ;
To thread each tangle time would fail,
So learn the summits of the tale.”

- 343—Scan this line ; also line 348. Is there any word varying in quantity in these two lines?—ditissimus agri : “richest in land ;” see note on opum, v. 14. As the Karthaginians were not so much an agricultural as a commercial people, some propose to read auri for agri. Vergil, however, is describing Sychaeus as he would describe a Roman of his day whose chief wealth consisted in land.
- 344—Et—amore : “and beloved with great affection by the hapless (wife) :” for the case of miseræ : see note, v. 326.
- 345—Intactam : “a maiden :” cp. ἀθικτός.—Primisque—ominibus : “and had united her in the first rites of wedlock.”—iungo : as ζεύγνυμι is often applied to wedlock : cp. coniunx, σίξιξ.
- 346—Ominibus : the consultation of the omens was regarded of great importance before the celebration of the marriage rites. Here ominibus is put for marriage rites.—Tyri : local genitive.
- 347—Ante alios—omnes = maior quam alii omnes.
- 348—Quos furor : “betwixt them a feud came.”
- 349—Impius : “unnatural,” because violating all natural claims, referring to his disregard for his sister or for the place, as well as to his treachery.
- 350—Securos amorum : “regardless of his sister’s love ; genitive of respect : see note, v. 14. Distinguish in meaning and derivation securis, sēcuris.
- 352—Malus = male, by enallage : “wickedly.”
- 355—Sed ipsa : the idea is : “but ’twas in vain that he deceived her, for etc.”—ipsa : “of its own accord ;” cp. αὐτός = αὐτόματος.—inhumati : “unburied ;” this may account for the unrest of the shade.
- 356—Nudavit : a zeugma : “he revealed the cruel altars and shewed his heart pierced with the sword.”—domus scelus : “the crime done to the family.” What kind of genitive ?
- 357—Celerare = ut celeret : see note, v. 11.—patria : ablative of separation.
- 358—Auxilium viae in apposition to thesauros.
- 359—Ignotum pondus : “untold mass :” kept secret and apart from the rest of his wealth.
- 360—Fugam—parabat : “Dido began to prepare for flight and to collect companions.” With socios, parabat = comparabat.
- 362—Pelago : abl. of space moved over.
- 365—Devenere locos, i.e. devenere ad locos : “they reached a spot.”—de- venire: cp. κατάγειν, to come from the high seas to land: opposed to conscendere, v. 381: cp. ἀνάγειν. For the omission of the preposition, see note on Italiam, v. 2.

- 367—Construe: mercaticque (sunt tantum) soli—quantum, etc.: “and they bought (as much) land as they were able to surround with an ox hide.” The Phoenician name for a fort is Bursa (Hebrew, Bosra). It is probable that the confusion of the Phoenician Bursa with the Greek βύρα “a hide,” gave rise to the story, according to which the Phoenicians cut up the hide into thongs and so surrounded a considerable portion of ground.—possent: virtual oblique narration implying the terms of agreement.
- 369—Qui, scil., estis.
- 370—Quaerenti vocem: “at her question he sighing and drawing his voice deep from his breast answered in these words:” with ille, scil., respondit. With quaerenti, scil., illi, i.e., Dido.
- 371—Si—pergam: “if going back, I were to tell thee the story in full from the very beginning.” With repetens or pergam, scil., famam.
- 373—Vacet, scil., tibi: “you had time.”—annales: properly the annales libri were “year books” recounting the events of each year, and were kept by the chief officers at Rome: hence, the story of events, generally.
- 374—Ante—Olympo: “ere (I had finished my tale), the evening star would lay the day to sleep, closing (the gate of) heaven.”—componat: this is the more elegant reading (“would lay to rest”), but almost all MSS. and some of the best editors read componet, (“will lay to rest”).—ante= ante finem annualium: “before the end of my tale.”—vesper: cp. ἑσπερος, i.e., Ἑσπερος: root VAS, “to dwell,” as the abode of the sun: cp. Eng.: west.—Olympus, a high mountain (now Elimbo) in Thessaly, the dwelling place of the gods according to Homer, afterwards often in the poets used as a conventional term for heaven.
- 375—Troia join with vectos: see note on patria, v. 357.—per aures: i.e., has been heard of by you.
- 376—Diversa: either (1) “various,” or (2) “distant,” i.e., far separated from each other.
- 377—Forte sua: “by its own chance:” i.e., by mere accident: fors, only here used as a substantive.
- 378—Sum notus: this vainglorious method of announcing one’s self was - common among the ancients: cp. Od. 9, 19: εἰμ' Ὀδυσσεὺς Λαερτιάδης, ὃς πᾶσι δόλοισι Ἀνθρώποισι μέλω, καὶ μεν κλέος οὐρανὸν ἵκει.—raptos ex hoste: “rescued from the midst of the foe.”

- 380—Quaero—summo: “I am seeking Italy and my race (descended) from Jove on high.” With genus scil., ortum. Dardanus, the founder of the Trojan line, son of Jupiter and Electra, originally came from Italy. Aeneas seeks Italy to re-establish his line in its ancient seat.
- 381—Bis denis: the distributive, rather than the cardinal, is used because ten are reckoned each time.—conscendi: “I climbed:” the sea seems to rise as it recedes from the shore: or simply, “I embarked:” cp. note on v. 365: cp. Morris (Life and Death of Jason): “And swiftly Argo climbed each changing hill, and ran through rippling valleys of the sea:” cp. ἀνάγειν.
- 382—Monstrante: i.e., by a star Aeneas was led to Italy: Aen. 2, 801.
- 383—Ipsē, opposed to the ships.—ignotus: “unknown” to the inhabitants, far from friends, as he was well known by report: v. 379.
- 384—The reference to the three continents gives dignity to the story.
- 385—Plura querentem: “beginning to make further complaints:” conative participle.
- 387—Haud carpis: “not an object of hatred, I ween, to the powers above you breathe the vital air, inasmuch as you have come to the Tyrian city.”—Join haud with invisus. The meaning is, it is by heaven's will that you have reached here.
- 388—Qui adveneris: “seeing that you have come:” causal subjunctive=cum tu.—urbem, i.e., ad urbem.
- 389—Perge modo: “only go on.” Conjugate pergo. Distinguish in meaning mōdō, mōdō.
- 390—Namque nuntio: “for I announce to thee the return of thy comrades and the recovery of thy fleet.” Make reduces predicative with esse understood. Distinguish in meaning redūces, redūces.
- 391—Et—actam: “and borne into a safe (place) by the shifting winds.”
- 392—Ni=nisi.—frustra: “in vain,” disappointed hope of the subject: nequidquam: “to no purpose,” refers to the nullity in which the thing has ended.—augurium: (avis, a bird, root GAR—“to chatter:” hence γηρύειν, garire) properly an omen from the notes of birds, but often used for an omen from any source: auspicium (avis, a bird and spec—“to see”) omens from the flight, or from an inspection of the entrails of birds.—vani: “deceivers,” i.e., impostors.

- 393—Venus here gives tidings of the missing ships from the omen of the swans, her favourite birds. There are twelve swans as there were twelve missing ships. Some of those swans have already settled on the ground (terras capere), others are on the point of settling on the land already occupied (captas despectare): so the ships either now occupy the haven (portum tenet) or are entering it (subit) with full sail.—laetantes agmine: “in jubilant order:” literally, “joyful in line.”
- 394—Aetheria—caelo: “which the bird of Jove, swooping from the height of heaven, scattered in a clear sky.”—plaga. Distinguish in meaning plāga, plūga.—Iovis ales = aquila.—aperto caelo: abl. place: cp. δι' ἐρήμων αἰθέρος.
- 396—Aut—videntur: “they seem in a long array either to be choosing the ground, or to be gazing downwards on the ground already (iam) chosen by them.”
- 397—Ut—dedere: “even as these returning sport with whirring pinions and gird the sky with their circling flock, and give forth their song.” The swans were first scattered by the bird of Jove (as the ships have been by the storm); they have now united, and with whizzing wings and song they descend to earth. It appears that these words should naturally come after caelo.—alis: distinguish ala, a wing: pinna, the larger and harder feathers of the wing; pluma, the smaller and softer feathers of the body.—cinxere—dedere: the perfects express completed action.—cantus: the absence of fear, perfect security, is described.
- 399—Tuorum for tua, for the sake of variety.
- 400—Subii ostia: “are making an entrance.” Note the verb agrees with the nearest nominative.
- 401—Perge modo: “only go on.”
- 402—Avertens: “as she turned away.”—rosea—refulsit: “she flashed forth with the beauty of her rosy neck,” i.e., her rosy neck shone forth to view.
- 403—Ambrosiae—comae: cp. ἀμβροσῖαι χεῖραι, Hom. Il., I, 529: “immortal locks.” In Homer ambrosia is commonly applied to the food of the gods, but it is also used for ointment and perfume.
- 404—Vestis: in v. 320 she was dressed as a huntress. She now appears in the flowing robes characteristic of a goddess.
- 405—Et—dea: “and by her gait she revealed the true goddess.”—incedus and incedo are often applied to the dignified gait of the gods: cp. v. 46. Scan this line.

- 406—Adgnovit: distinguish in meaning: adgnosco, cognosco, ignosco.
- 407—Toties: exaggeration, as Venus had appeared only once to Aeneas before: B. 2, 589.—tu quoque: i. e., you as well as Juno.—falsis imaginibus: “by empty phantoms,” i. e., by assuming disguises.
- 409—Audire—voces: “to hear and reply in real words,” i. e., words without disguise.
- 410—Talibus, scil., verbis or vocibus: “in such words:”—incusat: (in, causa) “he chides her.”
- 411—Aere: aer (cp. ἀήρ), the misty air near the earth, “a cloud,” distinguished from aether (cp. αἰθήρ), the bright air above the clouds.
- 412—Circum—fudit = circumfulit: by tmesis.
- 413—Molirive moram: “or to plan a delay.”
- 415—Paphum: Paphos, in Cyprus, was a noted seat of the worship of Venus.—sublimis: “aloft in air.”
- 416—Templum (est) illi.—centumque halant: “and (where) a hundred altars smoke with Sabaeen frankincense and breathe with the fragrance of garlands ever fresh.” Cp. Paradise Lost, IV, 162: “Sabaeen odors from the spicy shore of Arabie the blest.” In Hom. Od., 8, 362, we learn that “laughter-loving Aphrodite” had one altar in Paphos.
- 418—Corripuere viam: “they hastened on their way.” Here via and semita are not distinguished; generally via is “a highway;” semita (se “aside,” and meare, “to go”) “a by-path.”
- 419—Qui—imminet: “which hangs over the city with its mighty mass.”
- 420—Adversasque—arces: “and looks down from above on the opposing towers.” This may mean that the towers rise up to meet the mountain which gazes down upon them, or that they are over a valley and so adversas.
- 421—Molem: to Aeneas, the city is a heap, a mass of buildings, for he gazes from a distance.—magalia quondam: “once a cluster of huts.”—magalia is said to be a Phoenician word applied to “huts.” In some places it means “the suburbs” of Karthage.
- 422—Strepitumque: “and the hum” of the thronged streets.—strata viarum: “the paved streets:” = stratas vias: cp. opaca viarum.
- 423—Instant—muros: “the eager Tyrians are hot at work; some trace the walls.”—instant, scil., operi.—pars in app. to Tyrri.—ducere muros: cp. ελάυνειν τοίχων.

- 424—Moliri: "to build," with the idea of the magnitude (moles) of the structure.
- 425—Pars optare: "some choose a site for their dwellings and mark it out with a furrow." The plough does not seem to have been used for single dwellings. The poet in tectum means the portion of the city selected for habitation, in opposition to that chosen for military purposes.
- 426—Iura—senatum: "they appoint laws and choose magistrates and a reverend senate." Vergil is here thinking of the custom prevalent among the Romans in the establishment of colonies. There is a zeugma in legunt: i.e., the construction is iura constituunt magistratusque legunt.
- 427—Theatris: others read theatro. There is an anachronism here. No theatre was built even at Athens till 500 B.C., and no permanent theatre was erected at Rome till B.C. 58; no one of stone till 55 B.C.
- 429—Rupibus excidunt: "quarry from the rock:"—Distinguish in meaning: dēcōrā, dēcōrā, dēcōrā.
- 430—Qualis—labor: the full construction is: (qualis est) labor (eorum) qualis exercet apes nova aestate sub sole per florea rura: "(such) toil (is theirs) as engages the bees in early summer 'neath the sunshine throughout the flowery fields." The hive, awakened from its torpor by the warm sunshine of spring, displays unusual activity.
- 431—Cum—fetus: "when they lead out the full-grown young of their race."—Distinguish in meaning ēdūco, ēdūco.
- 432—Distinguish liquentia from liqueo and liquentia from liquor.
- 433—Stipant: "pack:" cp. στειβω.
- 434—Venientum=venientium.—Agmine facto: "in martial array."—ignavum (in, gnavus—gnarus, connected with nosco), "unskillful," i.e., "lazy."—praesepebus: give the different nominatives of this word.
- 436—Fervet opus: "hotly goes on the work:" with fervet: cf. θερμω: Ger. dorren: Eng. dry.
- 438—Suspicit: "looks up to:" he has now reached the bottom of the hill.
- 439—Dictu: distinguish the use of the supines.
- 440—Neque—ulli: "nor is he visible to anyone:" ulli=ab ullo: see note on mihī, v. 326.

- 441—Laetissimus umbrae: “most luxuriant in foliage:” see note on opum, v. 14.
- 442—Quo loco: inverted attraction.—primum signum: “the first sign,” i.e. of rest from their toils.
- 444—Acris: “spirited,” a token of their bold and active disposition.—nam sic, scil., monstravat: “for thus had she pointed out.”
- 445—Facilem victu: may mean either (1) “rich in provision,” or (2) “easy of maintenance.” The horse points to warlike prowess and wealth, probably because the cavalry were supplied by the nobility, and formed an important part of the Karthaginian army. The horse was an emblem of Athens also.
- 445—Sidonia = Phoenissa: Sidon was the parent city of Tyre and, for many years, the chief city of Phoenicia.
- 447—Donis—divae: a zeugma, “rich with gifts and favoured by the presence of the goddess.” The two notions are, however, closely connected.
- 448—Aerea—limina: “of which the brazen threshold crowned the steps:” lit.: “rose on steps.”—nexaeque—trabes, scil., gradibus surgebant: “and its door posts plated with brass (crowned the steps).” Trabes are the door posts.—nexae—aere—aeratae, plated with brass. Others read nixae (from nitor) and take trabes to mean the roof or the architrave and translate: “its roof was supported on brazen pillars,” or “its architrave was supported on jambs of brass.”
- 449—In reading this line, note the frequency of r and s to express the sound of the creaking doors.—foribus—aenis: “the hinges creaked on doors of bronze.”—fores: cp. θίρα: Eng. door. Cp. Milton’s description of the grating noise of the opening of Hell’s gates:—
- On a sudden, open fly
With impetuous recoil, and jarring sound
Th’ infernal doors: and on their hinges grate Harsh thunder.
- 452—Ausus, scil., est: what verbs are semi-deponent?—rebus: dative: not for in—adffictis—rebus.
- 453—Lustrat: originally applied to the priest purifying the people every five years (lustrum), then used in the general meaning, “surveys.”
- 454—Dum, join with miratur: “while he was wondering.”—sit: dependent question.
- 454—Artificumque—miratur: “and was admiring the handicraft of the rival (inter se) workmen and their toilsome labours.”

- 456—Ex ordine : cp. ἐξέλις : “in detail :” join this with pugnas. The question has been raised by Heyne, whether the poet meant to represent these battles as depicted in sculpture or in painting. The latter mode of representation would be more consistent with the custom of Vergil’s own age. The poet ascribes here to the Phoenicians the practice of the Greeks and Romans of his own time.
- 457—Iam : “by this time.”
- 459—Sævum : in refraining from the war and in killing Hector.
- 460—Nostrī—laboris : “of our sorrows.”
- 461—En Priamus. The ransom of the body of Hector by Priam was a favourite subject among ancient artists (v. 484).—sunt—laudi : “here, too, has worth its own reward.”
- 462—Sunt—rerum : “(here) there are tears for woes.”
- 463—Feret—salutem : “the fame of this will bring thee sure deliverance.”
—fama, scil. Troiaæ.
- 464—Inani : because the persons represented are now lost. Painting was unknown at the time of the Trojan war.
- 466—Namque—iuentus : “for he saw, how warring round the Trojan citadel here the Greeks fled, (how) the men of Troy pressed in their rear.”—uti = quo modo : see for the mood of fugerent : impulerit v. II.—Pergama circum : anastrophe. With Pergama : cp. etymologically πύργος, “a citadel,” German burg, “a town ;” berg, “a hill ;” Eng. -boro, -burgh, -bury : cf. Edin-burg, Edmunds-bury, Peter-boro.
- 467—Hac, scil., parte : “in this quarter.”
- 468—Curru instaret : “pursued them with his car :” curru ; abl. of means : with crīstatus : cf. Homeric κορυθαίολος, ἰππόκομος.
- 469—Niveis velis : “with canvas white as snow :” an anachronism, as the Homeric tents (κλισίαι) were planks thatched with grass. The story of Rhesus is told by Homer (Il. 10. 474). Rhesus came from Thrace, as an ally of Priam, with the oracular promise that should his steeds drink of the waters of the Xanthus, Troy would be impregnable. Rhesus pitched his tent near the shore, was slain by Diomedes and Ulysses, his horses were captured, and thus the fate of Troy was foreshadowed.
- 470—Primo somno : either abl. (1) of time : “in their first sleep,” i.e., in their deepest sleep, or (2) of instrument after prodūta : “betrayed to him by their first sleep.”

- 472—Ardentesque—equos: "and he turned aside his fiery steeds." One MS. reads albentes, a reading sanctioned by Hom. Il. 10, 437, in which the steeds of Rhesus are said to be: λευκότεροι χίονος, θέλειν δ' ἀνέμοισιν ὁμοῖοι; so Vergil 12, 84.—castra, scil., Graeca.
- 473—Gustassent—bibissent: the subjunctive in virtual oblique narration, and indicating the purpose of Diomedes.
- 474—Troilus: the death of Troilus is mentioned (Il. 24, 25) as occurring before the time of the action of the Iliad. Vergil may have derived the story from other sources.
- 475—Achilli: decline this word.
- 476—Curruque—inani: "and lying on his back clung to the empty car." curru may be either abl. or dat. = curru.
- 477—Huic—terram: "both his neck and locks are trailed along the ground."
- 478—Hasta: the spear of Troilus.
- 479—Non aequae = iniquae: "unjust," i.e., unpropitious.—Palladis: from (1) πάλλειν, to brandish, i.e. the "brandisher" of the spear; or (2) πάλλαξ, "a maiden."
- 480—Crinibus passis: "with dishevelled locks."—passis: from pando.—peplum: (πέπλος), the sacred shawl embroidered with figures representing mythological subjects was carried as an offering to Athene (Minerva) by the Athenian matrons in the public procession at the Panathenaea. Homer also represents a similar custom prevailing in Troy (Il. 6, 90).
- 481—Suppliciter: "in suppliant guise."—tunsae pectora: "beating their breasts." Beating the breasts and tearing the hair were signs of grief.
- 482—Aversa: "averting her face."
- 483—Raptaverat: Homer says that Hector was thrice chased round the walls and dragged to the tomb of Patroclus. Vergil here follows probably some Cyclic poet or Tragedian.
- 485—Exanimus: "lifeless." What adjectives are heteroclitic? Some take exanimus = ita exanimatus: "thus made lifeless," as Vergil seems to have represented Hector as being dragged while still alive at the car of Achilles: cp. Aen. 2, 273; Soph. Ajax 1030; Cic. Tusc. 1, 44.
- 485—Ingentem: emphatic: "then truly deep was the groan he utters from the depths of his breast."—lat: historical present.

- 486—Currus : i.e., of Achilles. It may, however, mean the car of Hector, or of Priam.
- 487—Inermis : "unarmed," i.e., suppliant.
- 488—Principibus : abl.
- 489—Æoas acies : the Indian Aethiopians. The legends of Memnon and of the Amazons appear in post-Homeric poems, in 'Ιλιὰς μικρά, Αἰθιοπία, and other Cyclic poems.
- 490—Lunatis peltis : "armed with moon-shaped shields:" ablative of description.
- 491—Medisque ardet : "and with courage she glows in the midst of thousands."
- 492—Aurea-mammae : "having a golden girdle buckled on 'neath her exposed breast."
- 493—Bellatrix-virgo : note contrasted position : "a female warrior and she dares to fight with men, a maid though she be:" cp. Homer's Ἀμάζονας ἀντιανείρας.
- 494—Hæc videntur : "while these wondrous sights were seen by the Trojan Aeneas:" Aeneae : Greek dat. = ab Aenea : or "while these things seemed wondrous to the Trojan Aeneas."
- 495—Obtutuque uno : "and remained fixed in one (long) gaze."
- 496—Forma : abl. of respect.
- 497—Incessit : expresses the dignity of her walk : cp. v. 46.—magna caterva : "a great crowd of youths thronging about her:" cp. stipator, "an attendant."
- 498—Qualis-choros : a condensed construction for (talis erat Dido qualis est) Diana (quum) exercet choros in Eurotae ripis aut per iuga Cynthi.—Diāna here; elsewhere Dīāna.—exercet choros : "leads the dance."
- 499—Quam : governed by secutae.
- 500—Oread's ; from Oreas, "a mountain (ὄρος, "a mountain") nymph."—illa humero : cf. ιοχέαιρα, as an Homeric epithet of Diana.
- 501—Gradiensque omnes : "and as she steps along she o'ertops all the (other) goddesses."
- 502—Pertemptant : "pervade." Latona takes delight in the glory of her daughter, Diana.
- 503—Ferebat : "joyously she advanced."

- 504—Instans—futuris: "intent on her work and on the (glory of her) realms yet to be."
- 505—Foribus—testudine: local ablatives. Temples, at least among the Greeks, had generally three distinct parts: (1) the outer court (vestibulum, πρόβαος); (2) the inner court (cella, ναός); (3) the treasury (thesaurus, θησαυρός). By foribus is meant the doorway of the cella, or inner court, which here was a vaulted roof (testudo) resembling a tortoise shell.
- 506—Armīs = ab armatis viris. —solioque—resedit: "and supported from beneath by a lofty throne, she took her seat."—solium (rt. SED, to sit), a high chair of state.—alte = alto, limiting solio, rather than resedit.
- 507—Iura—legesque: cf. δίκην, νόμον τινθέναι: iura dare was said of a judge; leges dare was said of a lawgiver. Distinguish ius, what is just and right in itself or what from any cause is binding (iungo) upon us and lex, the written (lego) statute or order.
- 508—Operumque—trahebat: "she adjusted into equal shares the toil of the work or divided it by lot."—partibus: abl. of instrument or manner.—sorte trahebat: either for sortem unius cuiusque trahebat, or nomina uniuscuiusque sorte trahebat.
- 509—Concursu—magno: either (1) abl. of accompaniment = cum concursu magno, or (2) abl. of place = in concursu magno.
- 510—Addison in Spectator, 273, points out the fact that Vergil is defective in characterization. Gyas, Mnestheus, Sergestus, and Cloanthus are all of them men of the same stamp and character: fortemque Gyan, fortemque Cloanthum.
- 512—Penitus: "far away."—avexerat: other readings are advexerat, averterat.
- 513—Perculsus: "was struck dumb." Others read percussus.
- 514—Avidi—ardebant = avide—ardebant: "they eagerly long," by enallage.
- 516—Dissimulant, scil., lactitiam metumque: "they repress their joy and fear:" some supply se adesse: "hide their presence." Distinguish dissimulo, to conceal an emotion which does exist; simulo, to exhibit an emotion which does not exist.—et—amicti: "and shrouded in a hollow cloud they see from a distance."—amicti: lit., "wrapped around" (amb—iacio).

- 518—Navibus = ex navibus. Others read cuncti for cunctis.
- 519—Orantes veniam : “to pray for the grace (of the queen):” the pres. part. here = oraturi : expressing a purpose.
- 520—Coram—fandi : “of speaking openly to you,” with the queen.
- 521—Maximus, scil., aetate et dignitate. The calmness of the aged Ilioneus well befits his age.
- 522—Novam—urbem : the word Karthago means “new town,” probably being contrasted with the parent city of Tyre.
- 523—Iustitiaque—superbas : “and with the restraint of justice to curb the haughty tribes.”—iustitia, from rt. $\Upsilon\Upsilon\Gamma = \text{JUG}$: “that which binds states or communities together or that which restrains:” cp. iungo, ius, religio.—gentes : the African peoples.
- 524—Ventis—vecti : “by the winds borne over all the seas.”—maria : acc. of the space moved over.
- 525—Infandos = $\dot{\alpha}\rho\eta\tau\omicron\varsigma$: “unspeakable,” i.e., horrible.
- 526—Propius : “either (1) “more closely,” or (2) “more propitiously” = praesentius.
- 527—Populare = ad populandum : a Graccism. The infin. often expresses a purpose in Greek : so also in case of vertere.
- 529—Animo : either (1) dat., after est omitted, or (2) local abl. = in animo.
- 530—Hesperiam : cp. Ἑσπερία . The term Hesperia, meaning the “western land,” was applied to Italy by the Greeks, and to Spain by the Italians. Spain was called also ultima Hesperia. Ἑσπερος , i.e., Ἑσπερος : from root WAS or VAS, “to dwell;” vesper, Ἑσπερ ; Eng. West ; probably the abode of the sun at night.
- 532—Oenotri : probably Oenotria, the poetic name for Italia, meant vine-land ($\omicron\iota\nu\omicron\varsigma$). Vergil makes Italus king of the Oenotri, while Thucydides makes him king of the Siculi. The Latin Varro (R. R. 2, 12) derives Italia from ἰταλός , vitulus, “an ox”—as being rich in oxen. The probabilities are that Itali, Vituli and Siculi are varieties of the same word.
- 534—Hic—fuit : “this (i.e., to this land) was our course.” The simpler reading huc is given by some editors. This is the first of the fifty-eight lines left unfinished by Vergil. According to accounts Augustus gave instructions to Varius and Tucca, the literary testators of the poet, to publish the Aeneid with the lines unfinished.
- 535—Cum—Orion : “when suddenly arising o’er the billows the stormy

- Orion."—fluctu may be either a dat. or an abl.—Ōrion or Ōrion in Latin: Ὠρίων or Ὠρίων in Greek. Orion rises about midsummer and sets early in November.
- 536—Tulit, scil., nos.—penitusque—dispulit: "and afar by wanton winds and whelming brine o'er waves and trackless reefs scattered us." The sibilants well express the whizzing of the wind.
- 537—superante salo: either (1) "the briny deep overpowering us," or (2) "the briny deep roaring high."
- 538—Huc—oris: "only a scanty remnant of us have drifted hither to your shores."—pauci has a negative meaning.
- 539—Barbara: hospitality was regarded as a sacred duty among the ancients, and rudeness to strangers was a mark of barbarity punishable by the vengeance of heaven.
- 540—Hospitio—harenae: "we are debarred the shelter even of the strand," i. e., we are not allowed even to land, a right which is given to shipwrecked men.
- 541—Prima terra: "on the brink of the shore:" local abl.
- 543—At nefandi: "yet expect that gods are mindful of right and wrong." Fandi—nefandi are used as genitives of the indeclinable fas—nefas. Sperate = expectate in prose.
- 544—Erat: Ilioneus supposed Aeneas dead.—quo—alter: "in justice second to none."
- 545—Pietate—bello—armis: ablatives of respect or specification.
- 546—Si—aetheria: i. e., if he is still alive. What verbs govern the abl. ?
- 547—Occubat: "lies low."—umbris: local abl.
- 548—Non metus, scil., est nobis.—officio—paeniteat: "nor are you likely to regret that you were the first to vie in an act of kindness."—paeniteat has nearly the force of a future.
- 551—Quassatam—classem: scil., nobis: "may we be allowed to land our fleet shattered by the winds." With subducere naves: cp. ἀνέλκειν τὰς ναῦς, opposed to deducere naves = καθέλκειν τὰς ναῦς.
- 552—Et—remos: "and to shape forest trees into beams and strip them for oars."—silvis: local abl.—stringere: to strip them of leaves and twigs.
- 553—Italiam—tendere, i. e., ad Italiam iter tendere: "to pursue our way to Italy."
- 554—Ut, depends on liceat (nobis) deducere classem.

- 555—Sin : opposed to si, v. 553, "but if."—Teucrum : for the form of genitive plural : see note on deum, v. 9.
- 556—Iam : "any longer."
- 557—Freta : distinguish in meaning : frēta, frēta.—Sicānlāe : elsewhere, Sicānlāe.—sedesque paratas : "and abodes already built," i.e., the cities built by Acestes who was in Sicily as opposed to those they expected to build for themselves.
- 559—Talibus, scil., verbis dixit.—ore fremebant : "murmured their applause;" cp. ἐπευφήμισαν : literally, "murmured applause with (one) mouth," or "unitedly murmured applause."
- 561—Vultum : acc. of specification or respect.
- 562—Solvite corde metum = solvite corda metu : "free your hearts from fear."—secludite : "dismiss."
- 563—Regni novitas = regnum novum : "my youthful realm."—talia moliri : "to take such a course," i.e., to prevent the Trojans from landing.
- 565—Aeneadum = Aeneadarum : a complimentary reference to their chief.
- 566—Virtutes : "their manly deeds."
- 567—Obtusa : "dulled," by their own calamities.
- 568—Nec tam—urbe : the meaning seems to be that we are not so far removed from the pale of civilization as to be ignorant of the manly deeds of the heroes in the Trojan war.
- 569—Saturnia arva : Italy was often called Saturnia, scil., terra, "the land of Saturnus," the sower (from satus, sero).
- 570—Erycis fines : "the realm of Eryx." Eryx a mountain (now S. Giuliano) of western Sicily, noted for a temple of Venus. Here dwelt Acestes.
- 571—Auxilio tutos, scil., viros : "(men) guarded by an escort."
- 572—Voltis—regnis? Some remove the interrogation mark, and place a comma. The sense would then require si before vultis.
- 573—Urbem—est ; inverted attraction=urbs, quam statuo, vestra est : cp. Plaut. Curc. III, 49 : istum quem quaeris ego sum.—subducite : "draw up on shore;" cp. ἀνάγειν ναῦς opposed to deducere naves, to launch ships : cp. καθέλκειν ναῦς.
- 574—Agetur : either (1) = dirigetur, "shall be governed," or (2) "shall be regarded = ducetur," or (3) "shall be dealt with."
- 575—Utinam—afforet : what is the force in the tense here?

- 576—Equidem : “truly.”—certos, scil., viros : “tried men,” or “trusty men,” or = cretos, “picked men.”
- 577—Lustrare : “to scour;” see note v. 283.
- 578—Si—errat : “to see whether he wanders about.” The subj. would be the more common construction in prose.
- 579—Animum arrecti : “roused in spirits.”
- 582—Sententia : “purpose.”
- 584—Unus : i.e., Orontes, v. 113.
- 586—Circumfusa : “encircling.”
- 587—Scindit—apertum : “parts and melts into the open sky.” With purgat, scil., se from the scindit se.
- 588—Restitit : “stood forth.”
- 589—Os umerosque : acc. specification. — namque—honores : “for his mother herself had given her son graceful flowing locks and the ruddy glow of youth, and inspired his eyes with a joyous lustre.” There is a zeugma in adflarat.—caesaries, long flowing hair (from caedo, as κουπά from κείρω).—purpureum : does not necessarily mean merely “purple,” but embraces all colours from scarlet to dark violet inclusive : so also πορφύρεος.
- 592—Quale—decus : = (tale decus (est) quale . . . ebori) : “such is his beauty as the craftsmen give to ivory.”
- 593—Parius lapis, i.e., marble.
- 594—Cunctis, join with improvisus : “unexpectedly to all.”
- 595—Coram : “before you.” The sudden announcement of Aeneas is paralleled by the declaration of Ulysses : Od. 24, 321 : κεῖνος μέντοι ὁδ' αὐτὸς ἐγὼ, πάτερ ὅν σὺ μεταλλᾶς.
- 597—Miserati : distinguish miseror, to express pity in words (cp. οἰκτεῖν), and miseror, to feel pity in the heart : cp. ἔλεειν.
- 598—Quae—orbem : “thou who dost welcome us as partners in your city, in your home, a remnant escaped from the Greeks, now worn out by all our troubles by land and sea, in need of all things: 'tis not in our power to pay you worthy thanks, O Dido, nor can all the race of Troy scattered everywhere throughout the world.”—Danaum : see v. 30.—urbe—domo : local ablatives.—With socias, scil., tecum or tibi.—grates—opis : decline.
- 603—Si—numina : “if any deities regard the benevolent.” When is quis used for aliquis?—si quid—est: “if justice in any place avails aught.”—Distinguish in meaning usquam and unquam.

604—si quid—iustitia: this seems an odd construction for si quid iustitiae (partitive gen.), which some editors read. With iustitia, quid must be adverbial, “at all.”

605—Laeta: “blessed.”

607—Dum—current: distinguish dum with indicative and with subjunctive: note v. 314—dum convexa: “while the shadows shall course along the slopes of the mountains.”—montibus: dat. of reference.

608—Dum—pascet: according to the ancient philosophers (cp. Lucr. I, 231) the perpetual fire of the stars was maintained by the aether refined from exhalations of the earth.

610—Quae—cumque = quaecumque, tmesis.

612—Post = postea.—alios, scil., dextra petit: “he grasps the right hand of others.”

613—Primo: adverbial.

614—Casu—tanto: “at so great misfortune;” distinguish casus, a natural agent not the consequence of human calculation or known causes: fors, a kind of mythological being sporting with and thwarting human affairs.

615—Vis: not “power,” but “violence:” cp. βία—inmanibus—oris: “savage shores.”

617—Vergil here refers to the wild African tribes. Scan this line. Note that when final the vowel o is often left unelided (hiatus), especially in the case of proper names: cp. v. 16: so also Aen. III, 14; III, 667, et saepe. What kind of line is this with regard to scanning?—ille = Greek ἐκείνος, “that celebrated:” cp. vs. 379, 565.

618—Alma: “fostering.”

619—Sidona: Greek accusative. Teucer, after the Trojan war, was expelled from Salamis by his father Telamon because he failed to avenge the death of his brother Ajax, and sought a home at Cyprus, where he built a second Salamis. He is here represented as stopping at Sidon to make terms with Belus, who was at that time master of Cyprus. Distinguish this Teucer, a Greek, from Teucer one of the founders of Troy.—venire: here venire is used for venisse.

- 623—Dicione : “under his sway : i.e., sub dicione or in dicione.
 623—Iam : “even.—casus : “downfall.”
- 624—Pelasgi : “the Greek ;” according to Gladstone, the Pelasgi were a pre-Hellenic race, and formed the basis of the Greek army in the Trojan war.
- 625—Ipse hostis : “he, though an enemy.”—feribat : “used to extol.”
- 626—Se volebat : “would have it that he was sprung :” distinguish volebat and vellet in meaning.
- 628—Per multos labores with iactatam.—similis : scil., tuæ fortunæ.
- 629—Demum : “at length,” not till now ; denique, opposed to primum, “finally,” “in short ;” tandem, “at last,” after many efforts or disappointments ; postremo, “last,” in order of time.
- 632—Divum—honorem : “she proclaims in the temples of the gods a sacrifice.”—indicit, a technical word for ordering a religious observance : Caes. B. G. 7, 90 : supplicatio indicitur.
- 633—Nec minus interea : often used in transitions : nec minus, adds little to the force of interea.—sociis = ad socios, a Greek dative.
- 634—Magnorum — suum = magnos horrentibus centum tergis sues : by synecdoche. Suum, gen. pl. of sus.
- 635—Munera—dei : “the gifts and cheer of the god,” i.e., Bacchus.
- 637—At : see note v. 116.
- 638—Splendida, proleptically used = (sic) instruitur (ut) splendida (sit). The atrium in a Roman house occupied the centre and was generally used for a dining-room. The use of the present tense gives animation to the description.
- 639—Arte—superbo : “skilfully wrought were the coverlets and of bright purple.—ostro : properly the blood of the sea snail, which supplied the ancients with their rich, purple dyes.
- 640—Caelata : “embossed :” i.e., on the goblets, vases, etc., were carved the deeds of their fathers.
- 641—Series—gentis : “a very long, unbroken chain of feats continued by so many heroes from the early origin of the race :” a reference to the deeds of the Tyrians. Vergil had here in view the Roman customs prevalent in his own time.
- 643—Neque enim—mentem : “for neither did his love as a father suffer his mind to rest.”
- 644—rapidum : “in haste,” join with praemittit, although grammatically connected with Achatem.

- 645—Ferat = referat : subjunctive of oblique narration : corresponding to fer in direct narrative.
- 646—Stat : “centres.”
- 648—Ferre iubet, scil., Achatem.—pallam, properly a long, seamless garment worn by women over the tunica, corresponding to our gown or dress.—signis—rigentem = signis aureis rigentem : “stiff with figures of gold :” a hendiadys.
- 649—Circumtextum—acantho : “and a veil fringed with a border of yellow acanthus.”—velamen : veils were considered a very important portion of a Roman lady’s dress, and were of costly material and exquisite workmanship.—Acantho : abl. of description : the acanthus (rt. AK, “sharp”), a thorny shrub, now called bear’s foot.
- 650—Mycenis : abl. Helen is mentioned in Aen. II, 577, as coming from Mycenae, whereas she really came from Sparta, the royal city of Menelaus. Vergil confounds the city of Agamemnon with that of Menelaus.
- 651—Pergama : “the citadel of Troy is called Pergamus (πέργαμος ἦ), and Pergama (πέργαμα τά), connected etymologically with πυργός, a tower : German burg, a town ; berg, a hill ; Eng. burg, bury : as Edin-burg ; Edmunds-bury.—Inconcessos Hymenaeos : “unlawful wedlock :” scan this line.
- 653—Sceptrum : i.e., iubet Achatem ferre sceptrum. Ilione was married to Polymnestor, the treacherous king of Thrace.
- 654—Maxima, scil. natu : give the other degrees of comparison.—Collo monile : “necklace.”
- 655—Duplicem—coronam : probably a crown formed by a circle of two rings, one of gems and one of gold. Others say of one ring, and translate, “a crown of blended gems and gold.”
- 656—Haec celerans = ut haec celeriter exsequatur : “to execute promptly these orders.
- 657—At : see v. 116.—faciem—ora : accusative of specification.—facies (from facio, the natural make of the face, i.e., the countenance as expressing emotion by the mouth or by the eyes.
- 659—Donisque—ignem : “and by gifts instil the queen to frenzy, and insinuate love’s fire into her heart.”—furentem : proleptic use of the adjective : v. 70.
- 660—Ossibus : often used for the seat of feeling.
- 661—Quiippe : see note v. 39.—ambiguam domum : “the treacherous house :” literally, “going round about” (ambi, ago).—bilingues :

- "double tongued," saying one thing and thinking another, referring to the proverbial treachery of the Karthaginians.
- 662—Urit, scil., eam cura: "harasses her with anxiety."—sub noctem: "at the approach of night:" cp. ἰπὸ νύκτα.—recursat: "oft returns."
- 664—Meae—solus: i.e., (qui es) solus meae vires, mea magna potentia.
- 665—Patris—temnis: "who dost despise the sovereign father's bolts that struck Typhoeus." The giant Typhoeus was slain by the lightning of Juppiter. The poet here represents the undying power of love.
- 666—Numina: "divine aid."
- 667—Frater: Cupid and Aeneas were sons of Venus.—Ut=quo modo: "in what way:" introducing an indirect question.—nota=notum est by a Graecism.
- 668—Scan this line.
- 670—Tenet, scil., eum: "detains him."
- 671—Vereor—hospitia: "I am anxious how Juno's welcome may end:" dependent question.
- 672—Haud—rerum, scil., Iuno, from Iunonia: "Juno shall not be inactive at such a crisis," lit., "at such a turning point of affairs."
- 673—Quocirca—meditor: "wherefore I purpose to anticipate her by craft and to surround her with (such a) flame (of love)." The Romans borrowed many of their metaphors from military affairs.
- 674—Ne—mutet: "that she may not be changed by any influence," i.e., any power but mine, or "by the influence (of Juno) in any way."—se mutet=mutetur: see note v. 158.
- 676—Qua, scil., ratione.—accipe: "hear:" cp. da, "tell."
- 677—Accitu: "at the summons."
- 679—Pelago—restantia: "remaining from."
- 680—Sopitum—somno: "slumbering sound in sleep:" such pleonasms are common. Note the alliteration. Decline Cythera (see Proper Names).
- 681—Sacrata—sede: "in a consecrated spot:" either grove or temple.
- 682—Mediusve occurrere: "or to interpose to prevent it." Here medius=obviam.
- 683—Tu—dolo: "do you counterfeit his looks for one night, no more."—noctem: why this case?—amplius: often used like plus, minus, without changing the case.
- 685—Laetissima: "at the height of her joy."

- 686—Iaticemque Lyaeum: "the cups of Bacchus."—Iatex a poetic word.
—Lyaeum; cp. Λυαῖος: cp. Liber: "the one who frees (λυ-) from cares."
- 688—Fallasque veneno, scil., eam: "and may beguile her with (love's) poison."
- 689—Distinguish in meaning pāret, pāret.
- 690—Exiit: "he doffs."—et—Iuli: "and gladly he walks with the step of Iulus:" for incessu: see note on incedo: v. 46.
- 691—At: cp. v. 116.—Ascanio—inrigat: "sheds like dew calm sleep o'er the limbs of Ascanius."—Ascanio: dative of reference. Inrigat may refer to the dews of night, or more probably to perspiration: cp. Shaks. J. C. II, 1: "enjoy the honey-heavy dew of slumber."
- 692—Fotum—gremio: "her fondling in her lap."
- 693—Ubi—umbra: "where the soft marjoram, breathing forth fragrance with its blossoms and sweet shade envelops him." With adspirans, scil., odorem.
- 696—Duce—Achate: "glad in having Achates as a guide."
- 697—Cum—locavit: "by the time he arrives, the queen had already beneath the rich curtains taken her place on a golden couch, and had stationed herself in the centre."—The historic present tense for cum venerat.—If venerat were read, then we should have had composuerat.—aulaeis may mean (1) "in a curtain," or (2) "neath a curtain" (= sub aulaeis), or (3) "with a curtain," i.e., contributing to the ease of her position.
- 698—Aurea: in scansion (synizesis).—mediam: she, as hostess, would occupy the locus medius of the lectus medius. Vergil is evidently describing here the customs of the Romans of his own day. At a Roman feast there were usually three couches. The room in which the feast was held was called triclinium (τρεῖς κλίβαι). The couches were arranged as in the annexed figure, and were called by the names summus lectus, medius lectus, imus lectus. There were usually three guests on each, according to the custom that there should never be fewer than the number of the Graces, or more than that of the Muses. The places of each were styled (1) locus medius, (2) locus summus, (3) locus imus. The host occupied (1) in medius lectus.

- 700—Discumbitur: “they recline in their several (dis-) places.”
- 701—Cerere—expediunt: “and serve out promptly the bread from baskets.” For Cerere: see note, v. 117.
- 702—Tonsisque—villis: “and napkins with shorn nap:” villis: abl. quality.
- 703—Quibus—Penates: “whose care it was to furnish in turn the lasting store, and to worship the Penates.”—ordine = ἐν μέρει, referring to the division of the labour.—penum and Penates are connected etymologically, root PA or PAT: cp. πένωμαι, πένης, πενία, πόνος.—adolere Penates may mean no more than to keep up the fire for cooking. With adolere: cp. “magnify” in our ecclesiastical writings.
- 706—Qui—onerent: subjunctive of purpose.
- 707—Nec non et: the negatives cancel each other, giving an affirmative sense: “moreover, too.”—limina = atria: synecdoche.
- 708—Toris—pictis = ad coenam convenire iussi.
- 710—Flagrantesque—verba: “the glowing looks of the god and his feigned words.” The poet here transfers the looks and words of lovers to those of the god of love.
- 712—Infelix join with Phoenissa.—pesti—futuræ: “doomed to her coming ruin.”
- 713—Expleri mentem: “to satisfy her soul;” note the reflexive use of the passive and the accusative of specification.
- 715—Ille—pendit: “when he hung on the embrace and neck of Aeneas:” abl. separation. Distinguish in meaning pendere, pendere.
- 715—Et—amorem: “and gratified to the full the affection of his pretended father.”
- 717—Haec—haeret: “she hangs on him with her eyes, she (hangs on him) with her whole soul:” cp. Tennyson’s Locksley Hall: “and her eyes on all my motives with a mute observance hung.”
- 719—Insidat—deus: “how dread a god is lying in wait for her:” i. e., is plotting against her: with insidere cp. insidiae.
- 720—Paulatim: “little by little.”—Acidaliae: referring to the Acidalian spring, near Orchomenos, in Boeotia, the haunt of the Graces.
- 721—Et—corda: “and he tries with a living affection to pre-occupy a soul long since dead to love, and a heart long unaccustomed (to love).”—praevertere: explained by some = praeoccupare. Others like it to mean, “to surprise.”—resides: decline.—desueta, scil., amori.

- 723—Postquam—epulis : scil., est or fuit. Decline epulis. What words in Latin are heterogeneous?—remotae, scil., sunt. The tables were literally brought in before the feast began and were removed after it was over : hence such phrases as mensam apponere, or opponere, and mensam auferre or removere.
- 724—Crateras—statuunt : “they place the large mixers :” cp. Hom. II. VI, 526 : κρατήρα στήσασθαι.—vina coronant : “they crown the wine,” may mean (1) as in Homer’s κρητῆρας ἐπεστέψαντο ποτοιο : “they fill to the brim the mixers with wine,” or (2) “they deck the bowls of wine” with ivy or myrtle wreaths, as was certainly done in later times.
- 725—Fit—tectis : “a hum arises throughout the halls.”—tectis=in tectis.—vocemque—atria : “and through the long halls they cause their words to re-echo.”—atria : the atrium was the principal room in a Roman house. It was used as the reception room, and also as the place where the images of ancestors were placed : derived from ater, “black,” i.e., blackened by the smoke of the hearth (focus) : cp. μέλαθρον, from μέλας.
- 726—Lychni : cp. λύχνος.—Night came on before they had finished their meal.—laquearibus : the small interstices (lacus) formed by the fretwork of the cross beams of the ceiling were decorated with gilding. Scan this line.
- 727—Funalia : a torch made of stout cords (funes) and covered with wax.
- 728—Hic : “hereupon.”
- 729—Mero : distinguish in meaning mērūm, “pure, unmixed wine ;” vinum, simply, “wine :” temetum, “a heady wine.”
- 730—A Belo, scil., orti : “sprung from Belus,” or = ex tempore Belii : “from the time of Belus.”—soliti, scil., sunt vino implere. It was customary to pour out a small quantity of wine with the usual prayer to the gods as the preliminary of a feast.
- 731—Hospitibus—iura : “define the rights of strangers ;” or “protect the rights of strangers.”—Zēd̄s̄ x̄eiv̄ios̄ (Iuppiter hospitalis) was worshipped as the guardian god of guests among the Greeks and Romans.
- 733—Velis : “may it be thy will :” distinguish in meaning vēlis, vēlis.—huius, scil., diei.—minores, scil., natu : give the other degrees of comparison.
- 734—Laetitiaē—dator : cp. Hesiod (Works and Days, 614) : δῶρα Διωνύσου πολλυγηθίος.—bona Iuno : Juno was the tutelary deity of Carthage.

- 735—Coetum—celebrate: “attend in throngs the gathering.”—coetum = coitum (cum, eo).—faventes: “speaking words of good omen,” or “keeping silence.” Especial care was taken during an offering to the gods or during any religious rite that no inauspicious or frivolous words should be uttered. Hence the admonition of the priests which we find at the beginning of a ceremony: favete linguis animis que, ore favete, fave linguis: cp. εὐφημίετε; εὐφημος πᾶς ἔστω λεως, στόμα σύγκλεισας.
- 736—Laticem—honorem: “an offering of wine:” the mensa being regarded as the altar of Iuppiter hospitalis.
- 737—Primaque—ore: “and she the first, when the libation had been made, with the tips of her lips touched it.”—prima, as being the first in rank.—Libato: impersonal.—tenus: what is the construction of tenus?
- 738—Dedit, scil., poculum.—increpitans: “with a challenge to drink deep:” cp. the Saxon, drinc hael.—ille—pateram: “he quickly drained the foaming bowl.” There is some humour in contrasting the act of Bitias with that of Dido.
- 739—Et—auro: “and swilled himself with the full cup of gold.”
- 740—Proceres, scil., spumantem pateram hauserunt.—crinitus: bards in imitation of Apollo are often represented with long hair: cp. Ἀπόλλων ἀκερσοκόμης.
- 741—Personat, scil., atria: “causes the halls to re-echo.” The Greeks and Romans, as well as mediaeval nations, often enlivened their feasts with the songs of minstrels.
- 742—Errantem—lunam: i.e., the revolutions of the moon.—labores: some say eclipses: such a theme was common among ancient bards. Physical philosophy was a fruitful theme of the old Orphic writers, as well as among the Roman poets. Cp. Lucretius and Vergil’s Eclagues, passim.
- 744—Arcturum: Ἀρκτοῦρος = Ἀρκτοφρος: “the watcher (For: cp. Eng. ward, wary) of the bear (ἄρκτος.)” This refers to the Lesser Bear (Ursa Minor), called also Arctophylax. Arcturus is often limited to the brightest star in the Lesser Bear (Ursa Minor), called Böotes (ox-driver).—Hyadas: the Hyades were seven stars at the head of the Bull (Taurus), the rising of which (May, 7.21) was attended by showers of rain (ἔειν, “to rain”).—geminosque Triones: two pair of stars, one at the end of the Great Bear (Ursa Maior), and the other at the end of the Lesser Bear (Ursa Minor). The word trio

747—Ingemnant plausu : "applaud repeatedly:" lit., "redouble with their applause."

748—Nec non et : see note, v. 707.

749—Longumque—amorem : "and kept drinking in a long draught of love:" note the force of the imperfects in trahēbat and bibebat.

750—Multa—multa : note the emphatic position of these words. This shows her desire to prolong the feast.

751—Nunc, scil., rogitat.—quibus—armis : dep. quest. : Aurorae—filius : Memnon.

752—Quales, scil., essent.—quantus, scil., esset.

753—Inmo age : "nay, come then:" often used to connect, or add emphasis to what has been said before.—dic : give examples of irregular imperatives.

754—Tuorum : referring to the Trojans who had perished at Troy : tuos refers to the case of Aeneas.—septima : some writers, Weidner amongst the number, conclude that Vergil died before he finally settled the chronology of the Aeneid. Vergil in Aen. v, 626, also says that seven years had passed since the fall of Troy, although a year must have elapsed between the time of the reception of Dido and the celebration of the games.

FUNERAL OF HECTOR. —V. 483.

INDEX TO PROPER NAMES.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Adj. = adjective; N. = noun; m. = masc.; f. = fem.; n. = neuter; pl. = plural; sing. = singular.

A.

- Āb-ās, -antis; m.: a Trojan, one of the companions of Aeneas.
- Ācest-es, -ae; Acestes: m.: a king of Sicily, who hospitably entertained Aeneas and his followers. He was the son of the river-god Crimisis and of a Trojan woman Egesta, or Segesta.
- Āchātēs, -ae; m.: Achates: the faithful friend and trusty henchman of Aeneas.
- Āchill-es, -is and i; m.: son of Peleus and the sea-nymph Thetis, and the most valiant of the Greek chieftains engaged in the siege of Troy. His quarrel with Agamemnon caused his withdrawal from the war. The Greeks were in consequence of this withdrawal plunged into misfortunes and defeated in battle. The death of Patroclus, who fell by the hand of Hector, roused Achilles into action. He took the field and slew Hector. Homer represents him as being slain in battle at the Scaean gate; later traditions, however, make him to have been killed treacherously by Paris.
- Āchiv-us, -a, -um; adj.: Grecian.
- Acidālī-us, -a, -um; adj.: of or belonging to Acidalia, a fountain in Boeotia, where Venus and the Graces used to bathe.
- Āeācīd-ēs, -ae; m.: a descendant of Aeacus, e.g., Achilles or Pyrrhus.
- Aenēād-ae, -ārum; pl. m.: followers of Aeneas, i.e., Trojans, or Romans, as being descendants of the Trojans.

- Aenē-as, -æ; m.: Aeneas: a Trojan prince, son of Anchises and Venus. After the fall of the city, he and his followers set out for Italy, where he arrived after many wanderings. He married Lavinia, daughter of king Latinus and succeeded to the power of that monarch.
- Aeōlī-a, -æ; f.: Aeolia: the country ruled by Aeolus, the king of the winds. The insulae Aeoliae or Vulcaniae, north of Sicily, comprise his domain.
- Aeōl-us, -i; m.: Aeolus: the god of the winds.
- Āfrīc-us, -i; m.: the South-west wind.
- Āgēn-or, -ōris; m.: son of Neptunc and Libya, king of Phoenicia. Vergil (B. 1, 338) calls Karthage the city of Agenor, since Dido was descended from him.
- Āi-āx, -ācis; m.: Ajax: son of Oileus, king of the Locrians; to be distinguished from Telamonian Ajax or Ajax the Great. He is described as of small stature, but of great skill in hurling the spear, and, next to Achilles, the most swift-footed of the Greeks. Homer represents him as having been wrecked, on his return from Troy on the "Whirling Rocks." Ajax escaped and boasted that he could escape without the aid of the gods. For his impiety he was swallowed up by the sea. Vergil represents him as being especially hated by Minerva, because on the night of the capture of Troy he insulted Cassandra, the priestess, in the temple of the goddess, whither she had fled for refuge.
- Alb-a, -æ; f.: Alba Longa, the most ancient city in Latium, and the parent city of Rome. It was destroyed by Tullus Hostilius, and never rebuilt.
- Albān-us, -a, -um; adj.: of, or belonging to Alba.
- Ālēt-es, -æ; m.: Aletes: one of the companions of Aeneas.
- Āmazōn-es, -um; f.: a fabled race of female warriors who dwelt on the banks of the Thermōdon, in Pontus. They came to the aid of the Trojans in the war under the command of their queen, Penthesilea.
- Āmŷcus, -i; m.: Amycus: a companion of Aeneas.
- Anchīs-ēs, -æ; m.: son of Capys, and father of Aeneas. He survived the fall of Troy, and accompanied Aeneas, but died on Aeneas' first arrival in Sicily.
- Antēn-or, -ōris; Antenor: m.: a Trojan: according to Homer, one of the wisest of the Trojan elders. Before the taking of the city he was sent to Agamemnon to negotiate a peace, and concerted a plan of delivering the city into the hands of the Greeks. On the capture of the city he was spared. His subsequent history is variously related. Some say that he founded a new kingdom at Troy; others that he went to Libya or Cyrene; others, that he went with the Heneti to Thrace, and thence to Italy, where he founded Patavium.
- Anthē-us, -i; m.: Antheus: a follower of Aeneas.
- Āquīl-o, -ōnis; m.: the N.E. wind: called Bopēas by the Greeks.
- Arctūrus, -i; m.: Arcturus: a constellation near the Great Bear; called also Boōtes, or Arctophylax.
- Arg-i, -ōrum; m.: Argos: one of the chief towns in Argolis, in the Peloponnesus.
- Argiv-us, -a, -um; adj.: Argive: of, or belonging to Argos.

Ascānī-us, -i; m.: Ascanius: also called Iulus; son of Aeneas and Creūsa, rescued by his father from Troy and taken to Italy.

Asīa, -ae; f.: Asia: one of the continents.

Assārāc-us, i; Assaracus: m.: a Trojan prince, son of Tros and father of Capys.

Athāmā-s, -ntis; m.: Athamas: a follower of Aeneas.

Atla-s, -ntis; m.: Atlas: a Titan who upheld the heaven and stars.

Ātrīd-ae, -ārum; m.: the Atridae: descendants of Atreus; applied to Agamemnon and Menelaus.

Aurōr-a, -ae; f.: Aurora: goddess of the dawn, and wife of Tithonus. She is usually represented in a chariot drawn by four horses.

B.

Bacch-us, -i; m.: Bacchus: son of Juppiter and Semele, and god of wine.

Bellum, -i: n.: War personified.

Bēl-us, -i; m.: Belus: king of Tyre and Sidon, and father of Dido.

Bitī-r-a, -ae; m.: Bitias: a Tyrian companion of Dido.

Byrs-a, -ae; f.: Byrsa: the port of Karthage first built was called, in the Phoenician language, Betzura or Bosra, i. e., citadel, which was corrupted by the Greeks into Byrsa (Βύρσα), i. e., a hide, and hence probably the story arose. Afterwards it formed the citadel of Karthage.

C.

Caes-ār, -āris; m.: Caesar: a surname given to the Julian family at Rome.

Cāic-us, -i; m.: Caicus: a follower of Aeneas.

Cāpŷ-s, -os (acc. Capym); m.: Capys: a follower of Aeneas.

Cērhāl-is, -e; adj.: of, or belonging to Ceres, goddess of agriculture.

Clōanth-us, -i; m.: Cloanthus: a follower of Aeneas.

Cūpid-o, -inis; m.: Cupid: son of Venus and god of Love.

Cŷclōpē-us, -a, -um (the regular quantity is Cyclōpēus); adj.: Cyclopean: of, or belonging to the Cyclopes.

Cymōthō-ē, -ēs; f.: Cymothoe: a sea nymph.

Cynth-us, -i; m.: Cynthus: a mountain in Delos, the natal place of Apollo and Diana.

Cypr-us, -i; f.: Cyprus: a large island in the Mediterranean sea colonized by the Phoenicians. It was noted for the worship of Venus, who was often called Cypris or Cypria. The chief towns were Paphos, Citium and Salamis.

Cŷthēr-ā, -ōrum; n., pl.: Cythera (now Cerigo), an island off the south-western point of Laconia. It was colonized by the Phoenicians, who early introduced the worship of Venus. Hence the goddess is often called Cytheris or Cythreā. According to some traditions she arose from the foam of the sea near the island.

Cŷthērē-us, -a, -um; adj.: Cytherean: of, or belonging to Cythēra; applied to Venus.

DIANA.—V. 501.

D.

- Dānā-i, -ōrum ; m., pl.: Danaī: a name given to the Greeks, as descendants of Danaus, son of Belus and twin brother of Aegyptus.
- Dardānīd-ae, -ārum ; m., pl.: Dardanidae: the descendants of Dardanus: i.e., Trojans.
- Dardānī-us, -a, -um ; adj.: Dardanian: of, or belonging to Dardania or Troy.
- Dēiōpē-a, -ae ; f.: Deiopea: a sea nymph, whom Juno promised to Aeolus on condition that he would aid her in destroying the fleet of Aeneas.
- Diān-a, -ae ; f.: Diana: daughter of Juppiter and Latona, goddess of the chase, the moon, and archery. From root div, "bright:"=divana, "bright one."
- Did-o, -ūs and -ōnis : Dido: also called Elissa, the reputed founder of Karthage. She was the daughter of Belus, or Antenor, and sister of Pygmalion, who succeeded to the crown of his father. Dido married Acerbas, or Sychaeus, a priest of Hercules and a man of great wealth. In consequence of the murder of her husband by Pygmalion, she sailed from Tyre, and finally landed at Karthage. She purchased from the simple natives as much land as she could cover with an ox-hide. Cutting the hide into strips, she surrounded the spot on which she subsequently built Bursa (βύρσα, a hide), the citadel of Karthage. Vergil represents Dido as falling in love with Aeneas, although an interval of fully three hundred years elapsed between the taking of Troy (1184 B.C.) and the founding of Karthage (853 B.C.).
- Diōmēd-es, -is ; m.: Diomedes: son of Tydeus, and one of the bravest of the Greeks who fought at Troy. He was the special favourite of Minerva, and under her direction did many feats of bravery. He engaged in single combat Hector and Aeneas; wounded Mars, Venus, and Aeneas; with Ulysses, carried off the horses of Rhesus and the Palladium.

Gānýmēd-es, -is; m.: Ganymede: son of Tros, and the most beautiful of mortals. He was carried off by an eagle to act as cup-bearer to the gods.

Grai-l, -ōrum; m., pl.: the Greeks: originally a name given to the people in the N.W. of Epirus. With this tribe the Romans first became acquainted, hence they applied the term Graii, or Graeci, to a people who called themselves Hellenes and their country Hellas.

Gy-as, -ae (acc. Gyan); m.: Gyas: a follower of Aeneas.

GANYMEDĒ.—V. 28.

H.

Harpályc-ēs, -ēs; f.: Harpalyce: daughter of Harpalycus, king of Thrace, noted for her swiftness of foot and for her skill in martial exercises.

Hēbr-us, -i; m.: Hebrus: a river of Thrace, now the Maritza.

Hect-or, -ōris; m.: Hector: son of Priam and Hecuba, the bravest of the Trojan leaders. He long baffled the Greeks, and when Achilles withdrew from the contest he drove the Greeks before him and burned their ships. The death of Patroclus aroused Achilles to action. The two heroes met, and Hector fell. The conqueror, according to Vergil, attached the dead body of Hector to his chariot and dragged it thrice round the walls of Troy; but according to Homer he dragged it away to the Greek fleet, then, for the space of twelve days, to the tomb of Patroclus. The body was at last ransomed by Priam.

Hectōrēs-us, -a, -um; adj.: Hectorean: of, or belonging to Hector.

Hēlén-a, -ae; f.: Helen: daughter of Juppiter and Leda, who was wife of Tyndarus; hence Helen is sometimes called Tyndaris. She was the most beautiful woman of her time, and her hand was sought for by the most illustrious princes of Greece. She was married to Menelaus, king of Sparta. Paris, son of Priam, king of Troy, was kindly entertained by Menelaus, at the Spartan court. In consequence of an elopement with Helen, Paris brought on the war against Troy. Menelaus after the war forgave her infidelity, and carried her back with him to Greece.

Hespēri-a, -ae; f.: Italy: literally, the land to the west; i. e., west of Greece.

Hýād-ēs, -um; f., pl.: a group of stars at the head of the constellation of the Bull (Taurus). They were the fabled daughters of Atlas, mourning the death of their brother Hyas (ἕω, "to rain").

Hýmēnæ-us, -i; m.: Hymen: the god of marriage.

I.

Idālī-a, -æ; f.: Idālī-um, -i; n.: Idalia, Idalium: a grove and height of Cyprus, the favourite abode of Venus. There was also a town in the island, sacred to Venus.

Ilī-ā, -æ; f.: Iliā: another name for Rhea Silva, a priestess of Vesta, who became by Mars the mother of Remus and Romulus.

Ilīac-us, -a, -um; m.: Ilīan: adj.: of, or belonging to Ilium, or Troy.

Ilīad-es, -um; pl.: women of Troy, the Trojan women.

Ilīōn-ē, -ēs; f.: eldest daughter of King Priam, and wife of Polymnestor, king of Thrace.

Ilīōn-ēus, -el; m.: a follower of Aeneas.

Ilī-um, -i; n.: Ilium: another name for Troja.

Ilī-us, -a, -um; m.: Ilīan: of, or belonging to Ilium.

Illyric-us, -a, -um; m.: Illyrian: of, or belonging to Illyria, a district north of Epirus, along the Adriatic.

Il-us, -i; m.: Ilus: a name given to (1) the fabled founder of Troy (see genealogical table, p. 24); (2) Iulus, or Ascanius.

Iōp-as, -æ; m.: a bard who sang at the entertainment given to Aeneas.

Itālīa; ac, f.: Italy.

Iūl-us, -i; m.: Iulus: another name of Ascanius, son of Aeneas.

Iūli-us, -a, -um; m.: Julian: the nomen of the Julian family.

Iūn-o, -ōnis; f.: Juno: the wife and sister of Jove, and daughter of Saturnus. The Greeks called her Hera or Her-e. She aided the Greeks against Troy. (For Djovino: not div: "to shine".)

Iūnōnī-us, -um; m.: of, or belonging to Juno.

Iuppīter, Iōvis; m.: Juppiter: king of gods, son of Saturnus and Rhea. (For Djovis pater: "father of light.") He represents the sky; hence thunder, lightning and physical phenomena generally proceed from him.

II.

Karthāg-o, -inis; f.: Karthage: one of the most celebrated cities of the ancient world; founded about 853 B.C. It embraced the chief citadel (Byrsa), the port (Cothon), and the suburbs (Magalia). It was involved in long and tedious wars with the Romans for the supremacy of the ancient world. It was finally destroyed 146 B.C. It was rebuilt under Julius and Augustus under the name of Colonia Karthago. The ruins are near El-Marsa.

L.

Lātīn-us, -i; m.: Latinus: son of Faunus, and king of the aborigines of Italy. He kindly received Aeneas, and gave the Trojan leader his daughter Lavinia in marriage. After his death Aeneas succeeded to the throne of Latium.

- Lătī-um, -i; n.: Latium: a broad district south of the Tiber, and between the Alban hills and the sea. Probably called from its flat character (latus, cp. πλατύς, Eng. flat).
- Lătōn-a, -ae; f.: Latona: the mother of Apollo and Diana.
- Lāvīnī-um, -i; n.: Lavinium: a city of Italy, founded by Aeneas in honour of Lavinia, his wife; now Pratica.
- Lāvīnī-us, -a, -am; Lavinian: of, or belonging to Lavinium.
- Lēd-a, -ae; f.: Leda: mother of Helen and of Castor and Pollux.
- Liburnī-i, -ōrum; m., pl.: the Liburni: a nation of Illyria, inhabiting modern Austrian Croatia.
- Liby-a, -ae; f.: Libya: a district of Northern Africa.
- Liby-c-us, -a, -um; Libyan: of, or belonging to Libya.
- Lya-e-us, -a, -um; an epithet of Bacchus: from λυατος, from λύειν, "to free;" cp. Liber: quia liberat mentem a curis.
- Lyci-us, -a, -um; Lycian: of, or belonging to Lycia.
- Lyc-us, -i; m.: Lycus: a comrade of Aeneas.

MERCURY, MESSENGER OF THE GODS.—V. 297.

M.

- Maī-a, -ae; f.: Maia: daughter of Atlas; the eldest of the Pleiades, and the most beautiful of the seven stars; the mother of Mercury.
- Mar-s, -tis; m.: Mars: the god of wars; son of Jupiter and Juno; the patron deity of Rome.

Māvortī-us, -a, -um; Mavortian: of, or belonging to Mars, or Mavors.

Memnon, -ōnis; m.: Memnon: a king of Ethiopia; son of Tithonus and Aurora; came to Troy with a body of soldiers to aid Priam; distinguished himself by his bravery; was slain by Achilles.

Mercūri-us, -i; m.: Mercury: son of Jupiter and Maia; messenger of the gods.

Mūs-a, -æ; f.: a Muse: the Muses were daughters of Jupiter and Mnemosyne, and born at Pieria. Hesiod states the names as Clio (history), Euterpe (lyric poetry), Thalia (comedy), Melpomene (tragedy), Terpsichore (dance and song), Erato (amatory poetry), Polymnia, or Polyhymnia (sublime poetry), Urania (astronomy), Calliope (epic poetry).

Mycēn-æ, -arum; f., pl.: Mycenae one of the chief cities of Argolis, in the Peloponnesus.

NEPTUNE RISING FROM THE SEA.—V. 156.

N.

Neptūn-us, -i; m.: Neptune: the god of the sea; the same as the Greek Poseidon.

Nōt-us, -i; m.: Notus: the south wind.

O.

Oenōtr-us, -a, -um; adj.: Oenotrian: of, or belonging to Oenotria, an old name for Italy.

Ōilē-us, -i; m.: Oileus: a king of Locris, father of Ajax the Less.

Ōlymp-us, -i; m.: a mountain of Northern Greece, near the Aegean sea; according to Homer, the abode of the gods; hence often used for Caelum; now Elimbo.

Ōrēa-s, -adis; f.: an Oread or mountain nymph (ὄρειάς: from ὄρος, a mountain).

Ōrien-s, -tis; m.: the quarter where the sun rises (oriens); hence, the East.

Ōrion, -ōnis; m.: Orion: a celebrated hunter and giant; placed after his death as a constellation in the heavens; showers attended its rising and setting; B. I, 535.

Öront-es, -is and -i: Orontes: a leader of the Lycians, shipwrecked on his voyage from Troy to Italy: B. I, 113, 220.

P.

Päll-äs, ädis; f.: Pallas: an epithet of Athene, or Minerva, the goddess of war and of wisdom. The epithet is derived from (1) either πάλλειν, "to brandish," i.e., "the brandisher" of the spear: (2) or from πάλλαξ, "a maiden," i.e., the virgin goddess.

Päph-os, -i; f.: Paphus: a city of south-western Cyprus, where Venus was especially worshipped.

Parc-a, -ae; f.: one of the three Fates or Destinies. According to the Greeks their names were Lachesis (λαχχάειν, "to allot"); Clotho (κλώθειν, "to weave"); Atropos ('a, "not," τρέπειν, "to turn"). Their duties are expressed in the following line:—Clotho colum retinet, Lachesis net, et Atropos occat. With the Romans these were worshipped as Morta, Decuma, Nona. The best derivation seems to be παρ=μερ, "to allot;" cp. Μοίραι. For the interchange of p and m: cp. μόλυβδος, plumbum.

Päri-s, -dis; m.: Paris: also called Alexander, son of Priam and Hecuba. He carried off Helen, wife of Menelaus, King of Sparta, and thus was the cause of the Trojan war. He was slain by the arrows of Philoctetes. He was the especial favourite of Venus.

Päri-us, -a, -um; adj.: Parian: of, or belonging to Paros, one of the Cyclades, noted for its quarries of white marble.

Pätävi-um, -i; m.: Patavium: a city of Galia Cisalpina, founded by Antenor, between the Meduacus Major and Minor (Brenta), now called Padua.

Pēlasg-us, -a, -um; adj.: Pelasgian: of, or belonging to the Pelasgi, an ancient race who inhabited Graecia before the arrival of the Hellenes. The word is derived from πᾶλλός: cp. palidus, palleo: hence, dark, or ash-coloured.

Pēnät-es, -ium; m., pl.: the Penates: deities who presided over the household and the state. The word seems connected with πα, "to feed" or "protect;" hence pater, panis, penus; πίσις (= πίσις), potens. They were probably deified founders of the family.

Penthēsilē-a, -ae; f.: Penthesilea: queen of the Amazons, an ally of Priam in the war of Troy.

Pergām-a, -ōrum; n., pl.: the citadel of Troy: connected with πύργος, "a tower;" German -burg; Eng. -borough, -burgh, -bury.

Phoeb-us, -i; m.: Phoebus: an epithet of Apollo; cp. φοῖβος, "bright;" φα, "to shine;" cp. φαίνειν, φάος.

Phoenic-es, -um; m., pl.: Phoenicians: people of Phoenicia, a district on the east of the Mediterranean, bounded on the south by Palestine, and on the north and east by Syria. The Phoenicians were the most celebrated navigators of antiquity, and founded colonies along the shores of the Mediterranean; notably Karthage, Tunis, Utica. Tyre and Sidon were their chief towns.

Phoeniss-a, -ae; f., adj. a Phoenician woman; from mas. Phoenix (cf. Threissa, from Threx): a Phoenician woman. As a noun = Dido.

Phrÿg-es, -um; m., pl.: the Phrygians, a people of Central Asia Minor.

Phrygius, -a, -um; adj.: Phrygian.

Phthia, -aë; f.: Phthia: a district in southern Thessaly. Achilles was born at Larissa, in Phthia.

Poeni, -orum; m., pl.: the Karthaginians.

Priam-us, -i; m.: Priam: son of Laomedon, and last king of Troy. Hercules took Troy, and Priam, then called Podarces, was among the prisoners. Hesione, the sister of Priam, ransomed her brother, and he changed his name to Priamus (πριαμαί, "I buy," or "ransom"). He married Hecuba, the daughter of Cisseus, and had among his sons, Hector, Paris, Polites. The conduct of Paris involved his father in a war with the Greeks, which lasted for ten years. Troy was finally taken (1184 B.C.) and Priam was slain by Pyrrhus, son of Achilles.

Punicus, -a, -um; adj.: Karthaginian.

Pygmalion, -is; Pygmalion: son of Belus, and king of Tyre; brother of Dido; murderer of Sychaeus.

Q

Quirinus, -i; m.: Quirinus: a name given to Romulus after his ascent to heaven. Derived from rt. kua, "powerful;" cp. Quirites, κῦρος, κῆρος, κοίρανος.

R

Remus, -i; m.: Remus: the twin-brother of Romulus.

Rhesus, -i; m.: Rhesus: king of Thrace who came to the aid of the Trojans. An oracle had declared that Troy would never be taken if his snow-white horses drank of the waters of the Xanthus or fed upon the grass of the Trojan plain. His horses were captured and he was slain by Diomedes and Ulysses on the night of his arrival.

Roma, -a, -aë; f.: Rome: a city in Italy, on the banks of the Tiber; the capital of the Roman world. Derived: Roma=(s) Roma: root aru; (cp. ruo: "to flow;") hence, "the stream town."

Romanus, -a, -um; adj.: Roman.

Romulus, -i; Romulus: The founder of Rome son of Mars and Rhea Silvia.

Rutulii, -orum; m., pl.: the Rutulii: a people of Latium. They opposed the settlement of the Trojans in Italy. They were defeated, and their king, Turnus, was slain.

Sabaes, -a, -um; adj.: Sabaean: of, or belonging to Saba (the Sheba of Scripture), the capital of Arabia Felix, situated in the S. W. part of Arabia.

Samos, -i; f.: Samos: an island, S.E. of Chios, opposite Mt. Mycale. It was noted for a magnificent temple of Here (Juno), situated about two miles from the town Samos. The remains of this temple are still to be seen.

Sarpedon, -ōnis; m.: Sarpedon: king of Lycia, and an ally of Priam in the Trojan war. He was slain by Patroclus.

Saturnus, -a, -um; adj.: Saturnian: of, or belonging to Saturnus, Saturnian. Saturn, according to the Romans, was the father of Juno. His name is derived from sero, to sow; hence he was the god of agriculture.

Scyllaeus, -a, -um; adj.: Scyllaeian: of, or belonging to Scylla, a monster who inhabited the rocky strait of Messina, between Bruttium and Sicily.

Sergestus, -i; m.: Sergestus: a follower of Aeneas.

Sicāni-a, -ae; f.: another name for Sicily. The Sicani, from whom the island obtained its name, were an Iberian people, while the Siculi were an Italian tribe.

Sicūl-us, -a, -um: Sicilian.

Sid-on, -ōnis (acc. Sidona); f.: Sidon (now Saida): the most ancient of the Phoenician cities, and for a long time the most powerful. It was eclipsed by its own colony, Tyre.

Sidōnī-us, -a, -um; adj.: Sidonian: of Sidon.

Simō-is, -entis; m.: acc. Simoenta (now Gumbrek): a river of the Troas falling into the Scamander (Mendere).

Spartān-us, -a, -um: Spartan: of, or belonging to Sparta.

Sychae-us, -i: Sychaeus: the husband of Dido.

Syr-tis, -is; f.: the Syrtes: two gulfs on the northern coast of Africa: the Syrtis Major (Gulf of Sidra), Syrtis Minor (Gulf of Cabes). The word is derived (1) either from σύρειν, "to draw," (2) or from the Arabian word Sert, a desert. Both were proverbially dangerous to sailors on account of the quicksands and their exposure to winds.

T.

Teuc-er, -i; m.: Teucer: (1) an ancient king of Troy; (2) a son of Telamon, king of Salamis, and brother of Ajax the Greater.

Teucr-i, -ōrum; pl., m.: the Trojans.

Threiss-a, -ae; fem. of adj. Threx, Thracian.

Tībērīn-us, -a, -um; adj.: of, or belonging to Tiber, a river of Italy, on the banks of which Rome was built.

Timāv-us, -i; m.: Timavus (now Timavo): a river of Istria.

Trīnācrī-us, -a, -um; adj.: Trinacrian: of, or belonging to Trinacria, another name for Sicily. The island obtained its name from its three promontories (τρεις ἄκραι): Pelorum (now Capo di Faro, or Peloro); Pachynum (Capo di Passara); Lilybaeum (Capo di Bona, or Marsala).

Trīōn-ēs, -um; m., pl.: also called Septentriones, the Seven Stars or the North (septem = seven; trio = strio; root STRI, "to scatter," hence, scatterers of light, near the north pole).

Triton, -ōnis; m.: Triton: a sea-deity, son of Neptune and Amphitrite, and trumpeter to his father.

Trōīl-us, -i; m.: Troilus: son of Priam and Hecuba, remarkable for his beauty. He was slain by Achilles.

Trōī-us, -a, -um; adj.: Trojan.

Trōī-a, -ae; f.: Troy: also called Ilium, one of the most noted cities of antiquity; situated in the north-eastern part of Mysia, in a district called Troas. It was built near the junction of the Simois and Scamander. It was taken by the Greeks after a siege of ten years, B.C. 1184. Recently Dr. Schlieman has, by excavating the ground, brought to light the remains of this once memorable city.

Trōīān-us, -a, -um; adj.: Trojan.

Trō-s, -is; m.: Tros: (1) son of Erichthonius, and grandson of Dardanus. He married Callirhoe, daughter of the Scamander, and had three sons—Ilus, Assaracus, and Ganymede; (2) an adj. = Troianus.

Týdid-es, -æ; m.: son of Tydeus, an epithet of Diomedes.

Týphōf-us, -a, -um; Typhoian: adj.: of, or belonging to Typhoeus, a monstrous giant, whom Earth brought forth to war with the gods after the destruction of her giant progeny. He was destroyed by Juppiter and placed beneath Aetna.

Týri-us, -a, -um; adj.: Tyrian: of, or belonging to Tyre, a celebrated city of Phoenicia.

Týr-us, -i; f.: Tyre: an ancient city of Phoenicia, founded by a colony from the older city of Sidon. It was noted for its famous purple.

V.

Vén-us, -ērís; f.: Venus: the goddess of beauty and the mother of Aeneas. For adjudging the award of the golden apple to Venus, when Minerva, Juno and Venus were competitors for this prize of beauty, Paris was promised the hand of the handsomest of earth's daughters. He soon eloped with Helen, and hence the war of Troy. The influence of Venus in this contest was always exerted on the side of the Trojans.

Vest-a, -æ; f.: Vesta: the goddess who presided over the hearth (ἑστία). She symbolized the sanctity of the family ties. In her temple at Rome, the attendant priestesses, Vestal virgins, kept alive the sacred fire.

X.

Xanth-us, -i; m.: Xanthus: also called Scamander, a river rising in the defiles of Mt. Ida, and after receiving the Simois, falls into the Hellespont. The name is derived from the yellow colour of its waters (ξανθός): now the (Mendere).

Z.

Zéphýr-us, -i; m.: Zephyrus: the western wind (from ζέφος, δυφός cp. νέφος, nubes, all referring to the dark region of the world).
